I write these notes toothbrush in hand. How's that for Convention enthusiasm!

Yes, we're packed and ready to head to Winnipeg for our April 28-30 annual meeting. The dealers and exhibits are always a draw at major shows but for many collectors, it's the "people" part that counts a great deal.

I'm one of those collectors whose hobby has been enriched greatly by friendship built around stamp collecting. Our tiny paper bits move the mails – and people too. I'm looking forward to visiting with a couple of our retiring Royal Directors. I called former President Michael Madesker the other day to ask when he had first become a Royal director. He couldn't remember back quite that far but thought that 1969 was a possibility. I can't recall a Society moment when Michael hasn't been present, I think he meant "1869." Is Michael really leaving? Not at all – he will continue to pursue his interest in international youth philately, very much to the benefit of collectors everywhere in this country.

Our Deuxième Vice-Président, Grégoire Teyssier is standing down after several years on the Board. Grégoire has been invaluable in advancing the perspective of that province which is home to so many of our members. Just like Michael, Grégoire is hanging around and is going to be kept busy doing Royal work. For a number of years, we have recognized the need to have a Quebec influence in our journal, The Canadian Philatelist. Grégoire changes one Royal hat for another – he becomes Associate Philatelist Editor, working with Richmond's Bill Pekonen to make our publication an even better one.

A substantial number of Royal friends live south of the border. Similarly, many Royal members are also members of the American Philatelic Society. APS President, Peter McCann, will be a special Winnipeg guest and when he's not busy judging exhibits and attending meetings, he will be keen to discuss things with as many collector friends as possible.

Royal changes are taking place other than the Director level. For a great many years now, Kimmo Salonen has served the Society as "Slide Program Manager." Kimmo is increasingly busy in his work and personal life and has passed the slide torch to our Halifax director, Elizabeth Sodero. If you need a little entertainment for an upcoming Chapter meeting, call Elizabeth!

The Winnipeg Philatelic Society has been around for a long time: in fact, at this Convention, it celebrates its 100th birthday. Winnipeg has a stellar record in supporting stamp collecting in Canada and this is the second Royal and third national show which has visited Portage and Main. Past President and Director, Beverlie Clark, was instrumental in getting this year's Royal back to Winnipeg and we know that we are in for a top notch weekend.

Je vous écris ces quelques lignes la brosse à dents à la main. Il y a du congrès dans l'air! Oui, nos valises sont faites et nous sommes prêts à partir pour Winnipeg pour notre assemblée annuelle du 28 au 30 avril. Les expositions et les négociants constituent toujours une grande attraction lors des grands salons mais pour de nombreux collectionneurs, c'est l'aspect humain de l'événement qui est le plus important.

Je suis l'un de ces collectionneurs qui a vu de belles amitiés se forger tout autour de ce passetemps. Nos petits morceaux de papier dentelés touchent non seulement le courrier, mais aussi les gens. Je suis heureux à l'idée de rendre visite à quelquesuns de nos membres du conseil d'administration qui seront bientôt à la retraite. L'autre jour, j'ai appelé l'un de nos anciens présidents, Michael Madesker, et lui ai demandé quand il était devenu membre du conseil d'administration. Il ne se souvenait plus à quand cela remontait, peut-être à 1969 pensait-il. Personnellement, je ne me souviens pas d'un seul moment important pour la Société où Michael n'était pas présent. Je pense qu'il voulait plutôt dire 1869. Michael se retireil vraiment? Assurément pas. I va poursuivre ses activités dans le cadre de la philatélie internationale de la jeunesse, dans le grand intérêt de tous les collectionneurs du pays.

Notre deuxième vice-président Grégoire Teyssier cède sa place après plusieurs années de participation au conseil. Il a contribué d'une façon inestimable à l'avancement de l'optique de cette province dont sont originaires nombre de nos membres. Tout comme Michael, Grégoire demeure dans le cercle et continue à œuvrer pour la Société. Depuis de nombreuses années, nous jugeons nécessaire que notre journal Le philatéliste canadien bénéficie d'une influence du Québec. Grégoire laisse une tâche pour en reprendre une autre. Il devient en effet rédacteur en chef adjoint et travaillera avec Bill Pekonen de Richmond pour améliorer sans cesse la qualité de notre publication.

Un bon nombre de nos amis de la Société royale vivent au sud de la frontière. De nombreux membres de la Société royale adhèrent pareillement à l'American Philatelic Society. Son président, Peter McCann, sera un invité spécial à Winnipeg et sera heureux de faire connaissance avec nos amis collectionneurs, entre deux réunions ou entre deux délibérations de jury.

La Société voit d'autres changements audelà de son conseil d'administration. Depuis de nombreuses années, Kimmo Salonen a œuvré en tant que directeur des programmes de diapositives. Étant de plus en plus sollicité par son travail et sa vie de famille, Kimmo a passé la relève à notre membre du conseil d'Halifax, Elizabeth Sodero. Si vous désirez un peu d'animation lors d'une prochaine réunion, appelez Elizabeth!

La Société philatélique de Winnipeg existe depuis longtemps. Elle célébrera en effet son centenaire lors du congrès. Winnipeg est très réputée pour son soutien envers la philatélie au Canada, et c'est le deuxième salon de la Société royale et le troisième salon national qu'elle reçoit. L'ancien président et membre du conseil Beverlie Clark a joué un grand rôle dans ce retour de la Société à Winnipeg, et nous savons déjà tous que l'événement sera de taille.

Les collectionneurs de tous les pays se plaignent périodiquement de leurs administrations postales, et ce pour toujours les mêmes raisons : trop ou pas assez de thèmes, des choix qui Periodically, collectors in every country complain about their postal administrations. It's always the same – too many, too few, poor subject choice and denominations that are too high. The reality in Canada is that Canada Post has been a great supporter of stamp collecting in this country – and a Royal booster, too. Canada Post will be a big player at Royal * 2000 * Royale. On Friday, April 28, a set of four stamps featuring rural mailboxes will be issued in support of our 72nd annual meeting. I plan to buy my mailbox new issues in Winnipeg and hope you do too!

laiscent à désirer et des catégories de timbres trop élevées. Au Canada, il est un fait que Postes Canada a toujours été en faveur des collectionneurs et également de la Société royale. Postes Canada tiendra une grande place lors du salon Royal 2000 Royale. Le vendredi 28 avril, une série de quatre timbres sur le thème des boîtes aux lettres rurales sera émise à l'occasion de notre soixantedouzième assemblée annuelle. Je compte acheter ma nouvelle série de boîtes aux lettres rurales à Winnipeg et espère que vous en ferez tout autant!

À bientôt donc, au comptoir Postes Canada de l'hôtel Marlborough!

Exchanges Wanted / Demandes d'échange

Since The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada is the national society of philatelists in Canada, many requests for exchange partners are referred to us. As a service to our members, we are pleased to present these names, so that those who wish to do so can make overseas contacts. Please note that we have no way of checking the credentials of the individuals who write to us asking that their names be published; therefore, we urge that caution be taken when answering these requests.

La Société royale de philatélie du Canada ne s'occupe pas normalement des échanges entre philatélistes, mais comme elle est la société philatélique nationale du Canada, on lui transmet de nombreuses demandes de philatélistes désireux de trouver des correspondants pour échanger des timbres. Ainsi a-t-elle décidé, pour rendre service à ses membres, de publier les noms intéressés d'autrement, afin que ceux qui désirent établir des rapports avec eux puissent la faire. Je vous signale toutefois que nous ne savons rien des personnes qui nous demandent de publier leur nom, c'est pourquoi je vous conseille d'être prudent en répondant à ces demandes d'échange.

I am a stamp collector and I enjoy reading books and magazines about collecting stamps. Over here in Ghana, we do not have stamp collecting clubs, so it makes the hobby a little boring for me. However, I do meet occasionally with other stamp collectors at the Philatelic section of the General Post Office here in Accra capital of Ghana.

I am 22 years old and would like pen pals from Canada.

I am a Bulgarian stamp collector who would like to exchange postal stamps with any interested individuals.

Are you confused when philatelic has the opposite meaning when someone wants to put down an item by calling it a philatelic cover? So am I. What must some people be thinking? How can something philatelic at one time describe a desirable and valuable collector's item and, at another time, a worthless item that should be shunned?

It is unfortunate that philatelic is sometimes used by people as a synonym for uncollectible or of too low a value in their opinion for them to bother with.

We need open discussion on how to redefine philately. We need to attract more stamp collectors – not drive them away by using confusing mumbo-jumbo.

The traditional definition of philatelic is related to the collection and study of postage stamps. The extended meaning is the collection and study of the handling, processing and delivery of mail – and the numerous ways the delivery service is accounted for. Philately also includes the study of delivery routes and rates of postage.

Some fakes, forgeries and so-called phantoms exist in our hobby. But, these are not philatelic in the usual sense of the word. E.A. Smythies defines a fake as a genuine stamp that has been altered to make it look different and a forgery as something entirely new, pretending to be real. Generally, a forgery copies the design of an existing stamp but has minor flaws or differences which may be difficult to detect. Some forgers classify these as facsimiles to escape criminal prosecution. Fred Melville has a completely different category that most philatelists avoid and rarely discuss – phantoms. Phantoms are labels which appear to be stamps, but are entirely fictitious. Melville does not include exhibition, charity and advertising labels in the phantom category, because "they mostly disclose their true character and are seldom a source of difficulty for the philatelist." The latter are sometimes called Cinderella items.

How can a genuine philatelic item be described? Here is one simple definition: it describes a method by which payment for postal services has been completed. For example, the 1968 Canadian Postal Guide listed nine approved methods of paying postage of which only one category includes postage stamps. Most of the other eight methods did not exist in 1840. Some philatelic items become a fad for a short time and then fall into disfavour as collectors lose interest. Some become highly desirable years later. First flight covers are a good example. Many covers were specially prepared and had the appropriate sending and receiving cancels. These covers provided solid evidence of authentic postal use. And yet, these have been (mistakenly?) labeled as philatelic because the supply exceeds the present demand.

Favour items include products which are produced by post offices to be given to VIPs or to commemorate special events.

CTO stamps are often issued by post offices to illustrate stamps in publications as promotions. Sometimes, post offices have made a CTO impression on surplus mint stocks and sold them to recover the printing cost. The value of CTOs is less than a properly used, cancelled stamp. Even fake CTOs are known to exist. Some collectors get CTO cancels on covers.

FDCs fall into two separate groups – those which are actually processed through the mail and those which have no address. Addressed covers are proof of actual use of the stamp. Are unaddressed FDCs collectible as an example of mint condition in the same way as mint stamps?

About 100 years ago, most stamps were engraved – some with production and design errors which are still sought after. Full mint sheets helped to identify each stamp position and are difficult to find. The demand exceeds the supply, hence an increase in value.

Today, different high-speed printing methods are used, eliminating the engraving errors of the past. You can now buy full mint sheets of modern stamps at 70 per cent of face value and supply exceeds demand. On the other hand, new printing errors are surfacing with some escaping detection and being sold in post offices.

Today, stamp collectors complain about post offices producing too many different stamps. How much is too many?

Post offices around the world are faced with rising mail delivery costs at the same time more efficient means exist to deliver written and spoken messages – methods not available to the general public about 20 years ago or so – namely fax, e-mail and Internet. Not only that, but governments everywhere are facing tax revolts. Post offices are trying to earn a profit to avoid financial problems. Denmark is trying to sell its mail handling business to either private interests or some other postal administration. South Africa has contracted its operations to New Zealand.

Coupled with that situation is the fact that the post office does not exist to satisfy the pleasures of philately, as some stamp collectors want to believe. Philately exists because of the post offices.

Most of the special stamps produced today are not aimed at philatelists. Many are aimed toward the souvenir or memorabilia collector. The Diana and Elvis stamps come to mind. These have been purchased mainly by people who have no interest in stamp collecting. To them, the stamp is one of many different collateral items associated with their hero (heroine) or special interest. Those market segments out-number philatelic collectors. Add the specialized topical philatelic collector to the mix. T-shirts, mugs and other trinkets sold by the post office fit neatly into a novelty category. What about the telephone cards being produced by different post and telegraph offices around the world?

The plus side of this marketing strategy by post offices is that the revenue from the sale of souvenir or memorabilia products is helping to reduce the costs of operating the mail service. The extra revenue is helping Canada Post to keep its postal rates among the lowest in the world. What is wrong with that? The simple fact is that your letter can be safely and securely delivered anywhere in the world at an affordable cost. You do not need a fax machine, computer or even electricity or phone connection for your message to be sent – nor does the receiver.

When all is said and done, you do not need much money to enjoy philately. You can pick up used stamps for pennies, if not entirely free. You may not become rich when you sell your collection, but you can get lasting enjoyment. On the other hand, some collectors spend millions of dollars and enjoy some of the rarest collectible items in the world. If that makes you happy and you have the spare cash, then go for it!

So, let's call a spade a spade. If an item is related to philately, let's call it philatelic. If the product is just a favour, souvenir, memorabilia, collateral, novelty, fake, forgery or phantom, let's give it the proper label instead of using confusing language. The next time you hear the word philatelic, ask the speaker what they mean. And if you are fed up collecting mint stamps, there are other worthwhile options. *

Judaica Canadiana: An Ambassador of Canadian Photography

By John Peebles

He is a master Canadian photographer. In fact, he has been called the Ambassador of Canadian Photography.

He is a Fellow of the Professional Photographers of Canada, a Fellow of the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain and a Fellow of the American Society of Photographers.

In 1990, he was awarded membership to the Order of Canada, the centrepiece of the Canadian system of honours. At the time, the Governor General, in making the presentation, noted that the honour "is a gracious and lasting way for a country to pay tribute to those who exemplify the highest qualities of citizenship and whose contributions enrich the lives of their contemporaries."

Prince Charles, Frank Sinatra, Oscar Peterson, Pope John Paul – these represent but a sampling of the personalities whom he has added to his portfolio over the years.

Of whom do we speak? Yousuf Karsh? No, Albert Gilbert.

Understandingly, the listed honours are those which one might associate with the legendary Ottawa photographer, Karsh. And, indeed, Toronto master portrait photographer Gilbert is often compared with Karsh. However, Gilbert, born on Nov. 18, 1922 in Toronto, has his own unique style of portrait art.

As one critic has noted of Gilbert's portraits, "These are more than mere head-and-shoulders shots. The personalities... jump off the photo paper." Gilbert himself has been quoted as saying the "portraiture is a lost art. To be able to give a subject warmth and try to pick up the personalities, to be able to observe and feel a situation, that's portraiture."

Gilbert's distinctive portrait style, which he calls journalistic portraiture, has earned him a bounty of national and international awards.

Among his noteworthy commissions is a project from the National Archives of Canada to photograph 25 leading Canadian personalities.

Another of his myriad of accomplishments in photography is that, since 1950, Gilbert has photographed all of the Prime Ministers of Israel. In 1998, officials from Brandeis University, located in the United States just outside of Boston, Massachusetts, ordered a supply of portraits of all the prime ministers of Israel to mark both the institution's and Israel's 50th anniversary.

Leah Rabin, widow of the late Yitzhak Rabin, asked Gilbert for a supply of 3,500 full colour 16 by 20 inch portraits of her slain husband in his memory and for display in every classroom in Israel. It was back on November 5, 1995, that the 73-year-old Israeli Prime Minister Rabin was assassinated shortly after addressing a peace rally in Tel Aviv. Unfortunately, the request from Leah Rabin was never completed. According to Gilbert, "extensive inquiries were made to have the portraits donated, but the plan was never successful because of complications of a tax exemption for overseas contributions."

Levi Eshkol (1895-1969)

Among Gilbert's collection is a portrait of Levi Eshkol (1895-1969), Israeli Prime Minister from 1963 to 1969, taken in 1968 during Eshkol's visit to Toronto. This portrait was chosen by Israeli postal authorities in 1970 to honour Eshkol on a stamp.

The 15a Israeli stamp (Scott No. 408) was issued on March 11, 1970. The Eshkol stamps were printed photolithography in panes of 15 stamps with five bottom tabs. The tab is inscribed "PRIME MINISTER OF ISRAEL 1963-1969" and bears the emblem of the state.

Levi Shkolnik was born in Ortove, Kiev Province, Ukraine on October 25, 1895. He later changed his name to Levi Eshkol. In 1914, at the age of 19, Eshkol immigrated to Israel where he began work as an agricultural labourer and political activist.

In 1951 Eshkol was appointed Minister of Agriculture and Development and from 1952 to 1963 he served as Minister of Finance. After the retirement of Ben-Gurion in 1963, Levi Eshkol assumed the post of Prime Minister and Minister of Defense. It was during his premiership that the Six Day War of June 1967 occurred. Eshkol died while in office on February 26, 1969, of a sudden heart attack suffered at his home in Jerusalem.

When asked about his memories of the Eshkol portrait, Gilbert noted that,

Stamp designer R. Beckman very effectively utilized the Gilbert portrait of Herzog.
The tab reads "PRESIDENT 1983-1993" and bears the state emblem.

"The portrait session took place at the Four Seasons Hotel in Toronto." Gilbert further recalled the circumstances around the photography session with Eshkol thus:

"The day began with a press conference at the airport hotel. I was there to take some candid photographs. I was surprised by his appearance. I had never met him prior and any of the photographs taken certainly didn't capture his true appearance. Immediately, I noticed his thick prescription glasses and realized they completely obstructed his eyes when any flash unit was directed at him. I quickly captured the images that I needed on film and rushed off to the lab for quick processing. I then took the finished proofs from the conference to a nearby optical centre to find a matching pair of eyeglass frames and purchased them without any glass.

"In the afternoon, there was a room set aside for the official portrait session. I used a blue cloth as a backdrop as representation of Israel. When Levi Eshkol entered the room I greeted him and we shared a few moments of conversation. Then I presented him with the new eyeglass frames. He questioned the need. I then showed him a few photographs taken earlier that day at the press conference. I explained that his prescription glasses obstructed his eyes from view. He simply smiled and obliged me.

"The session was brief, but memorable. I had the film rushed at the lab and a completed portrait was in my hands the next day. I was able to visit with Eshkol a second time to have the finished portrait signed by him. He was thrilled with the dynamic image I had created and appreciated having a copy to take back to Israel."

Chaim Herzog (1918-1997)

Shortly after the death of Chaim Herzog in 1997, Gilbert sent a letter of sympathy to the Herzog family along with a gift of copies of a previously commissioned portrait of Herzog that had been completed in 1989 when Herzog visited Canada. The Herzogs were extremely pleased with the gesture and replied by requesting permission to use the portrait for various publishings. In addition, permission was asked to use the portrait for a commemorative stamp to be issued by Israel in 1998. Hence, for the second time in his career, Gilbert would see Israel issue a stamp bearing one of his portraits.

Among Albert Gilbert's photographic achievements are portraits of Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol and President Chaim Herzog.

The 5.35 shekel stamp (Sc. 1329) was released on February 17, 1998. Stamp designer R. Beckman very effectively utilized the Gilbert portrait of Herzog. The stamps were printed offset by the Israeli Government Printers in panes of 15 stamps, the bottom five of which have tabs. The tab reads "PRESIDENT 1983-1993" and bears the state emblem.

Herzog emigrated to Palestine in 1935. In 1975 Herzog was appointed Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations. He was elected to Israel's Knesset as a Labour Party member in 1981 and was elected the Sixth President of the State in May 1983. In 1988 he was reelected for a second five-year term. He died in April 1997.

Again, Gilbert was asked to recall the time of the Herzog photograph. He remembered:

"The portrait of Chaim Herzog was also taken at the Four Seasons Hotel in Toronto. It was during his visit in 1989. Arrangements were made through the Council General's office. I brought and assembled all my portraits of the previous Prime Ministers of Israel in the official portrait session room. Mr. Herzog was impressed with the collection. Showing him my style and quality of work quickly put him at ease and the session proved to be a success."

A History of Excellence in Photography

The Gilbert Studio was established in Toronto in 1922 by Al's father Nathan Gilbert. The younger Gilbert took over the photography studio in 1945. In 1997, the City of Toronto honoured him on the 75th anniversary of Gilbert Studio with a gala reception and exhibition held at Metro Hall.

Throughout the world, from Australia to Iceland, from China to Russia and many points in between, Gilbert has lectured extensively on the style and techniques of photography.

Yes, master Canadian photographer Gilbert is held in high esteem around the globe for his work. And, his art form has been given lasting fame, for stamp collectors and the stamp-buying public in general, on the stamps of Israel. *

Early French Cancels – Losange

In France, from the time of the imperforate Emperor Louis Napoleon stamps (1853) through the perforated Head of Ceres issue (ending in 1875), the most common cancellation was an eight by eight diamond-of-dots. In French, this is called a losange. It has short numerals or letters, petits chiffres (PC), or tall numerals, gros chiffres (GC), in the centre. PC numerals are about three mm high and GC numerals are some six mm high. Figure 1 shows the arrangement of dots for the PC cancellation for Alexandria, Egypt. Figure 2 is the GC cancel for the same city.

PC cancels were used from 1852 until 1863. Thus they are common on the imperforate and perforated emperor stamps. The PC cancels were assigned to individual French cities and towns in alphabetical order; PC 1 for Abbeville, and PC 3703 for Yvré-l'Évêque. PC 3704 started a new alphabetical sequence for cities outside France, thus 3704's use for Alexandria.

Part Two

In France, from the time of the imperforate Emperor Louis Napoleon stamps (1853) through the perforated Head of Ceres issue (ending in 1875), the most common cancellation was an eight by eight diamond-of-dots. In French, this is called a losange. It has short numerals or letters, petits chiffres (PC), or tall numerals, gros chiffres (GC), in the centre. PC numerals are about three mm high and GC numerals are some six mm high. Figure 1 shows the arrangement of dots for the PC cancellation for Alexandria, Egypt. Figure 2 is the GC cancel for the same city.

PC cancels were used from 1852 until 1863. Thus they are common on the imperforate and perforated emperor stamps. The PC cancels were assigned to individual French cities and towns in alphabetical order; PC 1 for Abbeville, and PC 3703 for Yvré-l'Évêque. PC 3704 started a new alphabetical sequence for cities outside France, thus 3704's use for Alexandria.

GC cancels came into use at the time of the emperor-with-laurel-wreath issue of 1863. GC cancels too were assigned alphabetically. GC 1-4361 were original assignments. GC 4362-4999 were later metropolitan post offices, and 6000-6449 even later post offices. GC cancels 5000-5172 were used in foreign cities and towns. The obsolete PC cancels were sent to the city now using the number. Thus PC 1002 for Courtenay was sent to Cherbourg, GC 1002. Occasionally the PC cancel was used again, creating the PC of GC usage. Figure 3 shows a PC of GC cancel.

How does one recognize PC of GC usage? If a PC cancel is on any stamp from the emperor-with-laurel-wreath or a later issue, it is PC of GC usage. There are some situations when the PC cancel is more valuable in its original location and others when its value increases in PC of GC usage.

With some of the smaller numbers in GC cancellations, the space at the ends is filled with a horizontal line, a stylistic variation. Figure 4 shows GC-40, from Aix-en-Othe. When the losange first went into use, Paris post offices used letters and numerals with serifs (Figure 5). Later, branch post offices in Paris used letters and numerals without serifs, as seen in Figure 6.

Near the end of the losange period, the star-and-number cancel (Figure 7) came into use at Paris branch post offices. Usually, what appears to be a GC cancel with a one or two digit number is really a Paris six-sided star cancel.

Here is the answer to an eventual question. No, one cannot determine whether a number with only 6s and 9s is 6s and 9s or 9s and 6s, unless it has an associated date stamp to determine the city. Thus 66 could be 99, for example.

France used sans serifs letters in the losange for rail route cancels. Figure 8 is from the Toulouse station for the Toulouse-to-Bordeaux train. Figure 9 shows the "(P) GSO" cancel from a Paris train station, the Gare du Sud-Ouest.

How does one know the letters in Figure 9 are PGSO? In a losange, the characters are centred. Looking at Figure 9, "SO" is right of the centreline (from top centre dot down), so there also must be two characters to the left of the centreline. The only four-character combination ending in "GSO" is "PGSO" for Paris Gare du Sud-Ouest. Look at Figure 9 again; there does seem to be the right tip of the loop of the "P" just where it should be.

losange plein). A losange plein cancel on an imperforate copy of the emperor-with-laurel-wreath or perforated Head of Ceres issue strongly suggests that the stamp is really a French Colonies general issue imperforate. Many colonial cancels had dots filling the losange. It is more likely that a losange plein cancel is from a colony if the cancel is in colour. Colour is much more common on a colonial cancel than as a metropolitan one.

What a strange looking PC cancellation is in Figure 16! The number is not centered in the losange. The circular date stamp is for Cherbourg, but the PC cancel looks like 1202, and Cherbourg is PC 842. The date is 1874, but PC use essentially ended in 1862. The diamond-of-dots cancel is eight dots wide and 10 dots high but should be eight by eight.

Analysis: the clerk canceling the stamp seems to have used the cancel once, but not been satisfied with the resulting partial strike.

The clerk canceled the stamp again, a little lower and to the right, producing a higher-than-normal diamond and off-centre number.

This explains the difficulty in reading the second numeral, which could be a 2, 1, or 0. The appearance of a "1" is caused by the 1 from the first strike. The appearance of a "2" is from the top of the first 0 from the second strike and the 1 from the first strike. Thus it is a 0.

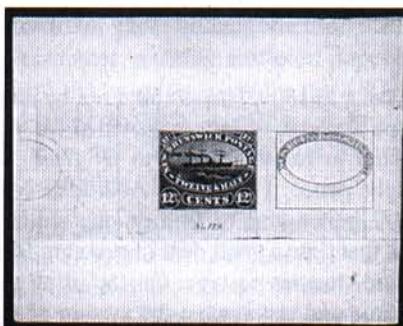

What leads to belief that the cancellation is 1002? Being thrifty, the French postal service moved the PC cancels from their original offices to wherever the same number was to be used for GC cancellations. If the GC cancel were unavailable, the PC cancel would be used. In this case, Courtenay's PC 1002 was moved to Cherbourg, GC 1002 for use as needed. Thus 1002 is indeed a losange cancel for Cherbourg. *

Prepaid Postage, Why?

By Hugh Delaney

In his masterpiece, Sixty Years a Queen, published for the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria, Sir Herbert Maxwell, Bart, M.P. in Great Britain, told the fascinating side bar story of how the Post Office changed from charging recipients, to charging the sender of mail. It should be repeated, and so this article will quote from that historical record and go further to tell the story of postage in Canada with reference to the work of John S. Ewart in his book, The Kingdom of Canada Imperial Federation, the Colonial Conferences, the Alaska Boundary and Other Essays. Now there's a mouthful title to remember!

According to Sir Herbert, with probable political tongue in cheek, the crowning achievement of Lord Melbourne's administration, originated not with a minister or one of the bureaucracy, but with a humble school teacher. The inventor as everyone who collects stamps knows, was Sir Rowland Hill, the son of a schoolmaster. He loved arithmetic and became a mathematical master in his father's school.

Hill with his bent for figures, studied post office statistics after he heard an anecdote of the writer Coleridge. According to the story he related, Coleridge was in the Lake District of England when he happened to see a poor woman refuse to accept delivery of a letter from a postman because she could not afford to pay the postage – one shilling. This took place around the year 1836. He learned that the letter was from the lady's brother and so he offered to pay the fee, even though the lady demurred. When the postman turned away, the woman showed Coleridge the letter which consisted of a blank sheet. She explained that her brother agreed to send her a blank sheet once a quarter as long as everything was going well with him, marking the cover so that she would not have to accept delivery and therefore wouldn't have to pay postage. Hill ascertained from this that the system held to an economic fallacy and became determined to devise a means to remedy it.

In 1837, he published his design in pamphlet form, proposing that a smaller fee charged for carrying letters would bring about a greater use and therefore a larger profit to the Post Office Department. His recommendation called for a uniform rate of one penny per half ounce, regardless of how far the letter would have to travel in England. This proposal to the public service of a commercial principle by which fortunes had been repeatedly achieved by private business was condemned out of hand by the post office authorities. Indeed, Lord Lichfield, the Postmaster General, declared in the House of Lords that the idea was "the wildest and most extravagant scheme he had ever listened to." The Secretary to the Post Office, Colonel Maberly predicted the concept was doomed to fail, although it was his opinion that it should not be impeded, because to do so, the government would be blamed for not giving it a trial. All around, it seems that any praise was faint indeed. Sydney Smith who was quoted a representing public opinion, opined thus: "a million of revenue is given up to the nonsensical Penny Post Scheme, to please my old, excellent and universally dissentient friend, Noah Warburton. I admire the Whig Ministry and think they have done more good things than all the ministries since the Revolution; but these concessions are sad and unworthy marks of weakness and fill reasonable men with alarm." The Noah Warburton referred to was, along with Wallace, two members of Parliament who supported Hill's ideal.

Ultimately, it fell to Spring Rice, Chancellor of the Exchequer to have the courage to get the Bill through, even though he faced the prospect of a 750,000-pound deficit. The motion however, passed with a majority of 102. As Sir Herbert chronicled nearly 60 years later, this "offspring of genius of an obscure mathematical teacher and so modestly brought to light, has since been adopted by every civilized community in the world."

Looking back to 1839, letters could not be prepaid; distance, weight, shape and size of letters provided for various charges. A letter posted in London to go to Brighton would cost the recipient eight pence; London to Aberdeen cost one shilling three and 1/2 pence and to Belfast one shilling four pence. There was at that time a great deal of pressure from commercial centres to find cheaper postage. On top of all these pressures, there was a hue and cry against the system of Official Franks. A privilege of free postage for members of the government and Parliament was well abused and was passed on to their friends and relatives by the various members who wrote their names on covers and handed them out. Revenue was thus defrauded and those least able to bear the cost paid higher fees in order that the Post Office Department could make up the losses generated by the free service. Because of the high rates by the post office, people had been driven to various means of infringing the monopoly. All kinds of illegal and clandestine enterprises abounded to carry letters at cheaper rates.

When Hill brought forward his plan, it was proven that five-sixths of correspondence had been smuggled for many years. In the years between 1815 and 1835 the population had grown by 30 per cent and the stagecoach duty by 128 per cent, yet the post office revenue had remained stationary.

Needless to say, reducing the rate from six-pence farthing to one penny, was startling. Originally the Commons Committee had proposed a uniform two penny rate, but the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Rice was convinced that the loss (as most were sure there must be a loss for the Department) would be less from a penny rate and estimated the loss at about £700,000.

No one could have foreseen the actual results. In 1837, there were 80,000 letters and 44,000 newspapers delivered by the post office in the British Isles. In the fiscal 1895-96 year; exclusive of telegrams which now came under the post office, the figure was 2,248 times the volume of 1837 or a figure of 3,031,553,196 with a net profit of £3,632,122.

As an aside, the value of property found in letters opened in the Returned Letter Offices in 1896 amounted to £580,000.

So the Penny Postage became a fact early in the reign of Queen Victoria in the year 1840.

On August 1, 1883, Parcel Postage was introduced in Great Britain and 25 million parcels were delivered the first year. In 1895-96, the number of inland parcels delivered was 60.5 million.

Meanwhile in Canada in 1908, John S. Ewart discussed Imperial Postage as one of the methods of Consolidating the Empire as a Canadian success story. He said: "Even the originators of the postal system must have had some conception of its tremendous educational as well as commercial advantages and no one doubts that cheap postage is a powerful aid in the dissemination of culture as well as in the advancement of the world's welfare." This quotation is over 90 years old. Referring to the United Kingdom with short distances, a dense population and good transportation, letters are charged a minimum rate of one penny and in 1905 the surplus revenue was $18 million. However, Canada's approach had to be different with immense distances, a thinly scattered population and, in many cases, primitive transportation in the 1800s, the minimum letter rate used in 1908 was the same as in the UK, which meant that the Canadian postal system was not designed to be profitable.

When Britain managed affairs in the Canadian Colonies between 1763 and 1851, the British idea was the postal system should make money and thousands of dollars were sent to London as profits on the Canadian operations. When Canada took over management of the Colonial System in 1851, the average rate for a letter dropped from 18 cents per half ounce to six cents. During the next four years, the revenue climbed from $230,629 in 1852 to $368,166 in 1855.

In 1868, a year after Confederation, the letter rate was fixed at three cents per ounce and in 1899 it dropped to two cents per ounce. Canada's mail system delivered letters from Sydney, Nova Scotia to Dawson, Yukon – 5,495 miles for the two cents rate, while Britain's Penny Postage had to travel a maximum of 900 miles. Also in 1868, the rate from Canada to Britain was 12-1/2 cents per ounce. Two years later, it dropped to six cents and to five cents in 1875. In 1897 the Canadian Postmaster General took unilateral action over the objections of Britain and issued a notice that after January 1, 1898, letters to the U.K. would be three cents per ounce. Britain declared it would not accept letters with that charge.

The ramifications of postage rates on newspapers, magazines and periodicals between the UK and Canada and between Canada and the U.S. is another study entirely. It is a further portent of the ongoing battle between the Canadian and U.S. publishers and the Canadian and American government.

Meanwhile the penny postage rate went the route of the dodo bird. Nearly every year sees postal rate increases and the structure of the postal system continuing to evolve, with the Canadian system trying to become a profitable Crown Corporation. However, the idea of the first quotation I registered in this essay, regarding Canada's postal system is now very evident in the number of commemorative stamps issued each year and the variety of definitive stamps being issued every few years. I suppose the next question is: Where to now?

Editor's Note

The history of the introduction of the Imperial Penny Post is much lengthier than above. The Imperial rate for letters within the British Empire was initiated by the British Post Office on Sept. 23, 1897. At that time, the proposed rate was 2d (four cents). Mulock suggested 1.5d (three cents). A conference of Colonial Postmasters was called for in July 1898. When Mulock arrived in London to attend the conference, he was informed that the British Post Master favoured a 1d rate (two cents) due to political pressures within England and intervention by the American post office. Holograms on Stamps

by Joseph Monteiro

Introduction

Holograms have a tantalizing effect on most collectors who attempt to examine them in great detail. This is hardly surprising as the three dimensional image creates different colours when viewed from different angles in the light. As a result of its captivating effect, the use of holography is quite common in paintings and works of art. It provides art with the additional depth and meaning that a painter cannot readily capture merely with the use of ordinary colour while its use is fairly recent, its discovery dates back to nearly half a century ago. In 1947, Dennis Gabor in Great Britain discovered holography when he attempted to correct distortions in images produced by electron microscopes.

The Use of Hologram on Stamps

The first country to have used a hologram on stamp was Austria on October 18, 1988. A hologram was used on an 8-schilling stamp to publicize the Federal Economic Chamber Export Congress. While Austria is to be credited with the honour of being the first country for its use on stamps, Australia is the first country to have used a hologram on an envelope to celebrate a philatelic event. A hologram was used on an envelope to inaugurate Expo 1988 at Brisbane on April 29, 1988, however its hologram was not part of the postal rate. This innovative approach to producing stamps has since been imitated by several other countries throughout the world.

Several other innovative uses of holograms in connection with philately have also been employed. The first country to use a hologram on a postal envelope as part of the postal rate was United States of America on December 13, 1989. Other countries that used holograms in innovative fashions for the first time were: Brazil (used on a souvenir sheet); Finland (use of a hologram cut as a circle); Finland (use of holograms on a postcard); Tonga (use of hologram in a booklet); St. Vincent & Grenadines (use of a self-adhesive hologram); Canada (uncut sheet). The possibility of falling into its distinctive group have not yet been fully exhausted. Holograms have not been used on: aerogrammes, or cut in forms or shapes e.g. triangles, etc. or multiple holograms on a single stamp, etc.

I believe that the use of holograms on stamps were not used for security purposes to discourage counterfeits as in the case of bank notes (e.g. Australia used a hologram on a $10 bank note depicting Captain James Cook in February 1988) and credit cards but more as a novelty. Their use for these other purposes can be traced to periods predating April 1988. It is also worthwhile noting that the idea of attempting to form a three-dimensional image (i.e., 3-D) a picture is not new. Bhutan produced 3-D postage stamps as early as 1967, however, here no hologram was used but a millimetre or less of transparent plastic coating was used on top of the image which produced the 3-D effect.

The list of stamps or postal stationery that have used holograms are shown in the table on the next page.

A Brief Description on the History of Holography and How a Hologram is Made

The description that follows (other than where indicated) has largely been adapted from an article in the Globe and Mail (Olmstead, Amy, "Charge of the light brigade,") for a more thorough and in depth description refer to the book (Holographic Night Sky) on which the above article is based. We shall first review the history.

- In 1947, holography was invented by Denis Gabor in Britain when he corrected distortions, in images produced by electron microscopes. He made rudimentary holograms with a mercury lamp and coined the term 'hologram' meaning completely written or complete information, to describe the new way of recording images.

- In 1962, a couple of years after the laser was invented, the possibility of creating quality holograms became feasible. This sparked interest in the study of holographic production.

- After 1967, it was possible to view holograms in white light and not just under lasers. As a result new surfaces for recording holograms were developed. Thereafter colour holography was developed which used three different coloured lasers. Further developments involved making holograms more realistic, large and colourful.

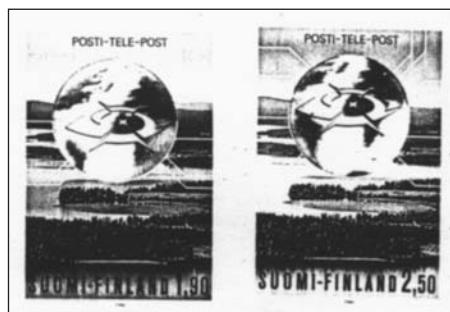

- In 1971, Mr. Gabor won the Nobel Prize in physics for his work in the development of holography.

- In 1977, the use of holography was promoted by its use in the movies. A 3-D moving, talking image of Princess Leia was projected by droid R2-D2 in Star Wars.

- In 1984, the use of holography was further promoted by the appearance of an eagle on the cover of National Geographic and later in December 1988 by the appearance of the globe.

- In 1988, holograms were used for the first time on bank notes and on postage stamps.

- In the 1990s, holograms began to be widely used in the creation of paintings and art work.

A description of how the Canadian hologram stamp (Scott No. 1442) was made was published in The Secrets of a Hologram (Canada Post Corporation).

- The space shuttle in the Canadian hologram is actually reproduced from a tiny model, hand carved and cast, with all the details painted on by hand.

- The second step is making the master hologram. The model to be photographed is mounted on a special table containing both the laser and the photographic film. The table must not vibrate more than six millionths of a millimetre. The laser beam glances off the model thereby recording the information of its shape, and continues on to expose the film. In ordinary light, the film appears to contain nothing but faint scattered dots. If a laser were focussed back through the film you would see a three dimensional object resting out in space.

- The final step is creating the holograms to be affixed to the stamp. These holograms are created by embossing. The master hologram is turned into microscopic pits in a fine layer of nickel. A special plate is then created to emboss the microscopic pits into a clear plastic film. Finally, one side of its clear film is coated with a thin layer of aluminum that acts as a mirror, bouncing light back through the embossed hologram. The result is a three-dimensional image. As the hologram is viewed at an angle with respect to the light, the globe, Canada and the shuttle appear with a different light.

It appears that the above method may be replaced by a more sophisticated modern method using computer technology to create the hologram. The following is a brief description of how a hologram is made using this technology. It is a casual description rather than a technical description (see Globe and Mail for the following extracts).

- First, a 3-D representation of the character is constructed in a computer, using 3-D animation software. Within computer software, a virtual camera is then moved around the character to create a series of 2-D images showing it from different angles. A separate computer feeds these images to a holographic printer, a computer-controlled robotic device.

- Second, a holographic printer uses the light from a laser beam to record images onto holographic film. The laser beam is split in two by a beam splitter. The two beams are then spread by lenses called beam expanders. The beam reflected off of the object illuminates a liquid crystal display (i.e., LCD) that is backed by a diffusion panel. The LCD presents the 2-D images to be recorded on the holographic film. The other beam – called the reference beam – illuminates the film from a 45° angle. (Nothing can move more than a few billionths of an inch, or the image will be ruined; therefore, a vibration isolation system is used to keep everything still).

- Finally, the two laser beams interact to form a thin vertical strip on the film. Using a ‘translating slit’, the printer creates a series of strips, one for each of the 2-D images recorded by the virtual camera. When you look at a hologram, each eye sees the image from a slightly different viewpoint. The brain interprets this as a 3-D image.

Due to the different material used in producing holograms, their quality is not constant, some are shiny while others are not. As a result, doubts may arise in the minds of some collectors whether some of the stamps listed in the preceding table are true holograms. Some suggest that the holograms of Australia are not real.

What Are the Most Common Types of Errors on Stamps that Arise When Holograms are Used?

1. The cut of the holograms.

- Holograms are not always cut identically. As a result, the design on the hologram is not always identical.

2. The adhesion of the hologram on the stamp.

- Holograms are not always glued on the exact position of the stamp.

- Holograms are sometimes not glued or may fall off.

- Multiple holograms may be glued.

- Holograms that are glued upside down or inverted.

- Holograms that are not glued (sometimes described as imperforate).

3. Errors resulting from technical production or manufacture of the hologram.

- Design on the hologram may be missing.

- The hologram may contain impressions that were not supposed to be on the hologram.

4. Others.

- Holograms on imperforate or partial imperforate stamps.

- Holograms on stamps with different perforations or on different paper.

- Holograms on stamps with some design (not part of the hologram) on the stamp missing.

- Other types of major errors known to exist (missing colour, missing, inscription, inverts) other than on the hologram.

Conclusion

The use of holograms on stamps is one of the novel developments in the production of stamps. It heralds the growth of a new and distinct thematic field in philately. This is witnessed not only in the advertisements of a number of stamps agencies but also in the increase in the number of new countries that have produced holographic stamps for the first time.

One of the reasons why not very many countries have used this technology is the cost involved in the production of holograms. Another and perhaps more important reason is the complex technology involved in its production. This however may all be changing, as computer technology and sophisticated software is being designed for the production of holograms making its use more commercially viable than in the past.

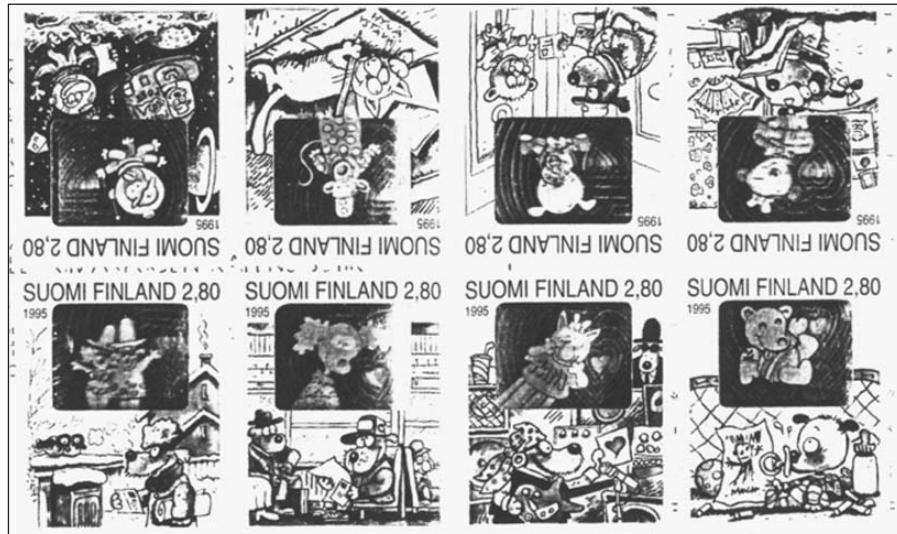

As we enter the new millennium we can expect to see an ever increasing use of this new technology in the production of stamps by various countries, especially as post offices gear up for marketing their new products in the new millennium. Recently, I was informed and shown a stamp that Canada had printed with a hologram (the second one), it is one of the most beautiful holograms that I have seen on a stamp so far with a universal message of PEACE PAIX LOVE AMOUR in the holographic text surrounding the stamp. Perhaps, if all countries adhere to the message that Canada wishes to convey, we can build and create a better world that can grow and live in peace and harmony which ultimately will lead to a better distribution of wealth both within a nation and between nations.

RPSC Annual Meeting / SRPC le congrès annuel

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the Annual Meeting of the Members of THE ROYAL PHILATELIC SOCIETY OF CANADA (hereinafter called the 'Society') will be held at the Marlborough Hotel, Winnipeg, Manitoba on Saturday, the 29th day of April 2000, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon (local time) for the purpose of:

1. Receiving and considering the financial statements of the Society as at December 31, 1999 and the reports of the Directors and auditors thereon;
2. The Election of Directors and the appointment of auditors;
3. Considering, and if approved, ratifying, sanctioning and confirming all bylaws, contracts, acts and proceedings of the Board of Directors of the Society enacted, made, done or taken since the last annual meeting of Members of the Society;
4. To approve such increase in the annual dues as the Directors may suggest*; and
5. The transaction of such further and other business as may properly come before the meeting or any adjournment thereof.

DATED this 9th day of February, 2000.

By Order,
H. Sutherland
Secretary

* The Board of Directors is recommending that the annual membership renewal dues be increased to $30.00 from the $25.00 level that has existed for many years. Increasing production and distribution expenses associated with The Canadian Philatelist as well as the costs of maintaining an effective National Office presence for members must be addressed realistically to ensure a financially strong Society.

VEUILLEZ NOTER que le congrès annuel des membres de LA SOCIÉTÉ ROYALE DE PHILATÉLIE DU CANADA (ci-après, la Société) se déroulera au Marlborough Hotel, Winnipeg, Manitoba, le samedi 29 avril 2000 à 10 heures (heure locale) avec à l'ordre du jour :

1. Réception et examen des relevés financiers de la Société en date du 31 décembre 1999 et des rapports des directeurs et vérificateurs sur le sujet;
2. Élection des directeurs et nomination des administrateurs;
3. Étude et, en cas d'approbation, ratification, autorisation et confirmation de tous statuts, contrats, actes et délibérations du Conseil d'administration de la Société qui auront été décrétés, passés, effectués ou arrêtés depuis le dernier congrès annuel des membres de la Société;
4. Approbation d'augmentation des frais d'adhésion tel que proposé par les directeurs; * et,
5. Transaction de décisions comparables et d'autres questions devant être traitées avant la réunion ou son ajournement.

FAIT le 9 février 2000.

Par ordre du Conseil,
H. Sutherland
Secrétaire

* Le Conseil d'administration suggère que la cotisation annuelle d'adhésion passe des 25$ demandés depuis de nombreuses années à 30$. La hausse des dépenses de production et de distribution du Philatéliste canadien, ainsi que les frais liés au fonctionnement efficace du Bureau national pour le service des membres doivent être considérés de façon réaliste afin de garantir l'équilibre financier de la Société.

Nomination of Directors / La nomination des directeurs

The following members of The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada have been nominated to serve as Directors for a two year period, from 2000 to 2002. Nominees are listed in alphabetical order. In compliance with the bylaws of the Society, short biographies of the nominees are included. A proxy form is included in this issue for the use of those unable to attend the Annual General Meeting.

Les membres suivants de La Société royale de philatélie du Canada sont présentés pour élection comme directeurs, pour un terme de deux ans, de 2000 à 2002. Les candidats sont présentés par ordre alphabétique. Selon les règlements de la Société, une biographie carte des candidats est inclus. Une procuration est inclus pour tous ceux qui ne pourront pas assister à l'assemblée générale annuelle de la Société.

Leon Balian

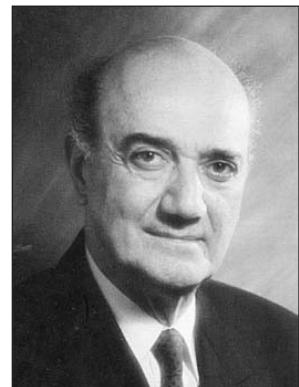

Pierrefonds, QC

M. L. Y. Balian, mieux connu de ses amis comme Leon, est né au Caire en Égypte. Il a commencé à collectionner les timbres à l'âge de 13 ans quand un vieil ami de la famille lui donna une centaine de timbres avec un ancien catalogue lui promettant de doubler cette quantité s'il pouvait identifier au moins 75 d'entre eux. Cela le motiva à apprendre comment lire un catalogue, certainement une base solide pour une carrière philatélique.

En 1964, il joignit la Société Philatélique d'Égypte. Il assista à sa première exposition philatélique, "London 1970" où il rencontra plusieurs de ses collègues actuels de l' «Egypt Study Circle». Des lors il devient un 'mordu' de tout ce qui a rapport de loin ou de près à la philatélie et depuis a rarement manqué d'assister à une expo de timbres. Résidant au Canada depuis 1988, il est un membre actif du Club philatélique du Lakeshore.

Ayant une vaste variété d'intérêts dans les émissions classiques, spécialement celles de la Grande Bretagne, de la France et de la Grèce, il est particulièrement spécialisé dans la période classique d'Égypte. Ses collections ont été exposées avec succès dans plusieurs expositions internationaux comme CAPEX, et ont été gagné des prix. Il est aussi l'auteur du catalogue hautement spécialisé «Stamps of Egypt» qui lui a valu de gagner une médaille d'or à l'APS STAMPSHOW (Cleveland, 1999).

M.L.Y. Balian, better known to his friends as Leon was born in Cairo, Egypt. He began collecting stamps at the age of 13, when an old friend of the family gave him 100 stamps and an old catalogue and promised to double the amount if he would identify at least 75 of them. This made him learn how to read a catalogue, certainly the right foundation for a philatelic career.

In 1964 he joined the Philatelic Society of Egypt. He attended his first philatelic exhibition the London 1970 where he met many of his present colleagues of the Egypt Study Circle. From then on he was hooked to anything philatelic and has rarely, ever since, missed attending any stamp show. Residing in Canada since 1988, he is an active member of the Lakeshore Stamp Club.

With a wide variety of interests particularly in the classic issues of Great Britain, France and Greece, he is currently specializing in the classical period of Egypt. His collections have been exhibited with much success in several International Exhibitions, including CAPEX. He is also the author of the highly specialized Stamps of Egypt coloured catalogue, which recently earned him a Gold medal at the APS STAMPSHOW in Cleveland in 1999.

F. Warren Dickson

Toronto, ON

Born in Toronto, ex police officer, Owner/President of Warren Protective Services Ltd. Security & Investigation.

Past President of the Philatelic Specialist Society of Canada.

National level judge.

Chairman of the Anti-Theft Committee for The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada.

Multiple international awards for his Estonian Collection. Specialty: Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Scandinavia and Germany.

F. Warren Dickson

Kenneth H. Magee

Clinton, ON

Ken Magee is standing for re-election to a second term as a Director.

He became more active in stamp activities when he retired in 1996 after more than 31 years as an elementary school teacher. His father introduced him to collecting when Ken was six. Ken later specialized in Ireland, Aden, the Faroes and Greenland, besides continuing his late father's collections of Canada and Scouts on Stamps. He has lately developed exhibits of Mesopotamia and the Palestine Mandate. He continues to show several different exhibits locally and nationally. His traditional exhibit, IRELAND, 1840-1901, has received international golds the last three years.

Kenneth H. Magee

Ken is a member of many local, national and international stamp clubs. He is currently a director of the Stratford Stamp Club and a representative to the Grand River Valley Philatelic Association executive meetings. He was the unofficial co-ordinator of the GRVPA-backed project to develop a standardized local-level judging sheet (recently featured in the January-February 2000 issue of The Canadian Philatelist.)

He has been a local/regional philatelic judge in south-western Ontario since 1985, gaining his national level certification in 1999. He believes there has to be more aid and encouragement for exhibitors at the local level, especially for novices, as well as more publicity for the Royal, to encourage new members.

His non-philatelic interests include reading, computer, walking, nature, music and cross-country skiing.

J. Graham McCleave, M.D.

Fredericton, New Brunswick

Born in Digby, NS, Graham began collecting stamps as a member of the school stamp club. He attended Dalhousie University, receiving his M.D. in 1963.

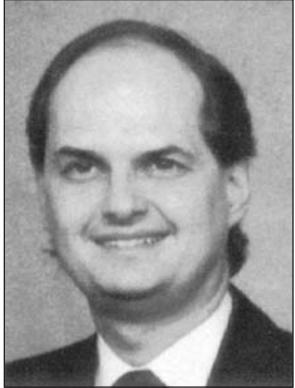

Following six years in general practice in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, he returned to Dalhousie University for post-graduate training. In 1973 he received his fellowship in Diagnostic Radiology. Since 1973 he has been a radiologist in Fredericton, NB, where he and his wife Louise live.

J. Graham McCleave, M.D.

Graham has continued to have a general interest in stamps while limiting his collection to BNA, especially early Canada and the Cents Issues of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Recently, he has added stampless covers of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia to his list.

While attending university, he joined the Nova Scotia Stamp Club and is still a member today. He has exhibited at their annual show regularly. He has also been The RPSC liaison member for the Fredericton Stamp Club.

Rick Penko

Winnipeg, Manitoba

Rick Penko is presently Chairman of the committee which is preparing the RPSC Show in Winnipeg this year. He joined WPS as a junior in 1966 and, after the usual break as a youth and the initial period of marriage and beginning a family, rejoined in 1991 as a life member.

Rick Penko

Rick is also a life member of The RPSC and a member of BNAPS and is active in the regional study group. He is involved in the Elizabeth II and Centennial study groups being undertaken by that body. He has been Chairman of the local and national WPS annual shows for the past seven years.

Rick has been a leader in revitalizing the stamp collecting community in Winnipeg. As president of WPS, he has encouraged cooperation between WPS and the Seniors' Stamp Club, the Scandinavian Collectors Club of Manitoba, and the Junior Stamp Club of Winnipeg.

He publishes The Buffalo, the journal of the Winnipeg Philatelic Society where he has added his graphic skills to the publication for the past several years.

He is a member of the Stamp Advisory Committee of Canada Post and brings to that body his graphic skills knowledge gained from his own business, Compass Communications and has 25 years experience in the Graphic Arts field. He is married and the father of two children.

Rick is an accredited RPSC judge and has exhibited locally. He has several years of judging experience and was an apprentice member of the judges at the Compex Exhibition held in Chicago in 1994.

Rick's collecting interests are extensive. Besides Canada, Rick specializes in the stamps of the United States and Great Britain, Germany and Bangladesh. He has joined APS and has built up an extensive library of material related to his collecting interests.

Was Western Canadian Commissioner for the Youth International in Montreal (1992), and for many years has helped run junior clubs in Edmonton. A National accredited judge who has judged in three countries, and has six exhibits in the areas of traditional, postal history and revenues, qualified for international exhibitions. Currently he is Chairperson of the RPSC Judging Program, and ex-officio member of American Philatelic Society's Committee on Accreditation of National Exhibitions and Judges. John is a member of over 20 philatelic societies or study groups, including in North America the American Philatelic Society, British North America Philatelic Society, Postal History Society of Canada, American Revenue Association, American Topical Association, American Association of Philatelic Exhibitors, Turkish Ottoman Philatelic Society, Great Britain Collectors Club, The Perfin Club, and American Society of Polar Philatelists.

John M. Powell, Ph.D.

His collecting interests are diverse as can be judged by his membership in various groups. John has specialized in Aden and Iraq since high school days. Has a general interest in Canada and Great Britain. Collects Canadian 'Arctic' 1950-1980's postal history; GB numeral and squared circle postmarks, 'railway' missorts (1903-1915), 1937 Coronation stamp; Greenland postmarks; India Sea post offices, and India used abroad in Aden and Iraq; all aspects of Aden and Iraq issues and postal history including revenues; a few topical interests - International Geophysical Year, Belgium World Fair 1958, polar bears, and those collected by his daughters; and continues his father's interest in worldwide perfins. How Do I Know What I Want to Collect?

A Free-Form Plan for Beginning Collecting All Things Philatelic

by Arlene Sullivan

One piece of advice that I often see given to novice collectors is collect what you enjoy. While the sentiment may seem sensible, I wonder just how much a beginning collector can miss if they take this advice too literally. There are several consequences that can arise from limiting your collecting too early on.

Narrowing your collecting focus can preclude many opportunities for learning aspects of philately that are important no matter what topic you finally settle on.

Frustration can result from unknowingly limiting your collecting to an area that will sooner or later require more expertise and spare cash than you have.

(I'd love to have an exhibit grade collection of the beautiful Canadian Bluenose stamp, for instance, but that goal would leave me with only blank album pages at this stage in my life – not very satisfying!)

Too rigid collecting boundaries can also limit serendipity, that wonderful conjunction of preparedness and luck that can open some very interesting collecting areas that may not be immediately apparent to a beginner.

Collecting what you enjoy is important, of course, but I think that finding out what you enjoy and can afford collecting is a process that takes considerably more time and study than this piece of advice would indicate.

So how should a beginner go about discovering what they want to collect?

Here's a few points that I think are worth considering.

Don't worry about the investment potential. If your first concern collecting stamps is monetary return, consider a different hobby. Yes, there are finds out there and it is possible to make a living in the philatelic field – but you will never have the knowledge to do either successfully if you don't concern yourself first with enjoying what you collect and learning all you can about it. That, to me, means concentrating on the 99 per cent of philatelic materials that will never be investment grade! This is a hobby, after all. Get away from the late 20th century tendency to monetize every aspect of life and relax a little!

Look for collectible material in even unlikely places. Let people know you are interested in anything philatelic they might come across – you'll be surprised what you will find! Boxes of old letters forgotten in a shed or attic may be of no importance to a homeowner who wants to tidy up, but if she knows you are interested in any old stamps or covers, they may not end up in the burning barrel after all.

Businesses can generate hundreds of meter cancelled envelopes a day – garbage to them but a bonanza to a modern cancel collector.

I've even got my well-travelled relatives searching out stamp shops in the cities they visit to pick up small bags of kiloware for me – the perfect souvenir. Study what you find, even if on the surface it seems boring.

Don't feel you have to run out and buy an esoteric reference book for all the bits of stuff you find, but do take a good look at everything that passes through your hands. Those machine cancelled window envelopes look pretty dull on the surface – but do they have slogan cancels that reflect a topic you are interested in?

Those definitives in the kiloware that you just soaked – did the circular date cancels appeal to you or did you notice colour variations and overprints that caught your eye?

That old dusty stockbook that came out of grandma's attic – does it contain stamps from countries that don't exist anymore or reflect some period of history that you've always found fascinating?

Start a reference library. This is probably one of the most important things a beginner can do when they start collecting. If some aspect of your material interests you, try and find out more about it.

Start with your public library and see what books or periodicals they have on the subject.

Read as many philatelic journals as you can. This will often lead you to societies and study groups of fellow collectors who are valuable resources for information.

Use the Internet to search out Websites and news groups – I've found these very helpful in gleaning information I couldn't find easily any other way.

And don't forget to set aside a few dollars every year to buy reference books and join a few philatelic societies that interest you. Literature of all kinds is a very good investment.

Start concentrating on a few topics of interest and develop an interest list. After researching and reading, you will probably come up with half a dozen topics or areas you find pique your interest.

Start writing down things you would like to find to begin your collection.

For example, I was given a flat of covers that contained a bundle of Canadian cards and envelopes with different directional marking on them. I find this aspect of the mail system intriguing, so onto my list went Canadian covers with unusual postal markings. A list like this is most handy for the next step: Trading.

OK, so you have all these bags and boxes of stuff, most of which you have discovered you have no interest in. You've done some research and identified the material in a preliminary fashion. Time to develop a skill basic to the frugal collector – trading.

Search out collectors who may be interested in your stuff. Join a good exchange club.

That kiloware I mentioned may not turn into a collecting interest for you, but it will be useful to someone. Mount it and send it out to find a new home.

Find a local stamp club – most have regular trading sessions for members.

Use the Internet to find collectors further from home. I've found some wonderful trading partners this way.

Talk to other collectors at stamp shows and bourses. You never know who might desire that garbage bag full of spray on cancelled window envelopes!

Don't sweat the details. Don't get too bogged down in accounting when you trade.

In fact, if you don't need that box of postcards and it's just taking up space on your desk, why not give it away? After all, if you got it for free, you aren't out anything.

I'm a firm believer that generosity is always rewarded, if only in the good feelings you get from giving someone something, not to mention a clean desk.

If the person who would like the material has no immediate trade, I often give them a list of topics and things I'm looking for and ask them to keep an eye out for these items. They may never find anything, but who knows?

Another thing to consider is donating material you can't trade to children's stamp clubs or any of the charities which use philatelic material to fund their activities. After all, it doesn't do much good sitting in a box in a closet, does it?

Don't be afraid to change horses. As you widen your knowledge of philately, you may find that your collecting interests change.

Don't worry. Here's where collecting what you like comes in.

Don't feel locked in to a topic just because you've worked on it for a while. Put that collection away for a bit and if it never really has that zing again, trade it away. You don't have to be an expert on everything you start or follow through with every interest. Even the wealthiest collectors start all over again every once in a while.

I suppose, then, that my advice to a beginning collector might be collect what you have, learn everything you can about it and trade it away if you don't want it.

Collect what you like, of course, but first spend some time finding out what that might be. Search out sources of cheap or free material. Get involved with some of the many philatelic societies and clubs out there. Talk to and trade with other collectors. With some imagination and digging, you'll eventually find a satisfying philatelic specialty whatever your budget. A winding road to a philatelic education, perhaps, but one that will bring satisfaction to even the most frugal of collectors. *

WIPA 2000

From May 30 to June 4, 2000 the fifth Vienna International Post Stamp Exhibition under the auspices of the F.I.P. will take place – this time at the new Austria Centre located near the United Nations Building near the banks of the Danube River.

The whole world will celebrate the 150th anniversary of the Austrian stamp. In previous years (1881, 1933, 1965 and 1981) the exhibition was held in the emperor's winter palace in downtown Vienna. The new Austria Centre is conveniently connected with the subway system and is a matter of only a few minutes to the centre of town: The Vienna State Opera, St. Stephens Cathedral, concert halls and theatres.

The WIPA committee has organized many events, such as the welcome by the president of Austria, a concert with the famous Vienna Choir Boys in the chapel of the Hofburg and an evening visit of a typical Viennese restaurant with dinner.

During the exhibit there will be two performances of Mozart's Magic Flute at the State Opera House.

The following collections have been accepted from Canada: Ron R. Brigham's – The large queens (1868-1897); Mike Madesker's – Venice (1397-1797 to, through and from); Istvan Kesedy's – Hungarian collection (1871, '74, '81, '88, '98, '99); Richard Malott's – Canadian interrupted (crash) covers within, to and from Canada including a special souvenir cover concerning the Swissair tragedy near Peggy's Cove, N.S.

There will be many other events taking place for your enjoyment.

Harry Sutherland, director of International Affairs and the WIPA organization have appointed Otto Zeman as commissioner for Canada. Otto was born in Vienna and can be reached at 702-150 Queen St. S., Kitchener, ON N2G 4T7; telephone (519) 576-6886; fax (519) 744-8550. *

My Canadian Stamp Collection

by Norman Gulko

My interest in stamps began in 1933, when I was about 10 years old. The bright colours and wide variety of pictures on stamps fascinated me and captured my imagination.

Initially, I saved adhesives from countries all over the world. I had a "grab bag" approach to collecting and avidly accumulated every stamp that I came across. I had no sense of purpose or selectivity as I eagerly went about acquiring my hoard of "pretty pictures" from family, stamp collecting friends, and neighbourhood stamp dealers. These were numerous, because my interest in stamp collecting began during the Depression when, on almost every corner, there were stores that sold stamps and used books.

But my collecting interests had to be placed "on hold" during the war when I joined the Canadian Army in 1942.

They remained "on hold" for some years after the war when all of my energies were directed toward obtaining an education, earning a living, getting married and raising a family. Collecting stamps was certainly not my top priority during that time.

By about 1970, I was able to return to my love of stamp collecting. But I soon discovered that the restraining limitations of time, knowledge and money made it necessary for me to narrow my focus in what to collect.

It was easy to choose Canada as my special collecting interest.

First, I went about "collecting my thoughts" before "collecting my stamps" because I realized that I needed to know where I wanted to go in the pursuit of acquiring the stamps of Canada.

Accordingly, I set goals for my collection. Once I had thought this through, and to keep me focused on what I intended to achieve, I recorded my "GOALS" and placed this as the first entry in the first album of my Canadian collection.

That was in 1970, and to this day, remains as my guide as I go about acquiring my Canadian stamps.

Here is a copy of that entry:

GOALS

The goals for my Canadian Stamp Collection are:

1 – To obtain one single used specimen of every stamp issued by the Province of Canada between 1851 and 1867.

2 – To obtain one single used specimen of every stamp issued by the Dominion of Canada between 1868 and 1897, and as well, to try to obtain some single mint specimens.

3 – To obtain one single used and one single mint specimen of every stamp issued by Canada between 1898 and the present time.

4 – To obtain a set of mint matched imprint Corner Blocks issued by Canada since 1968.

5 – To obtain every Canada Post Official First Day Cover since it began issuing these in 1971.

6 – To obtain stamps from other countries where there is a Canadian theme or connection.

7 – To obtain as many Canadian stamp varieties, freaks and errors as possible.

8 – To a limited degree, obtain some stamps as a form of investment.

GUIDELINES

My financial position imposes restrictions upon the full realization of my stated goals. However, despite that limitation, I develop my collection within the following guidelines:

1 – Each stamp must be in Fine or better condition, except for the classics (1851-1897), where a Good or Very Good condition is acceptable.

2 – Mint stamps from 1947 to the present must be Never Hinged. Earlier than that date, I will accept hinged mint stamps when I cannot acquire them otherwise.

3 – I prefer used stamps to be lightly cancelled, preferably with a Circular Date Stamp cancellation. These are not always easily obtainable, so I'll accept less attractive specimens until these can be replaced with my preferences. (But in recent years the CDS has been replaced by some very ugly cancellation devices, so it's not likely that modern used issues will ever meet my standards).

4 – Coil stamps are collected in pairs or, with certain issues, in strips of four.

5 – I mount my stamps in chronological order of date of issue.

The Scott Catalogue numbering system is used to identify my stamps.

Having identified the Goals for my stamp collection and prepared them in a written statement, I am always in the position of being able to review my Goals from time to time and make any changes if I so desire.

To date, I have seen no reason to alter any of them. But most important, for me, is that I can always review my collection to see if I am going in the direction I laid out for myself.

REVIEW

In December 1997, I made a review of my collection within the framework of my stated goals, and here are my findings:

Goal 1 – 1851 to 1867 issues – single used stamps.

This is the most difficult goal and will probably never be fully achieved because of the scarcity and expense of many of these stamps.

Goal 2 – 1868 to 1947 issues – single used and some mint.

Another difficult goal that may never be achieved for the same reasons as (1) above.

Goal 3 – 1947 to Date issues – mint and used singles.

Achieved and ongoing.

Goal 4 – 1968 to Date – Mint matched imprint Corner Blocks.

Achieved and ongoing.

Goal 5 – 1971 to Date – Canada Post Official FDCs.

Achieved and ongoing.

Goal 6 – Foreign stamps with Canadian themes.

This goal has not been vigorously pursued, although I did join the Canadiana Study Unit in 1997 and am in the initial phase of putting together a Canadian collection.

Through this Study Unit, I have learned that a great number of countries have issued stamps with Canadian connctions. These are many and varied, e.g. the stamp's subject matter is Canadian, (Bugaria, Scott No. 3973, Alexander Graham Bell) or the stamps were printed in Canada, (Faroe Islands, #289); or the stamps' artists' are Canadian, (Marshall Islands, #608, Elvis Presley and #610, James Dean). Already, my Canadiana collection includes some 70 stamps from 25 countries, ranging from Albania to Vatican City. This may later pose a problem for me as to my goals. i.e. How shall I spend my money; on Canadian or Canadiana stamps?

Goal 7 – Varieties, Freaks, Errors.

These have always fascinated me and I have accumulated quite a few. But the cost of many of these is quite prohibitive. Nevertheless, I will continue buying such of these as catch my fancy and which I can afford.

Goal 8 – Stamps as an investment.

Should I ever get around to selling my collection, I am realistic enough to know that no dealer can pay me what I spent for them. However, I do have some nice specimens that should realize a modest return. However, the greatest investment for me is the great pleasure I have always experienced in my acquisition of Canadian stamps.

SUMMARY

I think it is very important for stamp collectors to set goals for themselves. Otherwise they can be pulled in any direction.

As it is said, "If you don't know where you're going, any road will get you there!"

Report on:

Exhibiting Your Stamp Collection

by the Nova Scotia Stamp Club

by Bruce Holmes
Program Coordinator

The Nova Scotia Stamp Club held a seminar on "Exhibiting your stamp collection," Saturday, Nov. 27, 1999, at Dalhousie University Engineering School in the lush and prestigious Board Room.

The seminar was developed for The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada by the Lakeshore Stamp Club of Dorval, PQ.

Bruce Holmes, the Program Coordinator, welcomed the 16 attendees and six presenters, on behalf of the club President, Heather MacKenzie, who could not attend the opening, due to work commitments.

Dave Harvey, a gold medal exhibitor, presented a talk on Single Country Collecting and presented examples from his exhibits. His talk was very informative and well received. Dave's dry wit surfaced occasionally to everyone's enjoyment.

The next speaker was Dr. J.J. MacDonald, a noted Nova Scotia Postal Historian and author of The Nova Scotia Post-Its Offices, Master and Marks 1700-1867. His presentation was on postal history and he too, circulated examples of his rare holdings. He also distributed an article on postal history exhibiting. Dr. MacDonald is always an interesting lecturer.

Marty Zelenietz, another gold medal exhibitor, held the room in awe as he presented Topical/Thematic Collecting. Marty's style and method of presentation moved at a pace that held most of the room spellbound. Samples of his exhibits and works in progress were displayed.

The seminar's section on Presentation and Layout was given by Bruce Holmes. This section covered: page size, number of pages per frame and variety of styles for page layout. A sample of a 16 page exhibit, with title page, contents page, exhibit and bibliography was given to each participant. The Title/Introduction page and the plan page from Mr. Raymond Ireson's "The Panama Canal Story," which has won a Grand Award in a Canadian National Exhibition and with the American Topical Association Show in Milwaukee, was circulated as an excellent example of how to prepare these pages.

Dave Cooper, a newly appointed Regional Judge, gave a talk on the Importance of Material and Condition of Stamps. He also distributed a photocopy, from the seminar material, on the seven condition definitions of stamps to be used by collectors and exhibitors. Dave also brought along a sample exhibit of Mexico which he used to define some of the various conditions.

Jerry Tucker, owner of Seaside Book and Stamp, gave an excellent, informative and very interesting talk on Accessories, which he circulated. He also talked on the importance of knowing how to use stamp catalogues. He distributed sample pages from various catalogues to show price variations for an identical stamp.

Levels of exhibiting and judging were discussed throughout the day, touching on all aspects of judging and the criteria used. We were fortunate in having Dr. J.J. MacDonald and Dave Cooper on hand, as well as Gold Medal exhibitors to help answer questions.

The final portion of the seminar was a hands-on project. The participants, including some of the presenters, were teamed up, given paper, hinges and an envelope of assorted Canadian and United States stamps and asked to prepare an exhibit. There was a time limit of approximately 30 minutes. The finished exhibits were then displayed, judged and voted upon by the exhibitors. Everyone enjoyed this portion and agreed the exhibits were very good considering the time restraint and availability of material.

All attendees and presenters were given a certificate of participation, prepared by Dave Harvey, marking the Nova Scotia Stamp Club's first exhibition seminar. Everyone was also given a questionnaire with four questions regarding the seminar. The response to all four questions was positive.

It is hoped that this seminar will become an annual event on the Nova Scotia Stamp Club's calendar.

A Myanmar Adventure

by Alan Meech

No, it's not exactly self-evident what a Canadian stamp collector is doing standing in the floating post office at Ywama, on Inle Lake high on the Shan States plateau of Myanmar, holding his tea-soaked trousers carefully away from his legs to reduce the pain of the scald. Explanation is simple enough in a mechanical sense.

If you intend to go to Myanmar (as Burma has officially been called since 1989), buy some guidebooks, do careful homework, get the requisite inoculations, obtain a visa from the Myanmar embassy in Ottawa, buy an air ticket to Yangon (formerly Rangoon) via Bangkok, and off you go. Refrain from political comments because of the reputation of the military regime that has ruled the country since 1962. It's all a lot easier now than it was in the 1970s and '80s when visas were valid for only seven days. Now they're valid for 28 days, which allows much more leisurely exploration and appreciation of the country.

Explaining this Canadian collector in this post office and this cup of tea is another matter. Ywama is a Class six post office in the Myanmar categorization, which receives and distributes letters and parcels, and provides registration service. The postmaster and sole employee hadn't ever had a foreign tourist in his post office before, nor was he often in the presence of the director of posts and telegraphs for Shan State (population about five million, area about four times that of Switzerland), who was generously playing host to me.

We had climbed out of the motorboat, mounted the wooden steps, ducked the laundry hanging on poles out front, and "toured" the facility. The post office consisted of one man, one desk, one chair, a very modest range of hand stamps, some strips of cloth impregnated with ink that were laid in an old tobacco tin that functioned as an ink pad, some handwritten forms for logging registered mail, several canvas mail bags, and a gas ring and tea kettle. The hospitable motivation was most honourable, but the execution was fumbled out of nervousness. While the tea dried up and the burn was very superficial, the incident did make the visit memorable.

My story as a collector is pretty ordinary up until the time I crossed philatelic paths with Burma/Myanmar. When I was a kid, I was partially disabled by an injury, during which time a favourite uncle sent me stamps and an album to help pass the hours. Those Spanish commemoratives with the Santa Maria in full sail are in my memory yet. I recovered from the injury but not from the stamps.

I put stamps away after the onset of hormones, then later found myself succumbing to the collecting bug once more at about the same time as I began work as a graduate teaching assistant to a Burmese gentleman who was a faculty member at the University of Alberta.

His stories and experiences piqued my interest in the country as a collecting entity. Scott then listed about 250 stamps which were distinctly of the country and seemed low cost if the catalogue valuations were anything to go by admirable statistics for a sideline collection. Even now there are only about 360 basic stamps listed, excluding "Service" and Japanese occupation issues.

The stamps have a low catalogue value and low cost when you can find them! There's no philatelic bureau of any permanence. There are no real private sector dealers in the country. There are no sources of Burmese stamps outside the country to which you can send a want list, either. If you're diligent and adventurous and patient, though, you can build a collection.

After pursuing Burmese stamps for four or five years, I began to feel that I needed information to provide some explanatory context. I discovered there was one book, Burma Postal History by Gerald Davis and Denys Martin, but as its coverage ends in 1937 (when Burma became an independent postal entity), I wasn't much further ahead in my special interest area.

In a fit of optimistic naivete, I decided to write to various philatelic publications to see if there might be other collectors interested in this postal entity who also felt isolated and curious to know more. A few people replied encouragingly. My next step was to invent a quarterly publication for Burma collectors. In the fall of 1979 I wrote, typed, pasted up, had printed, and then distributed the first number of The Burma Peacock, which I gave away for two years in order to attract a subscription base. Some of those first correspondents have faithfully subscribed and contributed and corresponded with me ever since. What was begun so blithely remains a project that recurs four times a year. Over the years a significant amount of information has been compiled and published so that anyone wishing to collect Burma/Myanmar (of any period from the first Anglo-Burmese war of 1825 onwards) can have assistance through the unknown.

A stalwart handful of collectors in Myanmar have attached themselves to the group, supplying information about new issues, postal rate changes, new types of postal services and undertaking larger-scale research projects as well. Without their efforts, there would be none of the information that collectors expect about the countries they collect. There may be a postal archive, but all external evidence is that it doesn't even hold a complete run of stamps since independence in 1948. There are no stamp clubs in the country, for the government forbids the existence of all organizations that it does not control directly. Burmese citizens are supposed to obtain official approval from the state censors for anything they write – even about stamps.

All of which makes philatelic touring a somewhat clandestine adventure. Go to the G.P.O. and ask for 150 copies of the then current aerogramme, as I did, and you get a decidedly chilly look. You are then invited to go upstairs and into the back of the building, behind the chain link fence that marks off the "Treasury" from the rest of the workings of the establishment. Two gentlemen will then suspiciously, carefully and with wet thumbs count them out sheet by sheet.

Go to the main market and look at the stamps put out among the lacquer ware and mother of pearl mementoes to catch the tourists' eye. Avoid the Japanese occupation stamps as they are crudely forged. Don't buy anything, but let the stallholder know, en passant, where you're staying and that you're interested in better material. Several evenings later, your room telephone will ring unexpectedly and the front desk will announce somebody you've never heard of before, or a relative of someone you perhaps have heard of. In all likelihood you'll be presented with some interesting varieties to haggle over. And shown some more of those Japanese occupation forgeries.

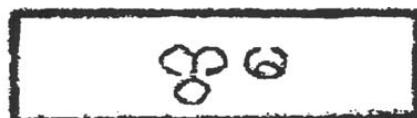

As to how you make payment in a country where the official exchange rate is U.S. $1 to 6.5 kyat and the black market rate is U.S. $1 to 335 kyat, well, that's another story.

Sheets and Panes

by Mike Painter

L.R. Larsen wrote an article in the November 1-14, 1994 issue of Canadian Stamp News to dispel the confusion in terminology, particularly for less experienced philatelists, between sheets and panes. However, the confusion will probably continue because when we misuse these two terms, as I suspect many of us do on occasion, we are in some good company.

First, let's note the correct usage.

A sheet is the image the printing plate imparts with each strike to the paper fed into the printing press. Today a sheet usually comes off the press as some multiple of 50 or 100 individual stamps. A sheet of 600 stamps is common for the smaller stamps.

A pane is what the sheet is divided into before it goes on sale at the post office. A pane of 100 stamps is a common size.

Some confusion stems from the fact that, in the past, some smaller sheets were not divided and thus what the post office sold was actually a sheet.

More confusion arises because the general public and postal clerks usually refer to a pane as a sheet ("Give me a sheet of one-cent stamps." "OK, that's a sheet of 100, so one dollar plus tax...").

But I mentioned good company.

Although prominent authors use "sheet" and "pane" correctly for the most part, there are occasional lapses.

Boggs, in his classic on Canadian stamps says in one place "The regular ...sheets were divided into post office sheets of 100..."

Marler, in his definitive work on the admirals, also refers at least twice to the division of sheets into post office sheets. Holmes catalogue mentions sheets being cut into sheets.

Hansen's Guidebook describes panes as being sheets of 100. Robson Lowe's Encyclopedia says in a couple of places that sheets were divided into sheets of 100.

On the other hand, Darnell tends to use panes to describe both sheets and panes. The Charlton Catalogue also says "...printed in master panes of 200 or 400." I haven't given page references for these examples since the matter is hardly weighty enough to treat as research. They just show that the terms do get used interchangeably.

But since misuse can cause confusion, we should try to remember that what the post office sells are panes (usually) and that they are subdivisions of the larger sheets that come off the printing press.

RPSC Slide Programme Library

- The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada provides a 35 mm Slide Programme Library service to its member clubs. There are currently over 100 programmes available. All come with script, many in both French and English, some audio cassette commentaries.

- The rental fee is $10 per programme and the requesting club pays return postage and $100 insurance fee. For short notice requests the requesting club pays all postage charges.

- The slide librarian will mail out programmes approximately two weeks prior to the requesting club's meeting to give the presenter time to review the programme.

- Non-RPSC clubs may use this service if referred by an RPSC member.

- There are programmes suitable for junior clubs.

Programme rental requests can be sent to the new Slide Librarian at:

Elizabeth Sodero
831 Tower Road
Halifax, NS B3H 2Y1,
902) 422-7589.

A note from the Slide Librarian:

Having had a quick look through the available programmes, it has become evident that much of the available material is older rather than newer. However, there are some fascinating slide shows on hand prepared by expert collectors.

I just glanced through Slide Programme #39, Canadian Air Mail Stamps – Regular and Varieties by Major R.K. Malott before sending it out to a requesting club. The 83 colour slides take the viewer from the first Canadian airmail issue, by means of stamps and covers, to the end of the airmail and special delivery eras.

The detailed accompanying script gives an in-depth study of the subject with an emphasis on varieties. The history of the period is well documented – a programme that would appeal to the specialist collector, the thematic collector and the general collector. The accompanying cassette failed to play.

A plea from the Slide Librarian:

If you are interested in making up a slide programme or a video, we would like to hear from you.

A current list of programmes is available from the Slide Librarian. Programme committees – please take note of this service.

Stanley Gibbons' Oct. 13-14, 1999 sale offered collectors of Commonwealth and worldwide material a tremendous selection for their albums. Canadian material included several nicer items but many didn't sell. One that did was lot 1451, a Mint block of six of the 1876 eight-cent Bright Blue Registered Letter stamp estimated at £600-700 (ex. "Dallas"). Although the block had slight faults, it found a new home for £748 ($1,852.42; prices include the 15 per cent buyer's fee).

Spectacular modern errors from Great Britain were offered too. Lot 1104 contained a Mint OG 1963 1sh6d Commonwealth Pacific Cable single with black printing omitted. Estimated at £500-600, it reached £1,265 ($3,132.77). Lot 1115 featured several Mint NH varieties of the 1969 5d Q.E. II Ship with varying degrees of black, grey, and red omitted. Estimated at £300-340, the lot sold for £437 ($1,082.23). A Mint NH 1983 15-1/2p Salmon imperf single showing part of several adjoining stamps (lot 1121) sold for £184 ($455.68) against an estimate of £150-170. A Mint NH imperf pair of the 1991 22p King Charles Spaniel issue (lot 1124) "fetched" a similar price but had a lower estimate of £140-160.

U.S. offerings were impressive and included an attractive 1860 cover from Virginia via New York to Paris. The cover had a pair of 1857-61 1-cent Blue Franklins and a strip of four of the 10-cent Green Washington issue (lot 832) with an estimate of £320-360. It sold for £690 ($1,708.79). Lot 833 offered a rare small colour die proof set from the 1861 1-cent to 90-cent issue. Estimated at £550-650, the lot sold for £1,150 ($2,847.98).

The firm's "Rare Stamps and Postal History of the World" sale followed on Oct. 15, 1999. Canadian items included lot 19, Mint 1-cent, two-cent and five-cent imperf tête-bêche blocks (six by two) from the 1928 Scroll issue booklet sheets. Estimated at £1,000-£1,200, the lot sold for £1,725 ($4,271.96). Lot 20 contained Mint vertical imperf plate proof pairs of the 1930 20-cent Wheat, 50-cent Grand Pre, and $1 Mt. Cavell estimated at £1,100-£1,300. It reached a price of £1,150 ($2,846.25). A Newfoundland 1930 50-cent on 36-cent Caribou Columbia Air Mail Mint LH single (centred left) was offered in lot 170. This example "Dallas" copy sold for £1,840 ($4,556.76) against an estimate of £1,400-£1,600. Lot 12 held a rare hinged-Mint copy of Vancouver Island's imperf 1865 five-cent Rose Victoria with clear to good margins (ex. "Melat" / "Dallas"). It went to a new home for £4,370 ($10,822.31) with an estimate of £5,000-£6000.

Rare Commonwealth material was also popular. Lot 55 contained a spectacular LH Mint set of bottom marginal imprint blocks of four of the 1933 1/2d-£1 Centenary issue from the Falkland Islands. Estimated at £9,000-£11,000, it realized £10,350 ($25,631.78). An amazing Mint block of four error of Hong Kong's 1938 50-cent Deep Magenta King George VI definitive value was found in lot 129. The block had been printed on both sides with the reverse printing being inverted. Stated to be the "first recorded example" of this error by the auctioneers, it had an estimate of £15,000-£20,000 and sold for £19,550 ($48,415.58). This item is bound to have an exciting future!

Stanley Gibbons Auctions plan several sales for 2000. Contact the firm at 399 Strand, London WC2R OLX, England or telephone 0171 836 8444 / fax 0171 836 7342. You can e-mail at: auctions@stangiblondon.demon.co.uk. The firm's postal auctions are also quite popular and can be reached at the same address or e-mailed at: stamps@stangiblondon.demon.co.uk.

Brigham Auctions Ltd. is a relatively new Canadian public auction house and its four sales in 1999 have been impressive. The firm's fourth sale on Dec. 3 featured many Canadian and BNA stamps and covers. Items from the W.H. Pope Collection were also included.

Lot 439 contained an attractive 1851 12d Black Victoria plate proof on india paper with a carmine specimen overprint. Most collectors cannot hope to obtain an original copy of this stamp but a plate proof is the next best alternative! The 1999 Unitrade value was quoted at $1,750 and the proof sold for $1,006.25 (prices include the 15 per cent buyer's fee). A classic Fine Used 10-cent Black Brown Albert single from the 1859-64 First Cents Issue (lot 542) sold for $1,035 (Unitrade $3,000). Lot 637 featured a Fine Mint NH 1872 3-cent Dull Red Small Queen right margin block of eight with an inscription. It sold for $1,380 (Unitrade $840+).

Several Mint blocks from Victoria's 1897 Jubilee were on hand. Lot 717 contained a F-VF LH-HR 1/2-cent Black block which sold for $74.75 (Unitrade $400) and a F-VF NH top imprint block from plate nine (with small age perf stains) in lot 718 reached $241.50 (Unitrade $600+). A scarce VF centred NH block of the 15-cent Slate Blue value in lot 738 (but with some gum bends) found a home for $1,437.50 (Unitrade $3,600).

Classic illustrated covers were a main feature of this sale. Lot 777 held a stunning 1901 multi-coloured patriotic cover from the Alpha-Chemical Co. of Berlin, Ontario advertising boot and shoe polish. Despite a few faults, the cover sold for $833.75 ($500+ estimate). Another attractive 1903 multi-coloured cover from the Hamilton Spectator (lot 792) featured a herald on horseback announcing Hamilton's Summer Carnival. With an estimate of $300+, this purple, yellow, and green cover was purchased for $776.25. Another attractive orange, black, and brown 1909 illustrated cover advertising the Saskatoon Fair in lot 846 sold for $517.50 ($250+ estimate). These classic multi-coloured advertising and illustrated covers are obviously becoming highly-sought after!

Newfoundland material was well-represented in the sale with several rare and unusual items attracting a great deal of attention. Used Pence issues included an 1857 6d Scarlet Vermilion with full to just-touching margins in lot 59. It sold for $920 (Unitrade $3,500). A wide-margined 1860 4d Orange with partial "W" and "IS" of the Stacey Wise/1858 watermark (lot 73) had a quoted Unitrade value of $1,800 and reached $632.50. A nice-looking 1sh value from the same issue in lot 80 realized $1,322.50 (Unitrade $5,000). It unfortunately had a partially-filled in thin but was still an attractive stamp.

A Mint LH 1929 three-cent on six-cent Humber River single with the surcharge inverted was offered in lot 186. Despite a pulled corner perf which detracted from its appearance, it still was sought-after and went to a new home for $402.50 against a Unitrade value of $750. Lot 246 also featured an interesting rarity. It contained a 1930 50-cent on 36-cent Caribou Columbia Air Mail flight cover to London, England. Although the cover had a vertical fold, staple holes and light stains, it still reached a respectable $7,762.50 (Unitrade $15,000).

Brigham Auctions Ltd. will continue to offer many choice philatelic items during 2000. The firm has also been chosen to conduct a special auction at Hamilton's 2000 Millennium Exhibition. Contact the firm at 1120 Brevik Place, Mississauga, ON L4W 3Y5, phone: (905) 238-1634, fax: (905) 238-8399, or email: brigham@interlog.com. Happy bidding in 2000 and good luck on finding that elusive item for you collection! ♣

Dealers and collectors have reported a fairly large number of stamps that can not be found in the regular Scott Catalogues. These stamps have been noted on covers, namely properly used, or is some of the UPU issued souvenir books that have been given out to delegates of the UPU meetings. Sometimes just a few of a set are listed by Scott but not the total set. Or some are not listed at all. These come not just from one country alone but from different places. If these stamps would not be a legitimate issue, this would be understandable why they are not listed. But when the post office releases these in the UPU books, these must be issued by them. It may be advisable to make copies of these stamps and submit them to Scott for listing.

There are certain countries that did issue stamps in two different printing processes. Identification of these processes is important because prices in the catalogues vary considerably from one to the other printing method. The two printing processes that are used most often are the engraved or line engraved process, sometimes called the recess printing. The other one is the lithographed or sometimes called the planograph process. For example Greece and other stamps were printed by both methods for the same set of issue. For Greece the set issued in 1911 showing various historic pictures, is just one of these stamps.

With a good magnifying glass, seven to 10 times, one can identify these printings. The engraved printings are sharp, lines are not fuzzy and all lines are continuous. The lithographed stamps will show tiny coloured dots and the lines are slightly fuzzy at the edges giving the impression of blurred printing. Although today such printings have considerably advanced in printing techniques, the coloured dots remain even though the dot size is much smaller than it was around the beginning resulting in sharper pictures. The book by Williams on Fundamentals of Philately gives some detailed description of these two printing processes.

eBay.

What do you think of this?

There are many pros and cons, but it is here to stay for a while. Completely uniformed collectors are being led by the nose when others appear to have hit the jackpot. When some bid on certain lots about a thousand times the actual value, one must ask why. But sooner or later these so called collectors have been trying to sell some of their highly overpriced lots and have found out the truth. Of course they were very disappointed and stopped using this electronic method to bid. A lot of about a few hundred Wurtemberg, catalogue value around $50 was bid on for $350 U.S., no relation to the actual value for stamps with five to 10 cents value. Sellers, such as dealers, are of course delighted.

Where could one sell a bunch of Canadian First Day Covers that could hardly be given away and still make a huge profit?

But there are others that are very lucky. A nice margin copy of Canada used #2 listed at $1,000 for fine, sold for $150. A five-cent Jubilee, well centered and nicely cancelled, lists at $40 and sold for $5.

It is obvious all this is not normal and leads some to believe that prices indicated in catalogues and asked for by regular dealers are completely wrong. This is of course nonsense. Many more people will get burned and others will cash in. The advise is: anyone using this system should be very careful to avoid disappointment. But maybe if you have a junk lot for sale, it will do much better than otherwise. *

Notre société n'a pas les ressources suffisantes qui lui permettent de traduire systématiquement les articles de l'anglais vers le français ou vice-versa.
