Steamships owned by Sir Samuel Cunard of Halifax and by Sir Hugh Allan of Montreal carried much of the nineteenth-century mail between North American and United Kingdom ports. These Cunard and Allan Lines transatlantic covers continue to provide philatelists and postal historians with a source of stimulating research and collecting pleasure.

Pendant une bonne partie du dix-neuvième siècle, les bateaux à vapeur de sir Samuel Cunard d'Halifax et ceux de sir Hugh Allan de Montréal ont assuré le transport postal entre les ports d'Amérique du Nord et ceux du Royaume-Uni. Les plis des compagnies transatlantiques Cunard et Allan constituent toujours une source de recherche stimulante et de plaisir philatélique pour les collectionneurs et les historiens de la poste.

Simplified Catalogue of Stamps of the World, 2004 Edition, Volumes 1-4

ISBN 085259-549-2; 551-4; 552-2; 553-0. Published by Stanley Gibbons Ltd. (Parkside, Christchurch Road, Ringwood, Hampshire, Great Britain, BH24 3SH) e-mail:sales@stanleygibbons.co.uk Internet:www.stanleygibbons.com Laminated soft cover; Retail price 34.95 British Pounds per volume.

The 2004 editions of the Stanley Gibbons Simplified Catalogue of Stamps of the World take stamp catalogues to a new level: they are printed in pleasing, vivid colour with only the earliest stamp issues reproduced in black and white. With a combined total of nearly 406,000 stamps listed in the four volumes, they set a new record. Each listed stamp is priced and can be ordered from the firm.

According to information provided in the catalogues, the listed prices are for stamps in fine condition; stamps better than "fine" will command a premium and, as expected, stamps in poorer condition than those given a fine rating are sold for less.

The catalogues were designed, essentially, for three classes of philatelists: general, thematic, and world-wide collectors. They make no attempt to serve specialists looking for more detailed information. What makes these catalogues particularly useful is that their listed prices reflect the amounts that stamps can be purchased for from the publisher's retail Sales Department.

Bound in "linen-look" laminated covers, they seem durable and will no doubt protect the printed pages for their practical lifetime.

Thousands of updates have been made since the previous editions were printed in 2003. Another useful addition is the inclusion of priced miniature sheets from all British Commonwealth countries - a first for this catalogue series.

The four catalogues are divided by countries with beginning letters as follows:

A-D; E-J; K-R; and S-Z. A five-page, user-friendly, index at the back of each catalogue outlines in which volume the stamps of a particular country are listed. Included also are nearly 95,000 illustrations with almost all in full colour. Collectors of the stamps of Switzerland should note that due to technical difficulties in the production process some of the prices for Swiss stamps in Volume 4 are incorrect. However, the publishers have thoughtfully included an insert showing the corrected prices.

Philately is a visual pastime and these colour-printed catalogues are a quality product that is consistent with this visual aspect of our hobby.

JUNK MAIL

By Anne Nonymous

This is the Junk Mail crossing the border
Delivered by truck now, that's the order
None of it wanted, all of it waste
All of it tinged with commercial distaste
Delivering catalogues all unsolicited
Names on the mailing list slyly elicited
Yearly subscription, that's the refrain
Take out a loan or a time-share in Spain,
Unwanted brochures shrouded in plastic
Thousands of leaflets bound by elastic
All come unbidden, a waste of a trip
Bound for the landfill, bound for the tip
All come by lorries pounding the highways
Blocking the ring road and clogging the by-ways
No more will the Night Mail arrive at the station
De-railed by the forces of privatisation
Victorian problem Victorian answer,
That is an insult to the service they ran, sir
Imagine old Isambard taking this tack
Sorry we're late sir, leaves on the track,!
Now, gone is the romance
Gone is the snobbery
The twenty-first century's Greatest Train Robbery
So while we're asleep the postman is driving
And the profits of shareholders quietly thriving
To bring us material for which none of us asked
To redress the balance is how we are tasked
Here comes the postman rounding the block
Here comes the postman, here comes his knock
With quickening heart I leap from my bunk
Anything interesting, dear?,
Nothing, just junk!

The above satire, by an unnamed author, about the demise of the British Mail Trains was heard on British radio according to RPSC member Ken Lewis, Wales.

ROYAL 2004 ROYALE Halifax

By Michael Nowlan

ROYAL 2004 ROYALE Halifax, May 28-30, will be held at the Lord Nelson Hotel & Suites, a lovely old hotel recently refurbished, and situated at the corner of South Park Street and Spring Garden Road. This is a busy shopping area with many fine restaurants. It is across the street from the Public Gardens, the premier Victorian gardens in North America. Although the Gardens suffered much damage in last September's hurricane, Juan, local efforts have raised considerable money for their restoration, and by spring the ducks and swans should be delighting in their surroundings once again.

On Friday night the President's Reception will be held at the Cambridge Military Library, about three blocks from the hotel. The Library was established in 1817 as a garrison library by Lord Dalhousie and was moved to its present site in 1886. One of the valuable collections housed in the Library was transferred from Corfu after the British evacuation in 1864. On Saturday night the Great Hall of the Dalhousie University Club will be the venue for a reception, dinner and awards presentations. It is of interest that Henry Hicks, a distinguished Nova Scotian philatelist was president of Dalhousie University from 1963 to 1980.

Over 30 dealers are expected with a full range of material. Nationally acclaimed photographer Sherman Hines, designer of Wildlife Conservation Stamps, will be on hand with 'something special' as well as a launch of four provincial wildlife conservation stamps, including Nova Scotia and Ontario. Local material will be featured in the Court of Honour, five exhibits from New Zealand promises variety and appeal, and exhibits from across Canada and the United States will round out the exhibition halls.

Seminars on Designing the Cunard/Allan Line stamps, which will be launched during the Convention, Paper Conservation, Using the Canadian Archives and Constructing an Exhibit, Fun Way to Collect GB, and Disinfected Mail will complement the bourse and exhibits. The year 2004 marks the 250th Anniversary of the first Post Office in Halifax and Canada, albeit an unofficial one. The local committee plans to issue a cover marking this anniversary.

Youth will not be forgotten! A long gallery that will be called 'The Back Alley' has been assigned to non-structured youth activities. Nova Scotia Stamp Club members and friends have been generous in donating stamps and related materials for the children. Activity sheets and helpful collectors will assist children in their collecting efforts.

Halifax, the home of such disparate persons as Samuel Cunard and Henry Hechler; playground for the Duke of Kent (Queen Victoria's father) and Madame St. Laurent; touched by the work of Sir Sandford Fleming; survivor of the 1917 Explosion; burying ground to those lost on the Titanic; a military stronghold haunted by Adele Hugo; a city of universities one of which was founded by Anna Leonowens; and currently a vibrant modern city, with a vital harbour, an international flavour and a philatelic community enthusiastically readying to host its first national show since 1965.

Scottish Postal History

Fig. 1. Local letter Manor to Peebles, dated January 19, 1856, shows One Penny Red tied by Peebles '279' cancel.

Fig. 2. Shows boxed MANOR name stamp.

I believe it rarely happens that a stamp article brings to light information about one's own family history. However, this is what happened in an article in a recent issue of the Scottish Post, the journal of the Scottish Postal History Society. The article in question was about the Post Office in the small village of Manor (pronounced May-nor by the locals) located about five miles S.W. from the county town of Peebles in the borders of Scotland. In 1861 the population was 247.

The post office opened in 1851 and a boxed name stamp was introduced the same year known philatelically as type D1 (sans serif capitals in oblong frame). An example was illustrated in the article, but the one shown here is from my own collection (Figs. 1 and 2). Manor was served by a messenger from Peebles six days a week to pick up the mail which was carried back to the main post office in Peebles for cancellation. The original post office in Manor was closed in 1861.

The Postmaster was a John Horsburgh who was also the blacksmith. His salary as Postmaster was £3 a year. The post office, of course, was his home which is still standing – now an estate office of the Duke of Lothian. The smithy, too, is still there, although in ruins. I know the name well because John Horsburgh was my great-great grandfather. But what I did not know until I read the article was that he was the first Postmaster in Manor. I doubt he could ever imagine, on the 19th of January, 1856, when he applied the Manor name stamp on a letter to Peebles that one day it would end up in Canada in the hands of his great-great grandson. 🍁

LICHTENSTEIN/BOYD DALE SALE

Some famous Canadian lots will be on the auction block this May when H.R. Harmer Auctions sells the Alfred F. Lichtenstein/Louise Boyd Dale collections of British Columbia and Vancouver Island, Western Express, and Pony Express Postal History. Immediately following is the Frederick R. Mayer Gold Medal collection of Nova Scotia. The sale will take place at The Katano, 66 Park Avenue, New York.

The Lichtenstein/Dale collection was formed by a father-and-daughter team. It is considered one of the finest collections ever assembled. H.R. Harmer has been selling the British North America collection over the past 50 years. On May 11, the British Columbia and Vancouver Island sections will be sold. The Western Express and Pony Express collections will follow on May 13.

According to the auctioneer, the British Columbia and Vancouver Island collections were absent from the Lichtenstein/Dale sales conducted by the firm in 1969 and 1970. Speculation and tall tales built "the conception of this sale of mythical proportions. Now it is here and does not disappoint." It contains many unique items, never-before-seen examples, and combinations that will make it necessary to "rewrite the book."

The Mayer collection, assembled over three decades, will be sold May 12. Mayer's collection has been exhibited from Monaco to Tucson, Arizona, and has received a Gold, Platinum, and prix d'honneur awards.

It highlights both the Pence issues from 1851, and the Cents issues dating from the adoption of a decimal currency in 1860.

The Pence issues cover several denominations in three main issues, including a series of interesting and in some cases unauthorized bisects. The Cents issue was in use subsequent to Nova Scotia joining confederation and then phased out in favour of Canadian stamps. Unsold inventory of the Nova Scotia stamps were sold by the Canadian government in 1895.

It is estimated that the collection will realize in excess of $1 million U.S.

Canada's COAT OF ARMS on Special Delivery Stamps

By James E. Kraemer FRPSL, FRPSC

In an effort to better understand Canada's Coat of Arms, a brief introduction of the topic may be in order. His Majesty King George V approved the Arms of Canada on November 21, 1921. Before 1921 a composite design that changed with the effigy of each sovereign, known as The Great Seal, was used "for a reason unexplained by history."

Alan Beddoe of Ottawa, Canada, drew the 1921 design of the Arms of Canada. A crowned gold lion holding a red maple leaf is depicted on the crest. The lion is the symbol of valor and courage. The figures on either side of the shield are known in heraldry as supporters. The one on the left is a lion holding the Royal Union flag while the one on the right is a unicorn holding the flag of Royalist France. The banners represent the two founding nations of Canada.

Across the bottom is the motto "A Mari usque ad Mare" (from Sea to Sea) based on Psalm 72.8. The most important part of the Arms is the shield. The first and second divisions of the shield show the four emblems that symbolize the four founding peoples of Canada. The first emblem shows the three lions of England, the second is the red lion of Scotland, the third is the Royal Harp of Tara, and the fourth is the Royal Fleurs-de-Lis of France. The Maple Leaf is at the bottom and asserts that the Arms are Canadian.

The foregoing is a very brief description of the Arms of Canada that was used in the design of our Special Delivery stamps from 1938 to 1946. (Fig. 1)

Figure 2.

In 1994 Canada's Coat of Arms was redesigned by Cathy Bursey-Sabourin, Heraldic Authority, Office of the Governor General. (Fig. 2) It faithfully depicts the Arms described in 1921 but with a ribbon added to show the Order of Canada. The redesigned Arms has not been used on a Canadian stamp.

On October 6, 1933, H.S. MacMillan, Acting Chief Examiner, Office of the Auditor General, questioned why the Post Office Department paid for uniforms for special delivery messengers in Toronto and Montreal. The Department searched its records for a justifiable ruling on the matter. Ten days later, T.P. Murphy, Superintendent – Equipment and Supply, explained that payments for uniforms for fulltime employees with six-months or more service were proper since the Deputy Postmaster General, nine years earlier in September 1924, had authorized uniforms in a similar circumstance.

This, of course, had nothing to do with Canada's Coat of Arms on Special Delivery stamps but is recorded in order to show the importance of this service and the need to inform the public and to encourage them to use special delivery. (Fig. 3)

Figure 3.

Special Delivery stamps were first issued by the Canadian Post Office Department on June 28, 1898 when a 10-cent value was released. The earliest recorded use in Canada of a Special Delivery stamp is July 2, 1898. Subsequently, a 20-cent value was issued on August 21, 1922. A 20-cent value was issued for Confederation on June 29, 1927 followed by 20-cent values on September 2, 1930 and on December 24, 1933 respectively. (Fig. 4)

Canada issued its sixth Special Delivery stamp on June 1, 1935. It was a 20-cent value in dark carmine, perforated 12, and printed by the Canadian Bank Note Company. The design is taken from a painting by Alonzo Earl Foringer. Robert Savage of the American Bank Note Company used the painting in 1919 to make an engraving. The engraving was used on stock certificates and bonds. The design shows a man turning a large wheel representing an allegory of progress and strength. Postal authorities felt that since the design had often been used commercially, as well as leaving something to be desired artistically, it should be replaced. As a result, A.S. Deaville, Officer in Charge of the Philatelic Section at Post Office Headquarters in Ottawa, wrote a letter on July 27, 1937 to H.E. Atwater, Financial Superintendent, confirming a verbal discussion. The discussion was in regard to the use of the Canadian Coat-of-Arms on, "the possible new 20-cent Special Delivery stamp." He wrote, "...I am attaching, in case it may be useful in this connection, the central portion of a fifty cigarette excise label or stamp which will convey some idea of the dignity and effectiveness of the coat-of-arms when used in this way." On the following day Atwater asked Deaville to take up the suggestion with P.J. Wood, Vice President of the Canadian Bank Note Company and, "have a model prepared with the least possible ornamentation... the model to be submitted to the Postmaster General for approval." (Fig. 5)

The model was completed and left with Atwater by Wood on August 17, 1937 for the Postmaster General's approval. Also enclosed was a model of the proposed $1.00 stamp showing a vignette of the Chateau de Ramezay. P.J. Wood suggested that if the subject, the Chateau, was chosen some of the trees could be removed from the foreground thereby improving the design.

The Postmaster General approved the model of the new 20-cent Special Delivery stamp on September 8, 1937. (Fig. 6) The following day the "model endorsed by the Postmaster General having been approved by Council on the 8th instant" was sent to the Canadian Bank Note Company. A model and two proofs from the completed 20-cent Special Delivery die were submitted to the Postmaster General by the Canadian Bank Note Company on October 7, 1937. The Honourable J.C. Elliott, P.C., the Postmaster General, on November 6, 1937 approved the die proof for the new 20-cent Special delivery stamp. The authorized proof was not delivered to the Canadian Bank Note Company until November 17, 1937.

The Canada Post Department noted on March 19, 1938 that it was implied by Administrative Services that Special Delivery stamps were available at all post offices and this was questioned since it was felt that only accounting offices issued them. H.E. Atwater, Financial Superintendent, advised Administrative services on March 28th that, "Special Delivery stamps were ordered and kept in stock by any post office in Canada that wanted or ordered them." The Postal Guide was corrected on April 11, 1938 to read: "Special Delivery stamps may be obtained at all post offices in Canada."

In a note dated May 9, 1938 from Deaville to Atwater, the former pointed out that orders for 20-cent Special Delivery stamps on first-day covers often do not allow extra for postage. Since the words "Postes-Postage" are used on the stamp they assume postage is included in the 20-cent fee for Special Delivery. Postal authorities ruled that "Special Delivery is a fee – not postage."

Atwater wrote to the Postmaster General in mid-May 1938 that he felt that the wording "Special Delivery stamps may not be used for payment of ordinary stamps" (Paragraph 2, Section 230, Page 55 of the 1936-37 edition of the Canada Official Postal Guide) was inadequate." Atwater also suggested that the words "Fee-Tax" be used instead of Postes-Postage.

The new regular issue of 10 cent, 20 cent, 50 cent, $1.00, 6-cent Airmail and 20-cent Special Delivery were issued on June 15, 1938.

A.S. Deaville, Chief of the Philatelic Division, wrote a letter to file dated August 15, 1938 pointing out that "The Administrative Service considers that Special Delivery stamps or labels are sold for a specific purpose and that they represent a fee, not postage." It was thought that the words "Postes-Postage" should be omitted on the next issue of Special Delivery stamps. It was also acknowledged that Special Delivery letters were accorded special treatment and handling.

H.E. Atwater in a letter to Deaville mentioned that Special Delivery stamps for some years had been issued as postage stamps and not as labels. Furthermore, an authoritative order had been issued that the words "Postes-Postage" must appear. He goes on to say, "Unfortunately this is not correct as one word is not a correct translation of the other. The French dictionary used as authoritative by the Department, that of Clifton and Grimaux gives various definitions of the word 'Postes' among them the following: Post house, to travel with post horses, to travel post, post, messenger mail, any means for the conveyance of letters, and post office. The only use of the English word 'Postage' in the translation comes in 'Timbre-poste' meaning postage stamp. The actual French word for postage, as indicated at the time we had this discussion, was 'Affranchisement' meaning payment, (prepayment of postage).

"The word 'postes' in French should be translated into English as 'Postage'. To translate it as 'Postage' is to give a very free translation and not an exactly correct one." He felt that since "Affranchisement" was too long, "Postes-Post" should be used.

Atwater noted in a memo dated February 13, 1939 that the Special Delivery fee would be reduced to ten cents effective March 1, 1939. The next day Atwater informed Deaville that it was too late to have a new Special Delivery stamp by March 1st. He asked Deaville to determine the number of 20 cent Special Delivery stamps on hand. He further suggested that since the present design had not been in use for very long, that the same design could be used, substituting the "10" for "20". In reply, Deaville suggested a bright green for the new Special Delivery stamp of the same design. He advised that 425,000 20-cent Special Delivery stamps were on hand. He also suggested that 400,000 stamps be overprinted and that of this number 100,000 be selected for philatelic sales. Cost of overprinting by the Canadian Bank Note Company would be 25 cents per thousand. (Fig. 7)

T.R. Legault, Accountant-in-Charge at the Post Office Department was given an order on February 21, 1939 to withdraw all 20-cent Special Delivery stamps in the depots. Overprinting of the 20-cent Special Delivery stamps was approved on February 21, 1939. On the same date, the new 10-cent Green Special Delivery stamp of the same design was also approved. The Canadian Bank Note Company quoted a price of $250 to change the engraving by altering the 20-cent denomination to 10 cents. Delivery would be three weeks after receipt of the order.

On the following day, Atwater advised Deaville that he is not convinced that the colour should be changed to green. Atwater also authorized the use of the regular 10-cent stamp for the Special Delivery fee if no Special Delivery stamps were available. (Fig. 8) The Postmaster General approved the overprint model on February 24, 1939. At the same time he authorized a change of colour for the new 10-cent Special Delivery stamp to green.

Deaville advised Atwater by letter on March 8, 1939 that "The great majority of collectors do not regard special delivery, postage due stamps, booklets, rolls, and postal stationery as integral parts of a collection of Canadian postage stamps." He added: "... most collectors are not particularly interested in Special Delivery stamps and do not expect the Department to announce them on the philatelic mailing list. Atwater replied to Deaville that he "had no objections to arguments put forth and, therefore, there would seem to be no reason why the issue of the Special Delivery stamp should be hastened." (The Post Office Department seems to have been "out in left field" on the matter. At least they show a lack of liaison with the collecting fraternity.)

Atwater returned a proof of the 20-cent Special Delivery stamp printed in # 51 green which had been submitted for colour approval to Mr. Wood on March 11, 1939. Atwater asked for a similar proof for post office files. This was delivered on March 21, 1939. On March 14, 1939 the Postmaster General approved the 10-cent Special Delivery proof in green.

Postal authorities reported to the Postmaster General that 50,000 10-cent overprinted stamps had been delivered to the Department in March. 250,000 had been delivered in February.

The Department noted in a memo to file that 340,700 20-cent Special Delivery stamps were issued during the fiscal year 1936-37. It was also noted that there were still 108,200 Special Delivery stamps of the 1935 issue and 2,150 of the 1938 issue on hand. A review dated March 28, 1939 revealed that the following 20-cent Special Delivery stamps were issued. (Fig. 9)

Figure 9.

1933-34	249,210
1934-35	309,308
1935-36	339,950
1936-37	260,650
1937-38	340,700
Average	299,963

The Department decided to issue the new 10-cent green Special Delivery stamp on Tuesday, March 29, 1939. No advance notice would be given.

The Department had concluded that stamp collectors were not too interested in a Special Delivery stamp, considering it only a label. They also used the excuse that they did not want to divert attention away from the forthcoming Royal Visit Issue scheduled for release on May 15, 1939.

The West Toronto Stamp Club complained to the Post Office Department on April 10, 1939 that the new 10-cent Special delivery stamp was first sold in Toronto on Monday, April 3rd whereas they were first sold in Montreal on April 1st. J.F. Gregg, Secretary of the Toronto club complained at the lack of information to collectors and called the negligence an abuse of privilege. A.M. Brophy a prominent stamp dealer in Montreal was accused of having insider information at Post Office Headquarters resulting in the Special Delivery stamps being offered for sale in Montreal on Saturday April 1st. Brophy wrote to Atwater on April 11th stating that he heard from a friend in Ottawa that the 10-cent stamps were on sale in Ottawa on April 1st. He then telephoned his local postmaster in Montreal who stated that he had received the new stamps and since there were no special instructions they would be put on sale on Saturday, April 1, at 11.00 a.m. Brophy purchased 600 stamps at Station "B" and a further large quantity at Montreal's main post office.

H.R. Atwater, Financial Superintendent, in a letter dated April 13 to the Postmaster General endeavoured to "whitewash" the whole issue. He contended that the post office "... did not issue a Special Delivery stamp... it was decided to use the old stamp and simply change the denomination. With the change of denomination we automatically had to change the colour." He concluded by stating that "There was no new issue. There was no irregularity on the part of the Department and the West Toronto Stamp Club would seem to be unduly alarmed over something which did not happen, i.e. a change in respect to a new stamp issue."

Collectors thought that postal officials were to some measure incompetent in their handling the release of information related to the issuance of the 10-cent Special Delivery stamp.

Effective April 15, 1939 the reduction in fees of 20 cents to 10 cents for Special Delivery letters from the USA for delivery in Canada took place. Bill Austin, Chief Accountant – Revenue Department, informed Atwater by letter on July 18, 1939 that Special Delivery Service was available at 84 post offices in Canada. If the service was available at all accounting offices in Canada there would be approximately 6,000 post offices involved.

Very little information appears in the 1940-41 Departmental archives. In mid-1941 Chief Superintendent Underwood noted that the rate of pay allowed Special Delivery messengers at the various centres across Canada was 10 cent per item in the larger centres and 8 cent per item in the smaller centres. Special Delivery service was confined to municipalities receiving a free delivery service by letter carriers. Underwood also noted that in some instances the cost of delivering some Special Delivery letters cost more than 10 cents per item, e.g. carfare of 8-cents per mile was required to be paid in some instances.

In support of Canada's war effort a new regular series of stamps known as the War Issue was released on July 1, 1942. Included in the series was a 10-cent Special Delivery stamp. This stamp was plainer and brighter than previous Special Delivery stamps. Military flags of the armed forces, the army, the navy, and the air force were added to each side of the shield containing the Coat of Arms. (Fig. 10)

When World War II ended, a new regular set of stamps known as the Peace Issue was released on September 16, 1946. A 10-cent Special Delivery stamp was included. This time laurel and olive branches representing peace replaced the military flags on either side of the shield. (Fig. 11)

Figure 11.

The rate of payment for delivering Special Deliveries was increased to 12 cents on January 1, 1951. Previously, effective March 1, 1950, 22 post offices including Guelph and Owen Sound had the rate of 8 cents increased to 10 cents. The rate of 15 cents per letter and 20 cents per parcel for delivering Special Deliveries was established on October 1, 1956. In

Figure 12.

September 1958 postal authorities noted that it cost 24.8 cents per item to deliver Special Deliveries. The Post Office Weekly Bulletin for October 1963 announced that effective November 1, 1963 delivery fees would increase to 25 cents for First Class Mail and 35 cents for parcels. This was for delivery in Canada only. (Fig. 12)

Special Delivery stamps were also issued for official government business. There are four types of Special Delivery stamps. The Coat of Arms of Canada is the central feature on all of them. (Figures 13, 14, 15)

A notice in the Postal Guide Weekly Bulletin of December 22, 1951 officially ended the issuance of Special Delivery stamps in Canada. It stated: "The Department has decided to discontinue the printing of the 10-cent Special Delivery postage stamp because of the comparatively small sale of the item." Or, perhaps, was one of the reasons for the discontinuance the fact that regular postage stamps were being used more and more frequently to pay Special Delivery?

On April 15, 1987, Canada Post used the 1921 designed Coat of Arms on a 36-cent stamp issued to honour the Canadian Bill of Rights and Freedoms. (Fig. 16) The redesigned Coat of Arms of 1994 has not appeared on a Canadian stamp. Philatelists look forward to its use at some appropriate time in the future. ✦

Canada's Two TRANS-ATLANTIC S

By Gray Scrimgeour, FRPSC

Two pioneers in the carriage of Canadian mail across the Atlantic Ocean are featured on stamps issued at The RPSC's 2004 convention in Halifax: Sir Samuel Cunard and Sir Hugh Allan ^[1].

Cunard (Figure 1) was born at Halifax on November 21, 1787. His father was the master carpenter of the Royal Engineers there, but also became a trader. Cunard and Son traded with the West Indies and acted as shipping agents. Using sailing vessels, they carried the mail from Halifax to Boston, Massachusetts and St. John's, Newfoundland. Samuel became head of the company in the 1820s, and bought and sold many ships.

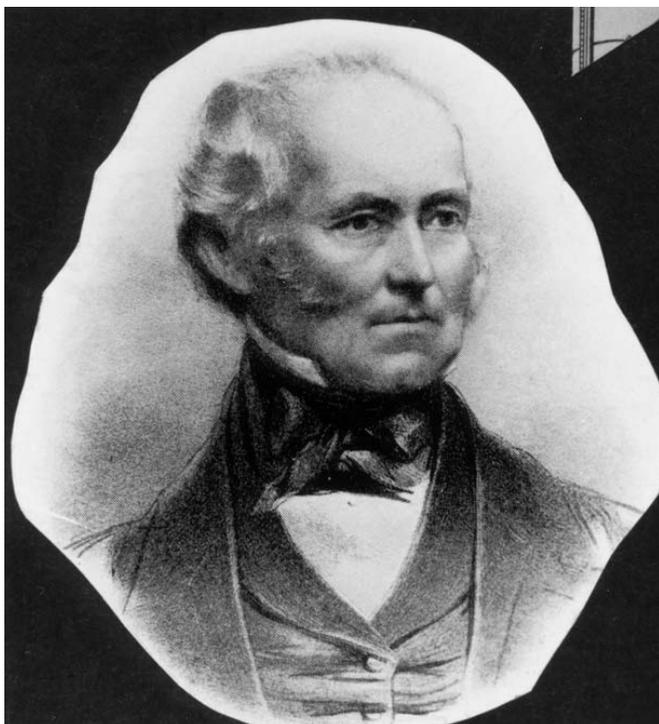

Allan (Figure 2) was born in Scotland on September 29, 1810. He went to work in the import trade in Montreal in 1826. He became senior partner in a growing shipping firm (operating sailing vessels between Glasgow and Montreal), and steadily rose in the hierarchy of the Montreal business community.

This article is a short discussion of the roles of the companies of these two men in linking Canada and Great Britain at a time when letters were the fastest means of communication – the early transoceanic steamship era.

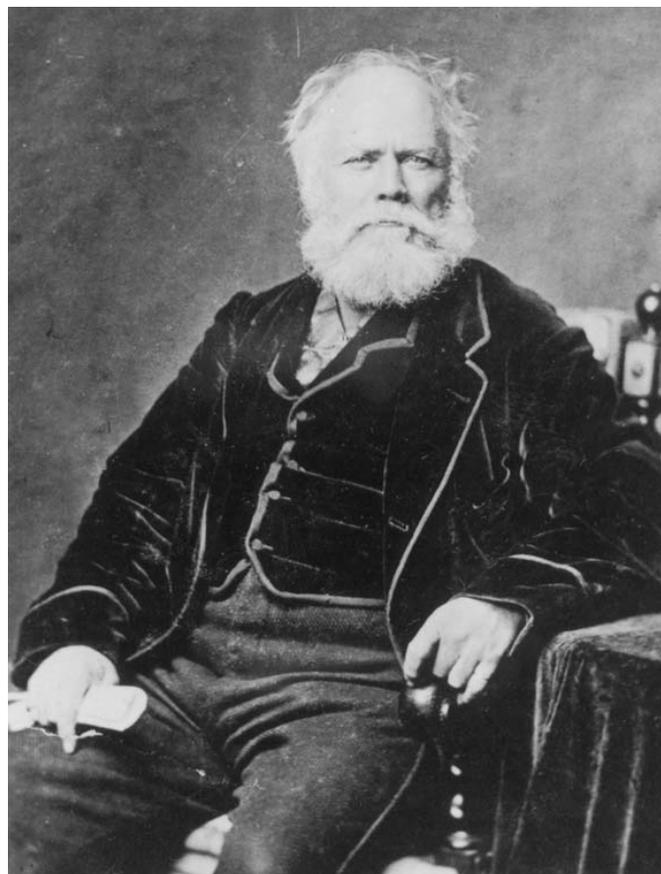

Samuel Cunard was an early fan of steamships at a time when many people scoffed at their transoceanic use. The British post office, though, favoured steamships, which would cut the transit time for mail in half. When the British Admiralty advertised for tenders for steamship service between England and the United States via Halifax, Cunard obtained financial support in Britain and organized a successful bid for the project. ^[2,3] The terms of the seven-year contract started June 1, 1840. The initial £55,000/year was raised to £173,340 by 1852. Shipping companies relied on such subsidies to help pay for start-up and maintenance costs.

The original Cunard contract called for maintenance of four steamships and carriage of mails twice a month for eight months and monthly in winter on a Liverpool-Halifax-Boston route. The small ship Unicorn, intended for the St. Lawrence River service, brought the first Cunard mails in May 1840. The first of the four regular Cunard steamships, the Britannia, departed from Liverpool in July 1840, and took 14 days and 8 hours to reach Boston via Halifax. The Liverpool-Halifax-Boston service proved successful. To save time, in 1845 the Canadian mail route was switched to go via Boston, not by the St. Lawrence and overland to Halifax. New York was added as another western terminal in 1847, and the voyages soon became weekly. In September 1850 the call at Halifax was dropped, and in 1867 New York replaced Boston for all Cunard sailings. Cunard's fleet grew, with new ships that were larger and faster. For example, the 3,300-ton Persia (1856) was the first iron mail steamer on the Atlantic. Cunard had much competition; by responding to this competition, the company stayed at the forefront of Atlantic steamship service.

In 1855, a syndicate led by Hugh Allan obtained a Canadian government mail contract for fortnightly sailings Montreal-Liverpool in summer and monthly sailings Portland, Maine-Liverpool in the winter, when the St. Lawrence River was frozen. Portland and Montreal had been connected by a railway in 1853. The Allan Line started operation on this service in 1856, when the North American sailed to Quebec.

The steamship service became weekly in the summer of 1859. The Allan Line competed with the Cunard Line, and after some initial setbacks was quite successful.

Starting in 1859, to speed up mail delivery, both companies called at an Irish port. Mails could be taken more rapidly between Ireland and London by rail and mail ship across the Irish Sea than by the transoceanic ships, saving a full day in their transmission. Both companies had postal facilities on board the ships. Onboard sorting and postmarking also saved delivery time. By 1863, the Allan Line was carrying 80% of the Canadian mail overseas plus some United States overseas mail.

Here are two examples of trans-Atlantic mail, one carried by a Cunard Line ship and the other by an Allan Line ship. I have purposely chosen examples bearing postage stamps. Most of us find it easier to interpret covers with postage stamps rather than trans-Atlantic stampless covers, with their handwritten markings.

Figure 3 shows a cover addressed to Montreal carried from Liverpool to New York in the Cunard ship Africa in 1856. The cover is franked with a 6d lilac and a 2d deep blue adhesive, both tied by the Liverpool barred numeral 466. The Africa departed from Liverpool on November 23, 1861, the date of the Liverpool postmark on the reverse (this is the Liverpool P.L.O or Packet Letter Office postmark). The cover went by closed bag to Montreal, where it was received on Decem-duplex cancel tying the 12 ½¢ adhesive (yellow green stamp of the 1859 Issue) is dated November 25, 1863. This letter was taken by railway via Montreal to Portland, Maine. It was carried across the Atlantic to Merville, just north of Londonderry, in the Allan ship North American, which departed from Portland on November 28, 1863. A red circular Derry packet letter handstamp shows it arrived at Londonderry on December 8, 1863. From July 1, 1859 to January 15, 1868, the postage rate from Canada to the United Kingdom was 12 ½¢ per ½ ounce for mail sent by the Allan Line. The rate by the Cunard Line was 17¢ per ½ ounce, with the extra postage covering the United States transit fee to New York, the terminus of the Cunard ships. The sailing dates of trans-Atlantic ships are listed in several reference books, which greatly aids in analyzing this type of maritime mail.

Today, the Cunard Line operates cruise ships. The Allan Line was purchased by the Canadian Pacific Railway during the First World War. In the late 1930s, for letter-mail service, airplanes replaced steamships. Many fascinating – and often confusing – features of the Canadian trans-Atlantic mails are explained in the extensive writings of Allan Steinhart and Jack Arnell (both were fellows of this Society) in The Canadian Philatelist and the PHSC Journal. 🌿

RAILPOST, ESPECIALLY ONDULE

By "Napoleon"

Railroad stations and trains were an integral part of the 19th century French postal system. Certainly one of the most interesting French cancellations was the wavy-edged (ondule) circular date stamp rail post cancel (Figure 1). For readers who remember movies with scenes set inside French railroad passenger coaches, there often was a postal window in a corner of the coach. The passenger coach postal clerk applied ondule cancels.

Figure 2 shows an ondule rail post cancel earlier than that of Figure 1. The station name was in an arc at the top of the cancel, and the ends of the rail line were abbreviated in capital letters across the center. The railpost cancel of Figure 2 first came with the département (province) identified by a number in parentheses at the bottom of the cancel. Later the département name appeared at the same spot in the cancel. As of the Sage issue, the origin and destination stations in the cancel were in arcs just inside the wavy line, not across the center.

Also starting with the Sage issue, the circular date stamp (CDS) canceled the stamp. Earlier, the cancel usually was something other than the CDS. One pre-CDS cancel was the losange cancel, the diamond-of-dots. These cancels had letters in the center representing the origin and destination of the train. Figure 3 shows a losange cancel used in a railroad mail coach—not passenger coach—for the train from Toulouse to Bordeaux. A rail post losange cancel was called an ambulant, as was the Type 15 dual-concentric-circles CDS of Figure 4. The Figure 4 ambulant was for the Bordeaux-to-Toulouse train, the reverse of the route in Figure 3's ambulant.

By the 1870s, France used different cancel shapes to mark day, night, and express trains. The octagon-in-circle shown in Figure 6 represented day mail service between cities. Night mail trains and express trains used the cancels shown in Figure 7. On the left was a Type 15 concentric-full-circles cancel for night train service. On the right was an ondule in a circle for express train service. ♣

REGISTERED to the U.K.

1868 - 1875

By George B. Arfken, FRPSC
and Horace W. Harrison

Here we look at registered letters to the U.K. franked with Large Queens and Small Queens but mailed before the Registered Letter Stamps became available.^[1] Throughout this period, 1868 - 1875, the registry fee was 8¢. However there were four different packet rates as shown in the accompanying table. The 15¢ Cunard rate was a reduction of 2 from the 17¢ per half ounce in effect since July 1, 1869. The 12½¢ Allan rate had been in effect since July 1, 1869.

Packet Rates to the United Kingdom (per one half ounce)

Date	Cunard	Allan	Registration
Jan. 16, 1868	15¢	12½¢	8¢
Jan. 1, 1870	8¢	6¢
Oct. 1, 1875	5¢ preferred rate

Figure 1 shows a registered cover from Toronto, Monday, March 15, 1869 addressed to London, England. The cover was sent to New York for the Wednesday sailing of the Cunard Russia.^[2] For the earliest delivery, the cover was landed at Queenstown, Ireland and sent by rail to Kingston, by packet across the Irish Sea to Holyhead, Wales and by rail to London. Trains were faster than ships. The London MY 27 69 postmarks give a 13-day transit time counting both the 15th and the 27th.

Figure 1. 15 Cunard rate to London, England, March 15, 1869. Registration paid with 8¢ in Large Queens.

The cover of Figure 2 was mailed in Dunville, U.C. on Wednesday, May 5, 1869 and was sent to Quebec for the Allan Nestorian that sailed on Saturday, May 8. The cover was off-landed at Moville, Ireland (north of Londonderry) and was sent by rail to Dublin. There is a red REGISTERED DUBLIN MY 18 69 backstamp. Delivery on the 18th meant a total transit time of 14 days.

The registered cover of Figure 3 is addressed to England but lacks the red receiving marks of figure 1. This is the evidence that the cover did not go by Cunard packet. Posted in Montreal June 6, 1870 and paid eight cents for a packet out of New York and 8¢ for registration, this cover was sent in closed bag for the Hamburg - American steamer Silesia that sailed from New York Tuesday evening, June 7. The Silesia did not stop at Queenstown or Liverpool but entered the English Channel. The cover was off-loaded at Plymouth, England on Friday, June 17^[3] and dispatched inland to Exeter.

Figure 4 shows a cover registered to Scotland with 20¢ mixed franking. The 1¢ and 3¢ Large Queens were being replaced by the corresponding Small Queens. The 20¢ paid for double Allan rate up to one ounce and the usual 8¢ registration. Mailed in St. Catharines, Ont., on Saturday, June 18, 1870, the cover could have been sent to New York for a Cunard packet but this would have meant that the cover was four cents short paid and faced a penalty. Instead, the cover was sent to Quebec for the sailing of the Allan Prussian on Saturday, June 25. The cover was off-loaded at Moville, sent to Belfast by rail and then to Scotland by the Glasgow packet. There is a nice GLASGOW PACKET PAID JY 5 1870 transit stamp. The cover reached Edinburgh the next day.

Table 9 in Canada's Registered Mail ^[4] lists 20 Large Queen – Small Queen registered covers to the U.K. during 1868 - 1875. Since that manuscript went to press, two more covers have been reported. None of these covers came in the five-cent preferred rate period but before the 8¢ RLS appeared. That's a stretch of five months, Oct. 1875 - Feb. 1876, with no registered covers to the U.K. yet listed. ✱

Identifying Air Mail: Part II

By Murray Heifetz

Figure 17. "Boxed" airmail handstamp on posting from Vancouver to Paris Sep. 8, 1933. This variety with splits on all four sides of the frame is a type used only in Vancouver.

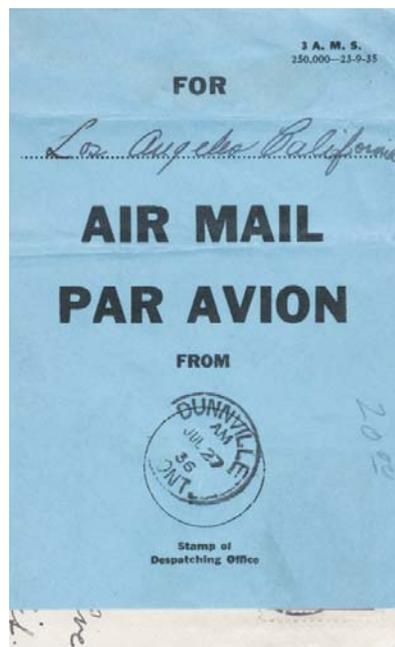

Figure 18. Facing Label for airmail from Dunville to Los Angeles July 27, 1936. 250,000 printed Sep. 23, 1935

Not everyone had access to etiquettes, and the need to indicate "By Air Mail" was done by both handstamp and by rubber stamp. The variety of rubber stamps is unlimited but one grouping was post office authorized and likely produced. This is the "boxed" AIR MAIL handstamp proofed in 1928. This writer has made a study of these markings and classified them according to their size, frame and letter characteristics. There are, to date, 18 varieties in use from 1929 on. In practice they are rarely found after the late 1930's but some people have the original handstamp and still use it. It is not known whether the Post Office had these produced and then distributed them nationally, or merely laid out the specifications and had postmasters get their own supply made locally. (Figure 17).

Etiquettes and handstamps were useful for individual pieces of mail but, as the use of airmail increased, there was a necessity of identifying quantities of mail intended for carriage by air. To meet this need the Post Office produced facing labels and tags. While I don't have too much information on the facing labels, I believe they were used when the quantity was smaller, intended for a single destination, and could be tied in a bundle with the facing label attached to the top letter in the bundle. To support this I illustrate a cover with the facing label attached. This label was printed in 1935 which is the earliest I have. My latest is 1960 though I suspect there are both earlier and later printing dates. (Figure 19).

When there was a complete mail bag for a single destination, the post office used tags tied to the outside of the bag. These were in horizontal and vertical format. Both the facing label and the tags had the destination, AIR MAIL PAR AVION in the centre, and the originating city date stamp. My printing dates for the horizontal format tags range from 1948 to 1958. My vertical format tags are all destined for Quebec City and were printed from 1957 to 1959.

The publication Transportation Proof Strikes of Canada edited by J. Paul Hughes and published by Robert A. Lee shows a large number of strikes for use in identifying airmail. Many of these were never used; but a number were. Among these we can find: TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR MAIL, TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR MAIL/ARMY P.O. ENGLAND (Dec. 1940), VIA CHINA CLIPPER (Aug. 1939), PAID AIR MAIL RATE (Aug. 1938), FOR AIR MAIL SERVICE, and many PAR AVION and VIA AIR MAIL strikes. (Figure 20).

When airmail was originally introduced, long range flights were non-existent. International airmail was a combination of air with various modes of surface travel. The late Frans van Beveren coined the term "combi-covers" to describe them. In addressing this new mode of transport, the U.P.U. introduced directions as to how mail should be marked when conveyed part by air and part by surface. These directions gave rise to a multitude of routing instructions on mail - typed, handwritten, and some with rubber stamp. When mailing a letter, the sender was to mark on the envelope the preferred routing by air and by surface. In later years, when long range aircraft were available, one could mark the preference of airline.

Three covers shown below will illustrate how these directions were applied. The first is a posting from Bowmanville to Germany on August 11, 1929. It is franked 5¢ for airmail from Montreal to New York, 10¢ for registration, 20¢ for special delivery, and 8¢ for surface rate by sea to England. The 2d. applied at London covers the air fee to Germany. The total routing is shown typed on the cover. The second cover is a posting from Montreal dated June 23, 1933. The sender asks for routing by air to New York, SS Bremen by sea to England and then by Imperial Airways to Calcutta. The cover is underpaid as the 16¢ (8d.) only covers the air fee on Imperial from London to Calcutta. The third cover shows a revision of normal routing after the Pan American Pacific 'Clipper' service terminated after the fall of Hong Kong in December 1941. The cover from China to Toronto has a handscript "By BOAC to Lagos via Calcutta and thence by PAA to Canada". (Figures 21, 22 & 23).

Three distinctive types of markings were developed as a result of these UPU directions. These are known as "jusqu'à", "au delà", and "obliteration" and all three relate to partially flown covers.

The term "jusqu'à" is French for "as far as". It is a marking used when a piece of mail is designated for carriage by air only up to an intermediate point on its route with the balance to be provided by surface means. This could be because of lack of continuing air service or underpayment of air fee. "au delà" roughly meaning "from beyond", refers to mail sent from origin by surface to a point from which continuing service is to be provided by air. These markings are found in several languages, the most common being French, English, and Spanish. An "obliteration" occurs when a piece of airmail arrives at a point on its route where, unintended, continuing service by air ceases. Again, this could be because of unexpected discontinuance of air service, underpayment of air fee, or some other cause. The obliteration is applied at the point where air service ceases and is usually applied over the original airmail designator i.e. an etiquette or handstamp. The most common form of obliteration are parallel bars (anywhere from two to six), and crosses. The most common colours are red, black, and violet. They can be applied by handstamp, or less commonly used, by handscript. The most common usage is two parallel bars in red applied at London, UK. These come in various bar widths, lengths, and spacings. Ian McQueen, in England, has published a comprehensive worldwide listing of these three markings. He has also recently published a two-volume compendium of worldwide airmail markings of all types.

Some examples of these markings are shown as they apply to Canada. Two "jusqu'à" are shown. The cover from Chengtu, China to Toronto has a cachet "airmail service in China only". (Figure 24). The cover from Calgary to Montreal Sep. 27, 1952 has a straight line "Prepaid for Air Transmission in Canada only". Two "au delà" are shown. (Figure 25). The cover posted at Brussels Oct. 11, 1937 to Woodstock has a handscript at the top "Par Avion à partir de New York" i.e. it went by sea to New York and then by air to Canada. (Figure 26). The Nov. 1, 1941 posting from Victoria to Colombo has a two-line violet strike "to be forwarded by air from Singapore". (Figure 27). Three obliterations are shown. The 1932 posting from Vancouver to Germany would have been routed via the U.S.A. to New York as there was no Trans Canada service at this date. (Figure 28). The obliteration was applied at New York as there was no continuing air service existing. The 1940 posting from Montreal to Holland has an obliteration applied at London (one of the two parallel bars missed the envelope) as continuing air service to Holland was cancelled at the time because of the war. (Figure 29). The cover posted at Niagara Falls Nov. 9, 1954 to England has a Canadian 2-bar obliteration applied at Toronto because the 15¢ postage paid was insufficient for airmail to England. (Figure 30).

During the period from 1940 to the mid 1970s, carriage by airmail could also be directed by the use of O.A.T. or AV2 strikes. These marks owe their origin to U.P.U. rules and procedures although there is no specific reference to their use. When there was insufficient airmail to one or more countries to justify individual mailbags, such mail would be tied into bundles or packets and labelled for each destination. A number of packets to different destinations would then be put into a single mailbag which was sent to a post office in a country where the ongoing routes to the individual destinations diverged. On arrival at this "exchange office", the bag would be opened and the individual packets rebagged, either to be re-opened further down the line or sent with other airmail from other sources to its destination in a sealed bag. Much of the mail during the 1940-1946 period was routed via London. If the continuing mail was to be sent to its destination by air, individual letters or the top letter in a bundle would receive a rubber stamp O.A.T., meaning Onward Air Transmission. There are currently 26 different types of OAT strikes. Their range of usage is 1940 to 1970.

U.P.U. regulations required that a label marked "Par Avion" and inscribed with its destination be attached to each bundle and each sealed mailbag. There was also to be an accounting form which listed the quantities of mail for each destination and which would be used to determine each country's share of the postage revenue. The accounting form was given the designation AV2, more informally known by the term "Bordereau". (Note: - there were 10 U.P.U. forms with designation from AV1 to AV10 to cover various accounting and other purposes in the transmission of airmail). As in the case of O.A.T. strikes, individual or top of bundle letters could receive an AV2 strike. Unlike the intent of the O.A.T. strike, in most cases this was intended to alert postmasters to the fact that the required AV2 form accompanied the mailbag or bundle. However, of the 44 types of AV2 strikes known, several did have the same function as the O.A.T. strike i.e. to direct onward air transmission. This is particularly applicable for AV2 strikes applied at the exchange offices of Cairo and Singapore. AV2 strikes are known from 1938 to 1979. Of the 26 different

O.A.T. types, 15 are recorded in use from Canada. For the 44 AV2 types only 3 are known in use from Canada. For both OAT and AV2 strikes one of the recorded types in each case is by handscript. All the rest are by rubber stamp.

Several examples of these strikes are shown. The 1940 cover from Canada to Switzerland is an O.A.T. type I in the rare black colour (normally in red) and the third-earliest O.A.T. strike recorded. (Figure 31). The cover from Canada to Denmark is a type VII illustrating the transition of the strike shape from oval to rectangular. (Figure 32). The three known usages of AV2 strikes from Canada are illustrated by the two covers from Canada to China (types 5 and 5a) and the handscript type from Canada to Labuan. (Figures 33, 34 & 35).

The various techniques used to identify airmail have been outlined roughly in the chronological order in which they were introduced. By the mid-1970s, almost all mail for destinations beyond 500 miles was automatically sent by air with no additional postage fee required. Thus there was no further need for specific identification. The only remnants still in current use are airgrams, airmail designed envelopes, and etiquettes. ❁

MESSAGES... without sounds

By Michael Madesker, RDP, FRPSC

Australian Aboriginal rock art, scattered throughout the country, is at least 3,000 years old. Some exceptional depictions may go back as far as 18,000 years to the end of the Ice Age. The materials to create them are white clay, red and yellow ochres and charcoal. Finely ground, mixed with water and binding agents, they may have been applied by brushes or by hand. Australian Aboriginals used art for communication as well as expressions of their beliefs.

The art depicted on the 1984 series of stamps shown here comes from several areas of Australia.

The stamp (Fig. 1) represents the art of finger painting stick figures performing a ceremonial dance with legs bowed and arms raised with some holding a boomerang or a shield. It came from the Cobar region of New South Wales. The stamp in Fig. 2 is of Quinkans, spirit figures which are suggestive of "bad" things as opposed to "good" ancestral beings. They have non-human features and distorted bodies, limbs and heads. The large, elongated figure is called Timara, an ancestral being responsible for food distribution. Generally, Quinkans are ghosts of the dead to be feared and avoided. This art was found at Cape York in Queensland. The stamp illustrated in Fig. 3 is that of a Rock Python of the Wandjina people at Gibb River in the Kimberlays, Western Australia. This example of the Wandjina art shows a snake coming from the East heading with its young towards the sea. Being tired, they decided to rest in a cave which they found with the aid of a Wandjina Spirit. The place is called "Mandangari", belonging to the Manda, and serves as a totem for area people.

Wandjina Aboriginals believe that Wandjina spirits are beings in the clouds. At one time they entered the earth and left their images on rocks. These images are characterized by a human form with a halo composed of a cloud and lightening, great eyes and a large cavity where the mouth is expected to be. (Fig. 4) These images were created by the Wandjinas who maintain them. This art is also from the Gibb River. In aboriginal mythology of Sout-Eastern Australia Bunjil was a divine-like figure. He was benevolent, old and wise, credited with creating the earth, trees, animals, and men. This drawing was found at Grampians in Western Australia. The next two stamps are representative of X-ray style art. The 30¢ stamp is that of a silver barramundi, a freshwater fish called namangol in Djawenj. It earned the name X-ray art by showing not only the external features but also its bone structure and internal organs. The 85¢ stamp depicts a rock possum, djorrkun, which is treated similarly to the barramundi except for some added decorations. The body of the possum is subdivided and filled with lines and other markings. These samples came from the Kakadu National park, Alligators River Area of the Northern Territory. ❁

(Centre): Mr. Chow Kwong-Yi [addressee] plus the blue cachet 'Not in Directory' and initialled in pencil.

This cover comes with a very human tale to tell and involves crossing the Pacific Ocean both ways without being read by the addressee. The translated markings found on the cover are illustrated with captions.

At the time of this cover, Chinese emigrants were sent to holding camps until their designated ships arrived to take them on their overseas journey. This eased the administration process for both the government and shipping companies. It was usual for ships en route from Hong Kong to North America to call at only two Chinese mainland ports, namely Shanghai and Chefoo. From China the ships called at Korea and Japan before making their way across the Pacific Ocean. The normal ports of call in North America were Vancouver, Canada and in the USA, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles. It was routine for these ships to take the same route on the return journey to China thereby establishing a regular trade route between China, USA and Canada.

Mrs. Chow who lived with her husband's parents at Kotong just to the north of Canton in Kwangtung Province sent this letter to her husband at the encampment at Xian-shui Pu. The Anhwei encampment at Xian-Shui was situated to the north of Tunxi and to the south of the Yangtze River. Xian-shui was well served with steam trains, roads, and even ships and boats on the Yangtze River enabling the emigrants to be quickly transported to Shanghai when their ship arrived in port ready to take them on their long journey across the ocean. It is believed that this was the only convenient place to build this camp with the required ease of access to the port of Shanghai and a central assembly point for both south and mid China without straining the resources of the Shanghai townspeople.

Mrs. Chow sent this letter hoping to catch her husband before he left for Canada, but she was unlucky. She had posted this pre-paid express redband cover on September 30th. Pre-paid Express covers have a full postmark and also half of a postmark on the cover. This extra half postmark was to indicate that the appropriate Express fee had been paid and the corresponding half postmark appeared on the receipt. A portion of this half postmark can be seen under the stamp. The cover arrived at the camp but her husband had already left on his voyage to Canada. Someone at the camp decided to forward the letter on to Canada by putting Mr. Chow's name and address in Canada (in English) on the front of the cover and a 15-cent stamp on the back. While putting Mr. Chow's forwarding details in the little available space his name appeared as 'Mr Chow Yui Hinj' instead of 'Mr Chow Kwong-Yi'. The only problem was that this letter was forwarded almost 11 months after Mrs. Chow had posted it to her husband. The stamp was cancelled on August 20th, and sent off to Canada by ship. At this time there was no regular airmail service established between China and the rest of the world – hence the sea voyage.

When the cover reached Vancouver, Canada, it entered the foreign mail section of the Vancouver Post Office. From here it was dispatched to the poste restante section where the details of all the registered recent arrivals were listed in directories. These directories listed the post offices where the recent arrivals had registered and the mail would have been delivered to that particular post office ready for collection by the addressee. It is very probable that with this difference of name, and the delay of nearly 11 months, resulted in Mr. Chow's name not being found in any of the Vancouver directories. The outcome was that the cover was stamped 'Not in Directory' (and initialled in pencil) and was returned to the sender (Mrs. Chow) in China. Here are a few points, which may explain why the letter never got to Mr. Chow:

1. The English name written on the cover, by the camp, was different from Mr. Chow's real name and, therefore, did not correspond with any directory entry.

2. Mr. Chow did not register with the post office and, therefore, was not entered in any directory.

3. Mr. Chow had moved into a more permanent address and had deregistered with the post office when this letter had arrived.

Dating this letter exactly presents some difficulty because lunar daters never included the year – only the day and month. The date indicated on the Kotong postmark is September 30th, and August 20th, for the Xian-shui posting. The design of the 15-cent stamp shows that it was from the second printing and issued between 1923 and 1933. Further research shows that

The cover came complete with this enclosed letter and reads as follows:

Dear Kwong-Yi,

In June you sent 100 Silver Dollars to your mother which she has safely received. However, up to now she has not given me any of this money. Since December [1928] your mother has not cared about any matters of the home. All the money I have spent has come from my father.

Unfoundedly your mother says that you may send money to my father, and this causes many frequent quarrels between us. Since May of this year your mother eats by herself. When you ordered me to send our son, Per-Soon, to school how am I to pay the school fees? I ask you to send more money to cover these household bills.

Please do not rebuke your mother in order to avoid further quarrels.

All the family members at home are safe and well. Please allow me to say that your gold is safe.

8th August 1929.

Your wife,
Yang

the international postal rate from China was 15 cents between July 1, 1930 and February 1, 1931 for the basic weight rate. Prior to July 1930 the rate was 10 cents and after February 1931 the rate was increased to 20 cents. Therefore, the date of this cover can be dated as being posted by Mrs. Chow in Kotong on Monday, September 30, 1929 and forwarded from Xian-shui (Maolintsun) on Wednesday August 20, 1930. The most convenient post office used to forward this letter was situated outside the camp at Maolintsun in Anhwei province. Maolintsun lies to the north of Tunxi and to the south of the Yangtze River. The details of the post offices are given below:

Maolintsun

This office is situated in Anhwei Province. It was a third-class office dealing in limited internal postage matters. Also, it issued and cashed Domestic Money Orders, Telegraph Money Orders, and Cash On Delivery items up to the value of $200 (Chinese).

Kotong

This is located to the north of Canton in the Kwangtung Province. It was a second-class office, which was similar to the Maolintsun office, but with the ability to deal with international parcels (COD and Registered) to and from certain foreign countries, issuing and cashing postal orders for small amounts, and could insure letters and parcels up to a value of $500 (Chinese).

This letter gives a small insight into the life of an ordinary family living in China during the late 1920s. The married son's family was living in the same house as his parents and, as was usual, frequent quarrels broke out especially concerning money. The schooling of the son appears to be the main concern of the father who has gone overseas to work. Most probably, if his work pays well he may settle down and send for his family to start a new life overseas. In the meantime, Mrs. Chow was struggling to make ends meet and the delay and return of this letter did not make matters any easier.

In conclusion, we can see that with the delay of 11 months, and a slip of the pen when translating Mr. Chow's details into English, caused the cover to travel almost halfway across the world and back again without the intended recipient ever getting a chance to read its contents.

Either the Chinese or Canadian Post Office applied these red marks over the stamp to denote 'Return to sender'. ❀

Dorothy Wilding:

By Michael Peach

Photographer Extraordinaire

Fifty-year-old set of Dorothy Wilding definitive stamps.

The year 2004 marks the 50th anniversary of the appearance of the Wilding definitive stamps of Canada, the 5-cent blue having been issued on 1 April 1954. The first British definitive stamps of the reign of Queen Elizabeth II issued in December 1952 were the Wilding definitives. The Wilding portrait of the Queen was a prominent feature of British stamps in the earlier years of her reign, both definitives and commemoratives, being used to identify Great Britain. Other Wilding portraits of members of the Royal Family also appeared on several different stamps of various Commonwealth countries

Dorothy Wilding was born on 10 January 1893, the ninth child of Richard Wilding and the fourth daughter with his second wife, Mary Martha Edwards. Her parents decided to send her, at age four, to be brought up by her childless aunt and uncle Fanny and Thomas Hayter in Cheltenham Spa. The ambitious young lady wanted to make her mark in the world. She purchased her first camera and tripod in 1909 from a shop in the Cheltenham Promenade where there is still a camera shop. Very early on, she formed an interest in the technique of lighting.

Despite family objections she moved to London and began her photographic career as an apprentice specializing as a retoucher for three leading London West End photographers: Walter Barnett, Richard Speaight and Marion Neilson. By 1914 at age 21 she had saved enough money to open her first studio in George Street off Portman Square. In 1918 she moved to larger studios in Regent Street and then to Bond Street in 1924. After moving from George Street she began experimenting with artificial lighting.

During the 1920s and 1930s portrait photography in England enjoyed a golden era. Amongst the many photographers in London, Dorothy Wilding excelled as the most successful and most fashionable woman practitioner. Her many clients included the glitterati of the 30s, 40s and 50s. Wilding went on to become England's most successful portrait photographer and, despite having been associated as a photographer with Mrs. Simpson and Edward VIII, she became the first woman to be granted "By Appointment" status to the Royal Family. In 1937 she was invited to take the official accession and coronation photographs of George VI and Queen Elizabeth. That same year she opened a studio in New York.

Wilding was not only a great photographer, but also a great lighting technician. She created her own individual style in which the important elements included lighting, simple art deco props, and plain white backgrounds to produce authoritative, elegant, and geometric compositions. This accomplishment, when combined with her distinct artistic flair, produced some of the greatest photographic portraits of the last century. Her autobiography In Pursuit of Perfection was published in 1958. Her surviving archives were presented to the National Portrait Gallery (London) by her sister Mrs. Susan Morton in 1976. They formed the basis of a major NPG retrospective exhibition and catalogue in 1991 with the same title, The Pursuit of Perfection.

She married twice. In 1920, at age 24, she married Walter Portham, a 49-year-old leather merchant. The marriage was in effect a father-daughter relationship and they were divorced in 1932. Portham died of a heart attack during the Second World War. Her second marriage, in 1932, was to a long time friend, the interior decorator, painter and Mayfair architect, Thomas 'Rufus' Leighton Pearce. They had no children.

Wilding retired in 1958 by this time her style of portraiture had become unfashionable. In her later years she concentrated on interior decoration. After a long illness she died on 9 February 1976 at the age of 83. Her death was noted in the Deaths, In Memoriam column of the Daily Telegraph, but not a single obituary was published.

Jane Richards, in The Independent Magazine, 29 June 1991, writes:

"Never a beauty, short and stocky, she wore horn-rimmed glasses and a black beret, she seems to have used photography as a projection of her own female ideal". Tallulah Bankhead is said to have declared, "This is the woman who made my name in London with her beautiful photographs of me," to which Wilding replied, "And this is the woman who made my name with her beautiful head."

Wilding's portraits have been used on a number of British and Commonwealth stamps. The first Canadian one was the 1939 Royal Visit stamp with the pictures of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. The same photographs had been used on the Coronation stamp of Great Britain as well as the Newfoundland 1939 Royal Visit issues. After the end of the war it was decided to produce stamps showing the King in civilian clothes rather than military uniform, and Wilding portraits were used for the 1949 definitive series. I am not sure where the King's portrait on the 1948 Responsible Government stamp originated, but it looks very similar to the 1949 definitive series portrait facing left. The 1947 Royal Wedding stamp marking the wedding of Princess Elizabeth, the present Queen, is taken from a Wilding portrait. The first definitive stamps of the reign of Queen Elizabeth II, 1953, used a picture based on a Karsh photograph. These were replaced in 1954 with the Wilding definitives which in turn were replaced in 1962 by the Cameo issue. De-

In Great Britain Wilding portraits have been used to mark royal anniversaries, the Silver Wedding issue of 1948, the Queen's 60th Birthday, the Queen Mother's 90th Birthday, reissued as a mourning stamp, and the 50th Anniversary of the Queen's Accession. Recently the Wilding definitives have been reissued in Great Britain with values in pence.

Other Commonwealth countries have also used Wilding portraits on stamps. The first Wilding picture of the Queen, then Princess Elizabeth, with her sister Princess Margaret Rose in Girl Guide uniforms appeared on the 1944 New Zealand health issue. The 1947 Royal visit to Southern Africa was marked by stamps of South Africa, that were also overprinted SWA for South West Africa (Namibia), Basutoland (Lesotho), Bechuanaland Protectorate (Botswana), Southern Rhodesia (Zimbabwe) and Swaziland. Australia used Wilding portraits on the 1953 definitive issues, the 1954 Royal Visit, as well as on other stamps. Many of the Commonwealth countries had a common stamp design, some with Wilding portraits such as the 1948 Silver Wedding and the 1953 Coronation issues. ♣

Gold Coast Keyplate Early Postal Markings, Forgeries and Bisects

Part III of this series showed samples of Gold Coast Keyplate printings, plate varieties and early stamped mail (Newroth, 2004). From 1875 to 1900 the Gold Coast postal services expanded and various postal markings were introduced. These postmarks offer scope for study and collecting pleasure. In this article, I introduce early datestamps and cancellations (on Issue 1 Keyplates printed in 1875), forgeries and bisects.

Early Postal Markings:

Gold Coast markings were classified by West Africa Study Circle about 40 years ago and are described in Sacher (2003). After 1855, but before 1875 when adhesive stamps were introduced, handstamps were used in Gold Coast to indicate Paid and Unpaid mail. Rarely, some of these markings are found on stamps. The "ELMINA PAID" handstamp was supplied in 1873 and is occasionally seen on 1875 Keyplates (see Figure 1).

Numeral cancellations also are found on Issue 1 Keyplate stamps. In late July 1875 the "554." obliterator was sent to Accra and the "556." obliterator was assigned to Cape Coast. These numerals were re-assigned from English post offices and new cancellers were made, with periods added after the numerals. These numeral cancellations occur on 1875 issues (Figure 2), but dates of first use are uncertain.

More research is needed, but I can record "556." used on stamps also cancelled Cape Coast Castle (SP 25, 1875) and Winnebah (NO 11, 1875), see Figure 3. The only two 1875 covers known show July and August datestamps on the stamps, but have no numeral obliterations. From about 1876 to the 1890s, Gold Coast postal staff often used these and other obliterations directly on stamps, and put datestamps on the envelopes.

Datestamps from about 10 towns are found occasionally on 1875 Keyplates. Figure 4 illustrates examples used in Cape Coast Castle. Figure 5 shows examples used in other towns and a 1875 stamp with very late use in Elmina in 1882.

Keyplate Forgers and Fakers:

Most Gold Coast forgeries

Figure 5. Examples used in Quittah (1876, blue ink), Accra, Axim, Appam and Winnebah. Also a very late use of 1875 6d in Elmina (1882).

Top right is a 2/- forgery of Keyplate Issue 4, probably by Erasmus Oneglia. It appears to be lithographed, with an oil impressed CA watermark and perforated 14.

At right, two quarters of a 4d Keyplate, making a 2d rate. The Winnebah datestamp is intersected by part of a Cape Coast datestamp suggesting this paid a double local rate.

are crude and stand out in sharp contrast to genuine stamps (see Figure 6). Work of at least four major forgers is known for Gold Coast (Sacher, 2003). Jean de Sperati, probably the most skilled stamp forger known, produced forgeries of several scarce Gold Coast stamps. Some might consider it a distinction that Sperati’s very first “reproduction” in 1911 was of the Gold Coast 1d blue, Watermarked CA (Lowe and Walske, 2001). Today, Sperati’s forgeries are highly sought after.

The 1883 “Taping Provisional” (“1d” overprinted on 4d Keyplate) in British Library Philatelic Collections probably is the most distinguished Gold Coast classic. However, in 2001, Stanley Gibbons removed it as a catalogue listed variety and in a footnote declared “...there are serious doubts as to its authenticity”. More research is needed. The pedigree for this stamp is clear, and evidence of forgery is weak-but we really do not know it all!

Another Gold Coast Keyplate provisional is the 1889 1d on 6d, a personal favourite. My studies identified several overprint varieties of this stamp-including the probably forged overprints illustrated in Figure 7. Overprint letters on the forgeries are smaller than the genuine overprints and their spacing from the bar also differs from that of genuine overprinted stamps. They also are suspicious because no covers or loose dated copies have been seen with them used close to the time of issue. I recorded genuine examples cancelled from 14 different towns, but Quittah (where the B27 cancellation in Figure 7 was used) is not among them.

Bisects:

Genuine shortages of Gold Coast stamps occurred from the late 1870s until the 1890s and bisected stamps were used, probably unofficially, to meet local needs. Examples on cover are very rare, but small pieces with various bisected Keyplates are more common. Sacher (2003) records the known examples-Figure 8 shows examples on piece that appear genuine. ✨

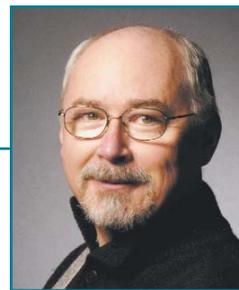

Part V will review the Universal Unified Keyplate stamps of the Gold Coast.

This issue of The Canadian Philatelist coincides with our annual convention being held this year in Halifax, Nova Scotia, May 28-30. When you read this there should be still plenty of time for you to make arrangements to join us to celebrate a weekend of stamps, fun and social events in a fantastic city. Halifax is in my books one of North America's greatest cities. The people are great, the food is excellent and the scenery in and around Halifax is breathtaking. So if you are hesitating, don't. Join us for our 76th Convention.

RPSC Members on stamps

Although I don't recall any RPSC member gracing a Canadian stamp, this cannot be said of our patrons, the Governors General. They are honoured with a stamp at a suitable date a year or so after their deaths. The Right Honourable Ramon John Hnatyshyn was our patron between 1990 and 1995. On March 16, the 70th anniversary of his birth, Canada Post issued a single domestic 49-cent stamp to celebrate his life and achievements. In 1992, His Excellency, as our patron, officially opened CANADA 92, the World Youth Philatelic Exhibition held in Montreal in March of that year. I was pleased to attend the launch of this stamp on behalf of the Society and had a brief conversation with Mrs. Hnatyshyn about her husband and his role as our patron. After retiring Mr. Hnatyshyn returned to the practice of law and was Chancellor of Carleton University from April 2002 until his death. He could fre-

Ce numéro du Philatériste canadien paraît à l'occasion de notre convention annuelle qui se tient cette année à Halifax (Nouvelle-Écosse) les 28-30 mai prochain. Les membres de La SRPC sur timbres-poste

A ma connaissance, aucun de nos membres n'a eu l'honneur d'apparaître sur un timbre-poste canadien. Ce n'est pas le cas pour nos Présidents d'Honneur, les Gouverneurs Généraux. Ils sont honorés sur un timbre-poste à une date importante dans l'année (plus ou moins) qui suit leur décès. Le 16 mars, à l'occasion du 70e anniversaire de sa naissance, Son Excellence le Très Honorable Ramon John Hnatyshyn (Patron, 1990-1995) s'est vu octroyer cet honneur par l'émission d'un timbre-poste de 49 cents. En 1992, en tant que Président d'Honneur, il a ouvert officiellement CANADA 92, l'Exposition mondiale de philatélie jeunesse tenue à Montréal en mars 1992. Il m'a fait grand plaisir de participer au lancement du timbre-poste au nom de la Société et d'avoir une courte conversation avec Madame Hnatyshyn sur le rôle de son mari comme notre Président d'Honneur. quently be seen strolling down Sparks Street Mall in Ottawa at lunchtime. It is there that one day, in 1998, he stopped my youngest daughter, Charlotte, who was then 18 and remembered her and her name as he had met her six years earlier at CANADA 92. She had been one of the Masters of Ceremonies for the opening ceremonies of the show and accompanied him through a tour of the exhibits. When he passed on she was the first to tell me and said: "My Governor General died today."

Interim head of Canada Post

Ann Joynt, Executive Vice-President of Canada Post, has been appointed Acting President and Chief Executive Officer of Canada Post while the incumbent, The Honourable André Ouellet is on paid leave for the next few months. As President of The RPSC, I wish to convey publicly to Ms. Joynt that the Society and its directors will continue to offer our support to her and the Corporation in these unusual times for the Post Office.

On the other hand, I would be remiss if I did not also offer our support to Mr. Ouellet as well. He has a long and distinguished public service career. Since 1972 when he was appointed Postmaster-General, he has had a keen interest in stamps and philately and has supported organized philately at every turn. For example, it is because of him that the National Philatelic Collection is on permanent display. The beauty of our stamps and the worldwide awards they have received can be traced back to his taking over the chairmanship of the Stamp Advisory Committee in 1997. Furthermore, I don't recall a strike at the Post Office since he has been President and Chief Executive Officer. Finally, under his leadership, Canada Post has posted multi-million dollar surpluses every year. This profit is turned back to the shareholders of the Corporation, the people of Canada. The profit for 2003 will be the largest in the history of the Crown corporation. 🍁 traite Monsieur Hnatyshyn retourna à la pratique du droit et était Chancelier de l'Université Carleton de 2002 jusqu'à son décès. On le voyait souvent se promener sur la rue Sparks à Ottawa à l'heure du déjeuner. C'est lors d'une de ces sorties en 1998 qu'il a rencontré la plus jeune de mes filles, Charlotte, qui avait alors 18 ans. Il l'arrêta, se rappela son nom et se souvient de l'avoir rencontré à CANADA 92. Elle était un des deux Maîtres de Cérémonies lors de la Cérémonie d'ouverture de CANADA 92 et avait fait une tournée de l'exposition avec Monsieur Hnatyshyn. Lors de son décès, elle fut la première à me l'annoncer en disant "mon Gouverneur Général est décédé aujourd'hui".

PDG intérimaire à Postes Canada

Ann Joynt, Vice-présidente exécutive de Postes Canada, a été nommée, Présidente et directrice générale intérimaire de Postes Canada pendant que le PDG actuel, l'Honorable André Ouellet, est en congé avec solde pour les prochains mois. Je m'empresse d'offrir publiquement à Madame Joynt et à la Société des postes le support de La SRPC et de ses directeurs pendant cette période inusitée de son histoire.

Par contre, il est aussi de mise d'offrir notre support à Monsieur Ouellet. Il a une longue et illustre carrière de service public. Depuis 1972, lorsqu'il fut nommé Ministre des postes, il a toujours démontré un vif intérêt pour les timbres-poste et la philatélie et a supporté régulièrement la philatélie organisée. Par exemple, c'est grâce à lui que la Collection nationale de timbres-poste est exposée en permanence. La beauté de nos timbres-poste et la reconnaissance mondiale qu'ils ont reçu date de sa Présidence du Comité consultatif sur les timbres-poste. De plus, je ne me rappelle pas d'une grève à Postes Canada depuis qu'il en est Président/Directeur Général. Sous sa gouverne, Postes Canada a déclaré des surplus de plusieurs millions tous les ans. Pour 2003, Postes Canada s'apprête à annoncer le plus gros profit de son existence. Ces profits retournent aux actionnaires de la Société: les Canadiens et Canadiennes. 🍁

Dear Madam/Sir

I had an occasion to purchase a number of the Korean Armistice stamps. Imagine my surprise when I noted that the Royal Canadian Air Force contribution portion of the stamp was represented by an United States Air Force F-86 Sabre jet. The "Stamp Story" on your web site noted that 22 RCAF pilots had flown with the USAF during the war. The story also noted that RCAF 426 Squadron transported "troops and goods to Japan".

Untold number of air crew (not just pilots) flew an un-pressurized North Star aircraft on the Great Circle route over the North Pacific to and from Japan. I do not know the number of flying hours or air miles that were accumulated, but it was achieved without a loss of aircraft or crew. Also, please note that the North Star was a Canadian built aircraft.

I submit that the North Star was the aircraft that should have been depicted on the stamp. While I acknowledge that the North Star will never win a "sex appeal" contest with the Sabre I strongly suggest that it more accurately reflects the RCAF's contribution to the war effort.

I am surprised that this stamp could have gone through the design and approval process with such an obvious design flaw. I can only suppose the "Jet Jockey" lobby is more powerful than I would have thought. Less you dismiss this as the rantings of an old North Star aircrew member, please note that I am just an old Army guy who wants to see credit where credit is due.

Yours truly,
Orm Wright

APPOINTMENT

President Charles Verge has been appointed Canadian Commissioner for the FIR World Philatelic Exhibition, Pacific Explorer 2005 World Stamp Expo, scheduled for April 21-24, 2005 in Sydney, Australia.

Congratulations

Congratulations are extended to John Hillson who was awarded a Gold medal for his article on Small Queens on The RPSC Website. The award was presented by www.stamp2.com a premier international philatelic portal.

End of an Era

After more than 100 years, the British Royal Mail has ended its Travelling Post Office service on January 9, 2004. (See topical poem entitled "Junk Mail" on page 137 in this issue.)

More Changes in Great Britain

The following news story outlines a second major change taking place in the way the British Post Office runs its business. (See the announcement of the cancellation of its Travelling Post Office service above.)

Peter Jennings, FRPSL, in the April 2004 issue of Gibbons Stamp Monthly, writes: "It is clear that Royal Mail has now taken a decision to start phasing out postage stamps and replace them with sticky labels. As a first step it will withdraw from sale, at all post offices, stamps with a face value of £1.50 or more as of March 31, 2004."

SLIDE LIBRARY / LA DIAPOTHÈQUE

Just a reminder that the RPSC Slide Library is filled with programs to suit every taste. We have thematic programs covering a wide range of interests, animals, birds, Greek coins, Disney, military aircraft, Christmas, stamp boxes, to name but a few. If your club is into research there are programs on cancels, postal stationery, overprints, registry system, perforations, revenues. There are programs that provide entertainment - hidden date era, Henry Hechler story, Olympic stamps - as well as philatelic knowledge. You can view the Library Catalogue on The RPSC website. Thanks to Webmaster Robin Harris who keeps the list up to date and in good numerical order no matter what the Librarian submits to him!

George MacKenzie of Halifax has just turned over the final two Disney programs to the Library. The Disney World of Postage Stamps, Parts 7 and 8 are now listed in the catalogue. Both of these programs feature Christmas issue stamps of traditional children's fairy tales. Children would enjoy their favorite cartoon characters while adults could revisit familiar stories. Many, many thanks to George for the seventeen programs he has contributed to the Slide Library.

Catalogues are available from the Slide Librarian by mail (831 Tower Road, Halifax, NS B3H 2Y1) or on the RPSC website. When ordering remember to give the Librarian your name, address, telephone number and the date for which you want the program. Rental remains at $10. Advance notice is greatly appreciated.

Please, when returning a program, make sure the envelope is sealed. A piece of tape helps ensure a secure closure.

Elizabeth Sodero, RPSC Slide Librarian

À titre de rappel : la diapotheque compte un grand nombre de programmes. Il y en a assez pour combler tous les goûts. Vous y trouverez des programmes thématiques portant sur une gamme de sujets aussi variés que les animaux, les oiseaux, la monnaie grecque, les avions militaires, Disney, Noël ou les boîtes à timbres, pour n'en nommer que quelques-uns. Les clubs qui veulent faire de la recherche trouveront des programmes sur les oblitérations, la papeterie postale, les surimpressions ou l'enregistrement. D'autres se veulent distrayants - l'histoire d'Henry Hechler, l'époque des timbres non datés, les timbres olympiques - tout aussi bien que la connaissance de la philatélie. Vous pouvez visionner le catalogue de la diapotheque sur le site Web de La SRPC. Grâce à Robin Harris, notre webmestre, la liste des documents de la diapotheque est toujours à jour et en bon ordre numérique, et ce, quoique la diapotheque lui soumette!

George MacKenzie d'Halifax vient tout juste de remettre ses deux derniers programmes sur Disney : Le monde du timbre-poste de Disney, parties 7 et 8 (The Disney World of Postage Stamps, Parts 7 and 8). Ils sont maintenant dans le catalogue. Ils présentent des timbres de Noël sur les contes de fées classiques. Les enfants se réjouiront de voir leurs personnages de dessins animés préférés, alors que les adultes poseront un regard neuf sur des histoires bien connues. Grands mercis à George pour les 17 programmes qu'il nous a fournis.

On peut se procurer les catalogues à la diapotheque, par la poste, (831 Tower Road, Halifax, NS B3H 2Y1) ou au site Web de la SRPC. Lorsque que vous faites une commande, n'oubliez pas d'inscrire votre nom, votre adresse, votre numéro de téléphone et la date à laquelle vous désirez recevoir le programme. Le coût demeure de 10 $. Nous vous serions très reconnaissants de nous aviser à l'avance.

En retournant votre programme, prière de vous assurer que l'enveloppe est bien scellée. Un peu de ruban adhésif sera d'une grande efficacité.

Elizabeth Sodero, Diapotheque de la RSPC

AUDITORS' REPORT

To the Members of: The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada

We have audited the statement of financial position of The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada as at December 31, 2002 and the statement of operations and changes in net assets for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the organization's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with Canadian generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform an audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation.

In common with many not-for-profit organizations, the organization derives some receipts from donations, the completeness of which is not susceptible to complete audit verification. Similarly, the organization derives some receipts from the sale of show remainders, the completeness of which is not susceptible to complete audit verification. Accordingly, our examination of such receipts was limited to comparison of recorded receipts to deposits and we were not able to determine whether any adjustments might be necessary to total receipts and equity.

In our opinion, except for the effects of adjustments, if any, which we might have determined to be necessary had we been able to verify receipts as specified in the preceding paragraph, these financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the organization as at December 31, 2002 and the results of its operations for the year then ended in accordance with Canadian generally accepted accounting principles.

THE ROYAL PHILATELIC SOCIETY OF CANADA
NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
FOR THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 2002

1. SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada is a not-for-profit organization incorporated under the laws of Canada without share capital and is exempt from income tax. The objectives of the society are to:

- (1) Encourage and promote the science of philately by the acquirement and study of stamps;
- (2) Encourage and assist new collectors and to assist local clubs and societies wherever possible;
- (3) Stimulate and advance affiliations between collectors and similar organizations in other countries.

The accounting policies considered significant include:

(a) REVENUE RECOGNITION

Income and expenses are recorded on the accrual basis. Membership fees received in advance are deferred and recognized as income in the applicable year.

(b) USE OF ESTIMATES

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with Canadian generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, the disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the year. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

(c) FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

The company's financial instruments consist of cash, temporary investments, accounts receivable, and accounts payable and accrued liabilities. Unless otherwise noted, it is management's opinion that the organization is not exposed to significant interest, currency or credit risks arising from these financial instruments.

2. STATEMENT OF CASH FLOWS

A statement of cash flows has not been provided as the required cash flow information is readily apparent from the other financial statements. Cash flow from operations approximates operating surplus. There were no investing or financing activities.

RAPPORT DU VÉRIFICATEUR

Aux membres de la Société royale de philatélie du Canada

Nous avons vérifié le bilan de la Société royale de philatélie du Canada au 31 décembre 2002, l'état des résultats et les variations à l'actif net pour l'année qui prenait fin à cette date. Ces états financiers relèvent de la direction de l'organisation. Notre responsabilité consiste à exprimer un avis par rapport à ces états financiers en nous basant sur notre vérification.

Nous avons fait notre vérification conformément aux normes de vérification normalement acceptées au Canada. Ces normes nous obligent à planifier et à exécuter une vérification dans le but d'obtenir une assurance raisonnable que les états financiers ne contiennent pas d'inexactitudes importantes. Une vérification comprend un examen, sur une base d'échantillonnage, des preuves présentées à l'appui des données et des déclarations contenues dans les états financiers. Une vérification comprend également une évaluation des principes comptables utilisés et des principales estimations faites par la direction ainsi qu'une évaluation de la présentation globale des états financiers.

Comme cela se produit avec tous les organismes sans but lucratif, l'organisation reçoit des sommes sous forme de dons et il n'est pas possible de faire une vérification approfondie complète de l'exactitude de ces dons. De même, l'organisation tire certaines sommes de la vente de ce qui reste d'expositions et il n'est pas possible de faire une vérification approfondie complète de l'exactitude de ces sommes. Par conséquent, notre analyse des sommes ainsi reçues s'est limitée à comparer les reçus des sommes perçues; nous n'avons pas pu déterminer s'il faudrait éventuellement ajuster les sommes totales reçues et l'avoir net.

À notre avis, sauf en ce qui concerne les conséquences des ajustements, le cas échéant, que nous aurions pu juger nécessaires si nous avions pu vérifier les sommes reçues tel qu'indiqué dans les paragraphes précédents, ces états financiers présentent de façon équitable, dans tous les aspects importants, la situation financière de l'organisation au 31 décembre 2002 et les résultats de ses activités pour l'année terminée à cette date conformément aux principes comptables généralement acceptés au Canada.

LA SOCIÉTÉ ROYALE DE PHILATÉLIE DU CANADA
NOTES ACCOMPAGNANT LES ÉTATS FINANCIERS
POUR L'ANNÉE SE TERMINANT LE 31 DÉCEMBRE 2002

1. PRINCIPALES POLITIQUES COMPTABLES

La Société royale de philatélie du Canada est un organisme sans but lucratif constitué en société en vertu des lois du Canada; elle n'a pas de capital action et elle est exempte d'impôt sur le revenu. Les objectifs de la Société sont les suivants :

- (1) Encourager et promouvoir la science de la philatélie en faisant l'acquisition et l'étude des timbres;
- (2) Encourager et aider les nouveaux collectionneurs, les sociétés et les clubs locaux, lorsque c'est possible;
- (3) Stimuler et faire progresser les affiliations entre les collectionneurs et les organismes similaires des autres pays.

Les politiques comptables jugées importantes sont les suivantes :

(a) CONSTATATION DES PROFITS

Les revenus et les dépenses sont constatés selon une comptabilité d'exercice. Les cotisations des membres reçues d'avance sont différées et constatées comme revenus au cours de l'année pertinente.

(b) UTILISATION D'ESTIMATIONS

La préparation d'états financiers conformément aux principes comptables généralement acceptés au Canada oblige la direction à faire des estimations et à poser des hypothèses qui ont une incidence sur les sommes signalées comme actif et passif, sur la divulgation de l'actif et du passif éventuels à la date de préparation des états financiers et des sommes signalées comme revenus et dépenses au cours de l'année. Les résultats réels pourraient différer de ces estimations.

(c) INSTRUMENTS FINANCIERS

Les instruments financiers de l'organisme comprennent une encaisse, des investissements temporaires, des comptes clients, des comptes fournisseurs et des charges à payer. Sauf indication contraire, la direction croit qu'elle ne court pas de risque de se voir imposer un intérêt important et qu'elle n'a pas de risque au niveau de ses devises ou de son encaisse découlant de ses instruments financiers.

2. ÉTAT DES MOUVEMENTS DE TRÉSORERIE

Un état des mouvements de trésorerie n'a pas été fourni parce que les informations requises sur les mouvements de trésorerie sont immédiatement manifestes à partir des autres états financiers. Les mouvements de trésorerie découlant des activités représentent approximativement l'excédent d'exploitation. Il n'y aura pas d'investissement ni d'activités de financement.

Judging and Exhibiting in the Americas / Expositions et jugement des participations dans les Amériques

At the 37th F.I.A.F. (Federation of Inter America Philately) Annual General Meeting, held in Santiago de Chile, 3rd July, 2003, a proposal was presented and approved by the FIAF Executive and then by the Meeting, to put in place a Reciprocal Judging and Exhibiting Agreement within FIAF Federations, of which Canada is a member. The seven sections of the paper are given below as published in FIP Flash, Nr. 86 - 2003, Fédération Internationale de Philatélie (FIP), pp. 25-6.

1. Each Federation agrees to recognize any and all jurors who are accredited by their own particular National Federation. These judges must be accredited by their national federation at least on national level.

2. While judging in another Federation's exhibition, the visiting judge will abide by Standard judging practices of the host Federation.

3. Each Federation should invite jury members from other Federations on a regular basis.

4. The only recompense given to the visiting juror will be the customary allowance offered, if any.

5. The Member Federation will encourage their exhibitors to participate with their exhibits at other Member Federation's exhibitions.

Usually, a jury member can also act as commissioner and carry the exhibits. Exhibitors who receive a vermeil or higher award in a member Federation's national exhibition can use this award to qualify for international exhibitions.

6. The Federations will send to the secretary or coordinator of judges a list of those qualified to judge. This list shall be updated on a regular basis.

7. If the occasion arises, each Federation will offer to other member Federations any seminar, publication, or media product they have prepared relating to judging, exhibiting, or collecting in general.

The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada has had a similar Reciprocal Agreement with the American Philatelic Society for several decades, which recognizes national level judges from both countries who may judge in each others country. During the late À la trente-septième réunion générale annuelle de la Fédération interaméricaine de philatélie (F.I.A.F.), tenue à Santiago, au Chili, le 3 juillet 2003, une proposition a été soumise et approuvée par la direction de la FIAF et par l'Assemblée : mettre sur pied une entente réciproque sur les expositions et sur le jugement des participations à l'intérieur des fédérations de la FIAF, dont le Canada est membre. Les sept paragraphes de l'article publié dans FIP Flash, No 86 - 2003, Fédération Internationale de Philatélie (FIP), p. 25-26 sont paraphrasés ci-dessous.

1. Chaque fédération accepte de reconnaître tous les jurés accrédités par leur propre fédération nationale. Ils doivent être accrédités au moins au niveau national.

2. Lorsqu'un juge est invité à juger une exposition pour une autre fédération, il doit se conformer aux standards de cette fédération.

3. Chaque fédération doit inviter des jurés membres d'une autre fédération, et ce, sur une base régulière.

4. La seule récompense accordée au juré invité sera l'allocation normalement offerte, le cas échéant.

5. La fédération membre encouragera ses exposants à participer à des expositions organisées par d'autres fédérations membres.

Habituellement, un membre du jury peut agir comme commissaire et s'occuper des participations. Les exposants qui reçoivent une médaille de vermeil ou une récompense plus grande peuvent utiliser ce prix pour s'inscrire à des expositions internationales.

6. La fédération fera parvenir au secrétaire ou au coordonnateur des juges une liste des personnes ayant les compétences pour exercer la fonction de juge. Cette liste devra être mise à jour régulièrement.

7. Si l'occasion se présente, chaque fédération offrira aux autres fédérations membres des séminaires, des écrits ou d'autres produits médiatiques sur le jugement des expositions ou sur la philatélie en général.

La Société royale de philatélie du Canada a une entente réciproque semblable, depuis quelques décennies, avec l'American Philatelic Society. Les juges de niveau national sont reconnus dans chacun des deux 1990's similar agreements were signed with the Australian Philatelic Federation and with the New Zealand Philatelic Federation, and we have been exchanging judges with these countries, who have taken Canadian exhibits to their national exhibitions. This year we shall have a New Zealand judge on the jury at ROYAL*2004*ROYALE in Halifax who will be bringing at least five New Zealand exhibits, while Charles Verge, President of RPSC, will be attending the Australian national show in Fremantle, Western Australia, September 9-12 and taking some Canadian exhibits.

The above agreement among the National Federations of the America continent now provides a wider opportunity for the recognition of the exchange of national judges among the 21 member countries of the FIAF, and the opportunity for exhibitors to enter exhibits in these countries. A current list of our national judges (as published in The Canadian Philatelist, Vol. 55, No. 1, pp. 26.) was recently sent to the FIAF Secretary as required under Section 6 above.

Chairman, RPSC Judging Program

pays. À la fin des années 1990, des ententes semblables ont été signées avec la Australian Philatelic Federation et la New Zealand Philatelic Federation. Nous avons fait des échanges de juges avec ces pays qui ont aussi présenté des participations canadiennes lors de leurs expositions nationales. Cette année, nous comptons avoir un juge néo-zélandais comme membre du jury de l'exposition ROYAL*2004*ROYALE, à Halifax. Il apportera avec lui au moins cinq participations néo-zélandaises. Charles Verge, président de la SRPC, quant à lui, assistera à l'exposition nationale australienne à Fremantle, dans l'ouest de l'Australie, du 9 au 12 septembre et aura dans ses bagages quelques participations canadiennes.

L'entente, mentionnée plus haut, entre les Fédérations nationales du continent américain ouvre toute grande la porte à l'acceptation d'échange de juges entre les 21 pays membres de la FIAF et aux exposants, celle des expositions. Une liste de nos juges actuels (telle que publiée dans Le philatéliste canadien, Vol. 55, No 1, pp. 26.) a été envoyée récemment au secrétaire de la FIAF, selon les exigences décrites à la section 6.

AWARD-WINNING COLLECTIONS ON AUCTION BLOCK

The Dr. John Robertson Collection of U.S.-British North America Cross-Border postal history is being sold this month in New York.

The sale, the most recent in a series of "Exhibition Collection" auctions, is the Grand-Award winning collection of cross-border postal history formed by John Robertson, M.D.

Working within an eight-frame exhibit, Dr. Robertson carefully and completely illustrates the complexities of the mail as it crossed the border between Canada and its provinces and the U.S. during the period April, 1851, when a combined rate between Canada and the U.S. first established through to 1878, when Canada joined the Universal Postal Union.

Included also is an outstanding section of forerunners that illustrate the background and transition to the uniform rates. According to the auctioneer, this collection includes "numerous covers of international renown, many off the market for decades, including important U.S. 1847s, 1851s, etc., Canadian Pence and cents, Newfoundland, British Columbia and more."

One of the highlights is an 1852 folded sheet with an 1851 12-pence black (Scott #3) sent from Montreal to New York. The stamp, also used for mail to Newfoundland, Bermuda, and the Caribbean, matched the rate to the U.S. and was denominated 12-pence instead of 1 shilling to avoid confusing U.S. postmasters. There are seven known covers, only three of which are doubtlessly genuine. It has a pre-sale estimate of $300,000 to $400,000.

The collection has been exhibited three times at the Champion of Champions. The auction will be held at the Four Seasons Hotel, 57 East 57th St., New York, on April 23. It is estimated at over $1 million U.S. Catalogues will be available after April 1, at $20 U.S. with a hard cover version available at $50 U.S.

LETTERS / LETTRES

Dear Editor,

To find my name referred to by two different writers in the March-April issue must mean I have arrived at last! "They have all got it in for me," as Caesar said in one of the Carry On films.

First, I hope that George Arfken will now have read my views on the 2c bisects dating from the 1880s. I no longer think that they are philatelic. Similar covers, which I understand can be found dated a decade later when Postmaster King held sway at Halifax and his wife traded as a stamp dealer, may well be a different kettle of fish.

Since George listed some of the known bisects may I add to the list? I have a "Ruggles" bisected 6c dated 20 AU 1873 at Wilmot and I know of another one dated My 25 72 from the same town. One wonders if Lawyer Ruggles was sending his clients pre-stamped envelopes franked with these bisects because, like the 2c bisects, the addresses are largely in different hand writing. Incidentally, Gibbons has a bisect dated NO 25 88 for sale which is so heavily clobbered by the killer-cancel that I am surprised some postal historian hadn't snapped it up years ago. Charles Firby had one dated JY 23 1893 in the June 2002 sale. So much for the 6c.

Second, I am not entirely certain what point Michael Peach was trying to make in his response except to confirm Henry Hechler's handwriting is distinctive; and, if I may say so, very artistic.

Just to finish, I attach a scan of a 2c bisect which did not come from any of the Maritime provinces and since it was sold by Leo Baresch, to the gentleman I got it from, it must have been on this side of the pond since we were all running around in short trousers dreaming of Penny Blacks.

Sincerely,
John Hillson

EXCHANGES / DEMANDES D'ÉCHANGE

Monsieur le Président,

Cher ami et collègue philatliste, bonjour !

Je suis président d'une association philatélique ici en France, et à titre plus personnel je viens de débiter la collection des timbres du Canada il y a quelques mois seulement. Après plusieurs semaines de recherche et le passage de nombreuses petites annonces dans la presse et sur le web, je n'arrive pas à satisfaire ma quête d'un (une) correspondant (te) philatliste au

Canada, parlant Français de préférence, et avec lequel je pourrais effectuer des échanges de timbres. Collectionnant la France depuis plus de trente-cinq ans, j'ai une très grosse quantité de doubles de ce pays à proposer, y compris des anciens et classiques antérieurs à 1900, et qui dorment inutilement en classeurs, sans servir à personne. Je suis prêt à les échanger, ainsi que des timbres modernes et des nouveautés, blocs, feuillets, carnets, neufs et oblitérés, ainsi que des catalogues Yvert et Tellier «France» d'années passées, contre l'équivalent en timbres de vote pays.

Dans la mesure où il vous serait éventuellement possible de m'aider, je vous adresse, outre le courriel (E.mail) de référence, mon adresse postale...

UN dernier mot

Behind every sizeable successful venture is a team effort. And The Canadian Philatelist is no exception. But unlike a sports team based in one location the team responsible for getting your journal into your mailbox every second month is spread out over much of southern Ontario.

For example, maintaining records and updating Chapter reports and upcoming events takes place in one location, laying out the articles and illustrations that appear in the magazine is performed in another, reading incoming manuscripts from authors takes place in yet another location, and the final product is printing at still another site. Fortunately, modern telecommunications have made this far-flung team effort seamless but it may be a little confusing for members trying to reach the individuals responsible for the various services that your Society provides.

The numerous volunteer positions from president on down through the ranks as outlined in the journal's masthead coupled with the Society's Department and Committee listings at the back of the magazine make it a challenge for members to keep track of the right person to contact for a given problem.

Generally, the positions of board members and the responsibilities of the various departments and committees are self-explanatory and do not seem to cause undue problems. Confusion seems to arise mainly between the role of your editor, located in Kitchener, and the responsibilities of National Office in Toronto.

National Office, among its numerous duties and functions, maintains the data base for individual members and the 75-odd Society Chapters. Any changes of address, telephone numbers, names of contacts, listings of coming events, such as local, national, and international shows, and similar "official" business should be sent to the National Office. The office must be kept informed of these changes not only so that needed changes are published in the journal in a timely fashion but also to keep the data base current.

Although I am quite prepared to pass on updates that I receive, there is an inevitable delay when these Derrière le succès de tout projet d'envergure, se conjuguent les efforts de toute une équipe. Le philatéliste canadien ne fait pas exception. Mais, contrairement aux équipes sportives qui ont un port d'attache, l'équipe responsable de l'acheminement bimensuel du Philatériste à votre boîte aux lettres est disséminée dans tout le sud de l'Ontario.

À titre d'exemple, la tenue de livre, le calendrier des activités et la mise à jour des rapports des clubs membres se font en un endroit. La mise en pages des articles et des illustrations se fait ailleurs. La lecture des manuscrits d'auteurs se fait encore en un autre endroit et la dernière étape, l'impression, se fait, elle aussi, en un autre lieu. Heureusement, les télécommunications modernes fusionnent ces efforts éparpillés, mais nos membres risquent d'être déroutés lorsqu'ils veulent communiquer avec la personne responsable d'un des services offerts par la société.

Les nombreuses fonctions occupées par des bénévoles, de celle de président à toutes les autres, telles qu'énumérées dans le bloc-générique du Philatériste canadien, ajoutées à la liste des services et des comités, en dernière page, s'avèrent un véritable casse-tête pour quiconque veut savoir à qui s'adresser pour régler un problème particulier.

Habituellement, les fonctions du conseil d'administration et les responsabilités des différents services et comités sont évidentes et ne semblent pas prêter à confusion. La confusion naît plutôt entre le rôle du rédacteur en chef, qui œuvre à Kitchener, et les responsabilités du Bureau national, situé à Toronto.

L'une des tâches du Bureau national consiste à tenir une base de données des membres particuliers et des quelque soixante-quinze clubs membres. Les changements d'adresse, de numéros de téléphone, de noms de contacts, d'événements au calendrier, telles les expositions locales, nationales ou internationales et toute affaire « officielle » devraient être envoyés au Bureau national. Le Bureau doit être informé s de ces changements, non seulement pour qu'ils soient publiés au moment opportun, mais aussi afin de maintenir la base de données à jour.

Bien que je sois toujours prêt à transférer les mises à jour que je reçois, il y a inévitablement des retards notices are sent to me instead of the National Office especially if they are received in letter form and the next printing deadline for the magazine is imminent. Too often, these notifications do not make it into the next issue.

In short, information generally published under the RPSC News section should be sent to National Office; all other material, such as manuscripts, news items, photographs, letters to the editor, and similar editorial items should be sent to me.

This issue contains a broad range of articles. Dr. Scrimgeour writes about two individuals, Samuel Cunard and Hugh Allan, whose shipping lines have left us a legacy of postal history material that has given collectors much pleasure over the years. We will let Dr. Scrimgeour tell their story.

Complementing the Scrimgeour write-up is a monograph by regular contributor George Arfken and the late Horace W. Harrison. The article is accompanied by several covers illustrating a number of Cunard and Allan rates to the United Kingdom.

Ken Lewis relates the story behind a "Return to Sender" cover. Return to Sender covers all too frequently contain poignant human tales. This one is no exception.

Two of the articles are continuations from the last issue. Included is the concluding part of Canada's Air Mail identification study by Murray Heifetz and the fourth instalment of "Philatelic Treasures" penned by Peter Newroth.

James E. Kraemer writes about Special Delivery issues – a segment of our hobby that does not attract the attention of the more popular facets of philately. It appears that Post Office officials of 50 years ago were under the impression that they were aware of what philatelists of their day were collecting. According to Kraemer's article, they were sadly mistaken.

Michael Peach, Chairman of ROYAL 2004 ROYALE, who has been educating us about the philatelic history of Nova Scotia in the last several issues takes us overseas to Great Britain and the story of Dorothy Wilding, one of the 20th-century's best known portrait photographers.

The next edition of The Canadian Philatelist will be our Convention issue. Getting the proofs to the printer right after the convention to meet this deadline will be very tight but if our teamwork holds, as it has in the past, we should be able to show you photos and pass along some of the convention highlights and comments of members lucky enough to have attended ROYAL 2004 ROYALE. ❁ lorsqu'on s'adresse à moi plutôt qu'au Bureau national, surtout lorsqu'on le fait par lettre et que la date de tombée du prochain numéro est imminente. Trop souvent, l'information n'arrive pas à temps pour paraître dans ce numéro.

Bref, les renseignements à publier sous la rubrique des nouvelles de la SRPC doivent être envoyés au Bureau national. Les manuscrits, nouvelles, photographies, lettres au rédacteur et tout ce qui a trait à l'éditorial doivent m'être envoyés.

Le présent numéro compte une grande variété d'articles. Celui du docteur Scrimgeour porte sur deux personnes : Samuel Cunard et Hugh Allan dont les lignes de transport maritime nous ont laissé un héritage d'histoire postale qui, au fil des ans, a procuré beaucoup de plaisir aux philatélistes. Nous le laisserons donc nous en parler.

La monographie de Geoge Arfken, un de nos collaborateurs habituels, et de feu Horace W. Harrison viendra compléter le récit. Quelques plis illustrant les taux de Cunard et d'Allen pour le Royaume-Uni sont joints à l'article.

Ken Lewis raconte l'histoire cachée derrière un pli « retourné à l'expéditeur ». Ce genre de courrier recèle souvent des drames humains poignants. Le récit de Ken ne fait pas exception.

Deux articles de la présente édition font suite à ceux de la précédente. Vous y trouverez la conclusion de l'article de Murray Heifetz sur la poste aérienne au Canada et la quatrième partie de « Trésors philatéliques » (« Philatelic Treasures ») par Peter Newroth.

James E. Kraemer nous entretient du courrier par express - une facette de notre passe-temps qui ne jouit pas de la même popularité que d'autres. Il y a cinquante ans, les responsables des bureaux de poste croyaient savoir ce qui intéressait les philatélistes de leur époque. Toutefois, si on en juge à l'article de James E. Kraemer, ils se trompaient lourdement.

Micheal Peach, président de ROYAL * 2004 * ROYALE, qui, dans les quelques numéros précédents, nous a instruits sur l'histoire postale de la Nouvelle-Écosse, nous transporte outre-mer, en Grande-Bretagne, pour nous parler de Dorothy Wilding, l'une des photographes portraitistes les plus célèbres du XXe siècle.

La prochaine édition du Philatéliste canadien sera celle de notre congrès. Il n'y aura pas beaucoup de temps entre la fin du congrès et le moment de remettre les épreuves à l'imprimeur dans le respect des échéances. Cependant, si le travail d'équipe continue de fonctionner aussi bien que par le passé, nous devrions pouvoir montrer des photos du congrès et ajouter quelques faits saillants ainsi que des commentaires des membres qui auront eu la chance d'assister à ROYAL * 2004 * ROYALE. ❁
