THE ROYAL PHILATELIC SOCIETY OF CANADA
LA SOCIÉTÉ ROYALE DE PHILATÉLIE DU CANADA

The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada (RPSC) is the successor to the national society founded in 1887. Membership in the Society is open to anyone interested in stamps. Whether you are a beginner or an advanced collector, The RPSC offers a number of services that will be of interest to you. Here are just a few:

THE CANADIAN PHILATELIST - The international award winning bi-monthly magazine of The RPSC, it provides stamp collectors information and news – for members and from the members. Each year, the author of the best article published in The Canadian Philatelist receives the Geldert medal.

PERSONAL COLLECTION INSURANCE - Group insurance is available for members to obtain coverage for their personal collections. Chapters can arrange third party liability coverage to protect the club and its events. Both policies have substantially lower premiums than non-members would pay for similar packages. Details are available on both types of insurance, upon request, from the National Office.

SALES CIRCUIT - The Sales Circuit is a useful method of disposing of surplus material and acquiring other material for your collection. Details on request.

ANNUAL MEETING - An annual convention held in a different locale each year provides an ideal opportunity to meet friends, exchange ideas, and get advice on your collection or exhibition at which exhibitors can qualify for international shows. You will also get a chance to visit a dealer bourse and attend interesting and informative seminars.

CHAPTERS - The RPSC has a network of local clubs across Canada. Chapter meeting details are published in The Canadian Philatelist. A great way to network with other collectors in your area.

RPSC WEBSITE - The Society has a Web site www.rpsc.org where members can find out about the latest developments, coming events and link up to many other stamp collecting sites. As a member, your e-mail and Website address can be added.

OTHER SOCIETIES - As the national society for stamp collectors, The RPSC works in partnership with many other societies and associations, such as the Canadian Stamp Dealers Association and Canada Post Corporation.

CANADA POST CORPORATION - The Society maintains a Canada Post Liaison Officer to represent the Society, its members and chapters. Members may raise issues of mutual interest with Canada Post Corporation through the National Office.

La Société royale de philatélie du Canada (SRPC) est le digne successeur de l'organisation fondée en 1887. Tout individu intéressé par la collection de timbres-poste peut en devenir membre. Que vous soyez un collectionneur débutant ou chevronné, la SRPC vous offre une gamme de services qui sauront vous intéresser. En voici quelques-uns:

LE PHILATÉLISTE CANADIEN - Cette publication bimestrielle, primée au niveau international, offre aux membres des informations et des nouvelles sur le monde philatélique rédigées par ses membres. Chaque année, la médaille Geldert est décernée à l'auteur du meilleur article publié dans Le philatéliste canadien.

CARNETS DE TIMBRES EN APPROBATION - Ils sont disponibles sur demande. C'est une façon facile de disposer de matériel en surplus ou d'acquérir des nouvelles pièces pour sa collection.

RÉUNION ANNUELLE - Un congrès annuel se tient dans différentes parties du pays. Une exposition de niveau national fait partie intégrante du congrès et permet à l'exposant de se qualifier pour les expositions internationales. De plus vous pouvez y visiter les tables de négociants et assister à des conférences.

ASSURANCE COLLECTION PERSONNELLE - les membres peuvent obtenir une assurance-groupe afin de protéger leurs collections personnelles. Les chapitres peuvent souscrire une assurance responsabilité vis-à-vis des tiers pour protéger le club et les événements qu'il organise. Les primes pour les deux polices sont de beaucoup inférieures à ce qu'un non-membre paierait pour un contrat similaire. Vous pouvez obtenir des renseignements sur ces deux types de police en vous adressant au Bureau national.

CHAPITRES - Des clubs locaux au Canada constituent un réseau où les membres de La SRPC reçoivent un accueil chaleureux. Les renseignements sont publiés dans Le philatéliste canadien.

SITE WEB DE LA SRPC - La SRPC a un site Internet www.rpsc.org où les membres obtiennent les informations à date, les événements philatéliques à venir et peuvent accéder à plusieurs autres sites philatéliques. Vous pouvez, en tant que membre, y ajouter vos adresses courriel et site web.

PARTENARIAT - La Société a des ententes avec plusieurs autres sociétés et associations philatéliques, notamment l'Association canadienne des négociants en timbres-poste et la Société canadienne des postes (SCP).

SOCIÉTÉ CANADIENNE DES POSTES - La SRPC a un agent de liaison pour représenter La Société, ses Chapitres et ses membres. Les membres peuvent soumettre des questions d'intérêt commun aux deux Sociétés. Vous pouvez également obtenir des renseignements auprès du Bureau national.

Postage stamps have been used by firms to promote their products for well over a century. Depicted on the cover is an 1899 flyer prepared by E. J. Arnold and Son Ltd, a British school outfitter. To publicize the firm's business in various parts of the world, the stamp images on the flyer are photo-reductions of stamps taken from its incoming mail. Neither the pictured Newfoundland stamp, or Canada's 1898 Map stamp are reproduced in their actual colours. However, the postmark on each stamp lends credence to the firm's claim that the stamps are actual reproductions of stamps from its incoming mail.

The cover image and its description were provided by C.R. McGuire, whose article dealing with promotional covers appears on page 34.

Des entreprises ont utilisé les timbres-poste pour promouvoir leurs produits depuis un siècle et même davantage. La page couverture présente un tract publicitaire de 1899 réalisé par Arnold and Son Ltd, un fournisseur de tenues scolaires britannique. L'entreprise, qui faisait des affaires dans divers endroits du monde, utilisait ce tract publicitaire agrémenté d'images de timbres, soit des photos réduites tirées du courrier entrant. Ni le timbre de Terre-Neuve ni le timbre Mappemonde du Canada de 1898 ne sont reproduits dans leurs véritables couleurs. Cependant, l'oblitération de chaque timbre accorde du crédit à la prétention de l'entreprise voulant que ces timbres soient d'authentiques reproductions du courrier entrant.

As usual, we endeavour to provide a variety of reading experiences, and not all the articles are historical.

We had intended to include Bill Pekonen's article, "The Glastonbury Thorn," in our November/December 2013 issue. But, as happens from time to time, it had to be moved forward because of space constraints and we have included it in this issue for your Christmas reading pleasure. This edition of the magazine should reach most readers during the holiday season, perhaps even before December 24, so the article will still be timely and, we hope, will be a pleasant addition to your Yule-theme reading list.

A second submission that has been waiting patiently in our in-tray is Ray Ireson's "Cartagena de Indias" philatelic travelogue. Ray was the Assistant Manager of the Royal Bank of Canada in Cartagena beginning in 1960 and his recollections of that historic city will surely pique the interests of many readers about one of America's oldest and historically noteworthy cities.

Judging by the most feedback that we received to Ron McGuire's concluded seven-part series entitled "Collecting Was More Fun When I Was a Youngster" in the July/August 2012 issue, stamp collectors are also history buffs. Because of the popularity of that series, Ron has agreed to pen additional anecdotes about his experiences as a young collector in Ottawa. In his article "Past Methods Used to Promote Stamp Collecting," Ron highlights some of the ways that early Canadian stamp dealers promoted and carried on their businesses.

Joseph Monteiro looks at the Pacific Islands of Papua and New Guinea, Pitcairn, and Western Samoa around the time of their independence, a passionate collecting field of many philatelist, according to the author.

Comme d'habitude, nous avons tenté de vous offrir une variété de sujets à lire; les articles ne sont donc pas tous historiques.

Nous pensions inclure l'article de Bill Pekonen, « The Glastonbury Thorn » (l'épine de Glastonbury) à notre numéro de novembre-décembre 2013. Toutefois, comme cela arrive de temps en temps, nous avons dû en repousser la publication en raison de contraintes d'espace, mais il viendra agrémenter vos lectures du temps des fêtes dans le présent numéro. La plupart de nos lecteurs devraient le recevoir pendant les fêtes et peut-être même avant le 24 décembre; l'article sera donc d'actualité et nous espérons, un ajout agréable à la liste de vos lectures de Noël.

Un autre article a aussi attendu patiemment dans notre corbeille d'arrivée, celui de Ray Ireson, « Cartagena de Indias », un journal de voyage philatélique. Ray a été assistant-gérant de la Banque Royale du Canada à Cartagena, à compter de 1960 et les souvenirs qu'il a de cette ville attiseront certainement l'intérêt de nombreux lecteurs pour l'une des cités les plus anciennes et les plus dignes d'intérêt de l'Amérique sur le plan historique.

À en juger par les commentaires que nous avons reçus sur la série, maintenant achevée, de sept articles de Ron McGuire, « Collecting Was More Fun When I Was a Youngster » (La collection était plus amusante quand j'étais gamin), parue dans le numéro de juillet-août 2012, les collectionneurs de timbres sont aussi férus d'histoire. La popularité de cette série a incité Ron à accepter de rédiger d'autres anecdotes sur ses expériences de jeune collectionneur à Ottawa. Dans son article, « Past Methods Used to Promote Stamp Collecting » (Anciennes méthodes de promotion de la philatélie), Ron met en évidence certaines méthodes de promotion et de vente des premiers négociants canadiens.

Quant à Joseph Monteiro, il nous parle des îles du Pacifique, Papouasie-Nouvelle-Guinée, Pitcairn et Samoa occidentale à l'époque de l'acquisition de leur indépendance, un domaine de collection qui, selon l'auteur, passionne de nombreux philatélistes.

V ... Mail was a term that I was not familiar with until I read Richard Logan's article beginning on page 29 in this issue. I suspect that readers will find the piece as educational and fascinating as I have. Continued in this issue is Gray Scrimgeour's commentary covering the philatelic landscape across the Prairie Provinces. Many longtime readers will no doubt be familiar with some of the names of individuals in his article and may have had dealings with firms operating for either short periods of time or firms that became icons of Canadian philately.

As usual, we endeavour to provide a variety of reading experiences and not all the articles are historical. An author that we do not hear from very often is Sam Chiu, FRPSC. He has sent some photographs for our viewing pleasure and has written up his visit to THAILAND 2013 where he was Canadian Commissioner. On behalf of our readers, we would like to add our congratulations to the Canadian exhibitors and medallists at the highest level of philatelic competition, THAILAND 2013.

May we also wish everyone a happy, healthy and philatelically rewarding New Year. ☒

Poste... V (V-Mail) est un terme que je ne connaissais pas avant d'avoir lu l'article de Richard Logan qui commence à la page 29 du présent numéro. Je crois bien que les lecteurs le trouveront aussi instructif et fascinant que moi. Vous découvrirez également dans le présent numéro la suite des commentaires de Gray Scrimgeour sur le paysage philatélique des Provinces des Prairies. Les noms qui figurent dans son articles seront sans aucun doute familiers à beaucoup de nos lecteurs de longue date, qui ont probablement fait affaire avec des entreprises ayant exercé leurs activités pour une courte période et d'autres, qui sont devenues des emblèmes de la philatélie canadienne.

Comme d'habitude, nous tentons de vous offrir une variété de sujets; les articles ne sont donc pas tous historiques. Parmi les auteurs dont nous n'entendons pas très souvent parler, mentionnons Sam Chiu, FSRPC. M Chiu nous a envoyé quelques photographies, dont nos yeux se délecteront, et raconte sa visite à THAILAND 2013 en tant que commissaire canadien. Au nom de nos lecteurs, nous souhaitons féliciter les Canadiens qui ont participé à l'exposition et remporté des médailles au plus haut niveau à THAILAND 2013.

Nous souhaitons également à tous une nouvelle année remplie de joie, de santé et de satisfaction philatélique. ☒

USPS UNVEILS INVERTED JENNY STAMP

Director of the Smithsonian National Postal Museum Allen Kane and USPS Director of Stamp Services and Corporate Licensing Susan McGowan unveiled the preliminary design for an Inverted Jenny stamp at the APS AmeriStamp Expo stamp show in Louisville, Kentucky today (Friday, January 18, 2013).

The preliminary design includes replicas of America's most famous stamp and one of the world's most famous errors. The margins of the stamp sheet feature images related to the 24-cent Curtiss Jenny stamp and the 1918 inaugural airmail service, including pilot Major Reuben Fleet of the Army Air Corps and the Washington DC - Philadelphia - New York airmail flight route. In the upper left corner is the main post office in Washington, DC, at the time, which would process airmail and currently houses the National Postal Museum.

let's talk EXHIBITING

David Piercey, FRPSC

Title pages are very important in introducing your exhibit to the judges and other viewers. Gone are the days when an exhibitor had free reign to do almost anything with the title page. Instead, with the recent evolution to the current rules and guidelines, a lot needs to be expressed on your title page in order to capture the attention of the viewers and demonstrate you know what you are doing.

I find that title pages are misunderstood by some of our exhibitors, and consequently they do not include one.

Having a title gives them an opportunity to introduce their exhibit in the best possible light.

Here is your opportunity to tell the judges what you are going to show, what class it will mostly fall within, how it is organized, and how you are going to demonstrate philatelic knowledge, study and research. It is also important to indicate here how you will highlight rarity or difficulty of acquisition, and any other pertinent information (e.g., abbreviations) that may be used throughout the exhibit.

I show here a sample title page, with descriptors of its various elements. Note that the use of colour, graphics, and text boxes can each be used to effect, adding increased visual interest for the viewer. Although your page designs and styles will, of course, differ from mine and that of others, it is the information contained in the title page's components that remains so important. ☒

MOVING THE MAILS
POSTAL ROUTES IN THE EARLY DECIMAL PERIOD OF NEWFOUNDLAND 1865-1894

Newfoundland is "Britain's oldest colony", and St. John's, its capital city, is "North America's oldest city". The story of the development of its postal routes, the purpose of this postal history exhibit, is the story of the growth and maturation of its postal system, both for transport and delivery of the mails for its residents across the isolation of its local geography, as well as for the overseas mails to and from others in foreign lands.

My story begins almost from the start of assembly communication around the island, and then from the early days of reliable assembly communication to the rest of North America and to Great Britain. It traces the development of coastal, North American, and transatlantic mail routes originating from the island. My story also includes the development of railway transportation of the mails, and of local conveyances of the mails to St. John's and its vicinity.

Although my primary emphasis is on the development of these postal routes, my secondary emphasis, to increase the depth of the exhibit, are to show usage of the stamps and postal stationery from this period, to utilize a wide variety of airmail and travelling post offices (T.P.O.) postmarks, and to include both common and less common rates.

I begin at the start of the decimal period in 1865, when Newfoundland's adoption of decimal currency for its postage stamps was in response to the usage of decimal postage by its North American trading partners and as well towards the purpose of the gradual standardization of common postal rates between the countries of North America.

I thus begin with the postal history of the first AINIC "Cover" issue of 1865 and, following along within my Plan, with postal history from the next three issues all (with the exception of a very few postal stationery issues) produced by North American printers through to the end of their material period of use, about 1914, when stamp printings from Great Britain were instead produced, and otherwise when the postal routes were functionally to convey the domestic and foreign mails. I then and before the great disruptions resulting from WWI and the slow eventual insolvency of the island's economy.

In researching the routing of my covers, to postal history information, I have used primary research documents (e.g., the Almanacs and daily newspapers of the period) to determine the routes, and selling dates, of most all the vessels identified within my descriptions. This extends, in significant measure, what is otherwise only briefly reported in the standard philatelic references for this period. Such personal research is always so indicated and within the write up under each cover.

Issues of particular philatelic significance (i.e., rarity or importance) are shown in new colored printing, and are also described using varying patterns to hold letters.

Title: Try to be concise, but above all be exact in what you will be showing.

Introductory Paragraph: This is where you state the purpose of your exhibit and capture the attention of the reader.

Body of Your Text: Here you outline the development of your story, including what you will be showing and why it is important. This is a chance to tell the reader how you will demonstrate your philatelic knowledge.

Breaking up the text into short paragraphs aids with readability. The columnar format shown here also reduces the apparent density of the information. The colour graphic (an outline map) adds additional interest, and also helps break up the text.

Plan: Make sure the reader can see a plan for your exhibit. Here the Plan is given its own text box for legibility. Keep it very simple.

References: Although optional on this page, it helps direct the interested reader to further information. Limit it to only a few relevant references.

CARTAGENA de INDIAS

THE HEROIC CITY

by Raymond W. Ireson FRPSC

I was stationed at the Havana branch of The Royal Bank of Canada in Cuba in the 1950s when the revolution led by Fidel Castro overthrew the Dictator, Fulgencio Batista. Within a couple of months or so after Castro's success, all banks in Cuba, both domestic and foreign, with the exception of the two Canadian ones, the Royal Bank of Canada and the Bank of Nova Scotia, were nationalized. The two Canadian banks were spared as they were needed to funnel the Cuban foreign reserves to Moscow via their London, England offices. But once they had served their purpose, new tax legislation was introduced with the sole objective of squeezing those two banks out. The Royal packed up shop in December 1960 and the Bank of Nova Scotia followed suit within a day or two and my next assignment was to Cartagena, Colombia as Assistant Manager in the bank's branch in that city.

Conditions in Havana had fallen badly after Castro had taken over; nevertheless it was still a modern, clean city. Was I ever in for a real culture shock when I arrived in Cartagena. The city had been founded in 1533 and my first impression of it was: Has it not been modernized since then? The Spanish Colonial aspect of the city was still very much in evidence.

But the first shock was the trip from the airport to the city. We Montrealers complain about the condition of our roads, but at least we can drive on a paved highway from Dorval airport to downtown Montreal. The road connecting the Rafael Núñez Airport to downtown Cartagena was in such a deplorable condition back in those days that no one used it. Instead, they turned off onto the beach and drove along the hard-packed sand to reach the city, with the sea lapping at their tires. And hens' teeth were more plentiful than taxi cabs. There were four of us in our family, but on that not-to-be-forgotten ride from the airport, we still had to share the cab with another family of three. Talk about sardines in a can.

Well; you know what you are told to do when you get dumped with a bunch of lemons? Right, make lemonade.

More than four years were to pass before I received my next transfer which was to Cali, also in Colombia. In those four years I learned much about Cartagena and came to love its many charms. With the aid of stamps portraying views of the city, I would like to share with you some of those charms.

As I mentioned, Cartagena was founded in 1533 by the Spanish Conquistador, Pedro de Heredia.

Why did he choose that name for the city? As a matter of fact, he did not. It was the choice of his crew, most of whom were from Cartagena in Spain. But, to differentiate the two, this one had "de Indias" tacked on. But in day-to-day current use, the name is simply "Cartagena."

The core of the city was built on an island separated from the mainland by marshes and lagoons close to a prominent hill, La Popa, and a perfect place for a harbour and, more important at the time, easy to defend against attack. What forward thinkers they were.

The great Bay of Cartagena, 15 km long and 5 km wide, is protected by several low, sandy islands. There were then two approaches, Bocagrande (Widemouth), at the northern end of Tier-rabomba Island, which was the direct entry from the Caribbean, and Bocachica (Smallmouth), a narrow channel to the south of the island. Bocagrande was blocked by an underwater wall after Britain's Admiral Vernon's attack in 1741, thus leaving only one easily protected entrance to the approach of the harbour.

Over the years, Cartagena became Colombia's most important port and the jumping-off point for the treasure galleons transporting the riches exploited from Spain's South American possessions, heading to the port of Cartagena in Spain. But, this melting pot of treasure soon attracted pirates like flies to honey and it was not long before corsairs of many nations, but principally those from Britain, the likes of Hawkins, Drake, and Morgan, became a thorn in Spain's side.

Hawkins

Drake

Morgan

So the Spanish king, Felipe II, ordered that fortifications be built and the city itself surrounded by a formidable wall. The cost was not inconsiderable and it is said that at one point the king looked out towards the direction of Cartagena and wanted to know where the walls were. By his reckoning, he ought to have been able to see them, in view of the amount of money expended to erect them. The huge encircling walls were started early in the 17th century and finished by 1735. They are on average 12 meters high and 17 meters thick, with six gates.

The principal gate to the walled city is surmounted by a steeple clock tower known as Puerta del Reloj. One of the most outstanding landmarks of Cartagena, the present clock tower, was added towards the end of the 19th century.

Pictured is a blown-up version as the small size of the stamp does not do it full justice.

Passing through this gate, we are in the Plaza de los Coches, the Coaches Square, where in the old days many coaches set out from to take Cartageneros across the city. Even in my days there, one could hire a coach to take a tour of the city.

Today, it is a hub of commercial activity, but in the Colonial days this was the Slave Market. The Spanish Crown had forbidden the enslavement of the Amerindian population of Colombia, but saw nothing wrong with the trading of black African natives. Cartagena was granted the dubious honour of being the official hub of the black slave trade in Spain's South American Colonies. Veracruz, in Mexico, was the only other such centre. I should mention that slavery was abolished in Colombia in 1851.

There is no stamp showing this particular Plaza, but there is one of the ecclesiastic who became the slaves' 'Slave' and ministered to and comforted them.

San Pedro Claver was a Jesuit monk who died in 1654 and was canonized 235 years later. A stone's throw away from the above-mentioned plaza is another one, named after this Saint. This imposing edifice, the Temple of San Pedro Claver, is shown on this stamp, as is the monastery cell in which Claver lived for 38 years until his death. The monastery is located next to the Church.

The core of Cartagena is very compact and many points of interest can be taken in by walking a couple of blocks in any direction. Let me say here that a street in Cartagena is different from one anywhere else. Here in downtown Montreal, St. Catherine Street has many blocks, but from beginning to end the thoroughfare is known only as St. Catherine. In Cartagena every block of the thoroughfare has its own name. No whole street name. For a non-native, confusion reigns I can tell you that it took me ages to find my way around!

Anyhow, let us continue our tour of the City. As I've already said, everything is close by and next "Port of Call" if you want to call it that, is the Plaza Bolívar. The Palace of the Inquisition, an unsavory but nevertheless imposing building, is located here.

This diabolical institution was introduced in Cartagena in 1610 and expelled two centuries later when Cartagena declared its Independence from Spain. When the Royalists took over the reins of Government again in 1815, this odious body was reinstated. Its jurisdiction extended to Panama and Venezuela. When Colombia gained its independence from Spain in 1821, the Inquisition was abolished once and for all: but it left behind a terrible legacy: more than 800 souls had perished at its brutal hands. Many of the instruments of torture they used are on display in the small museum in the palace.

Prominent in the centre of this Plaza is an equestrian statue of Simón Bolívar, the Great Liberator. Strangely enough, Colombia never issued a stamp featuring this particular statue so I'm using one of Perú as a substitute as they are just about identical!

Located in this vicinity is the Cathedral of Cartagena. Again, no Colombian stamp has been issued to portray this prominent contribution to the city's mosaic. I find this very strange, because cathedrals in many other cities throughout Colombia have been featured on her postal issues.

Towering over the walled city, Cartagena's Cathedral's illuminated belfry lights up the night skyline, leaving an unforgettable impression. It is one of the oldest cathedrals in the Americas. Its construction started in 1575 and as it was nearing completion in 1586 when the attack by Sir Francis Drake just about destroyed the whole edifice. It was rebuilt between 1598 and 1612. It has been further restored in more recent years. It might not be an architectural gem compared to other outstanding buildings of this ancient city, but I still think that it deserves a stamp of its own.

One final mention of a site worthy of visiting in this plaza is the Gold Museum. It is minuscule in comparison with the one in Bogota but, nevertheless, it dazzles one with the opulence of the gold artifacts from the pre-conquest days on display there.

Artifacts from the Sinú culture (pre-Colonial inhabitants of this coastal area)

It is depressing to think that the Spanish invaders considered these accomplished goldsmiths as merely heathen savages and just about all of their priceless works of arts which the Spaniards laid their hands on were melted down to bullion for shipment home to Spain.

Before we leave the enclosures of the Walled City we must pay a visit to the Plaza de la Aduana (the Customs Square). Being the largest square in the city it was used for military parades in the colonial era. But, its main purpose was to collect taxes or duties on all goods entering the colony at this point. Along the inner wall of the city stand the arcades which housed the Customs House, but are now used for a number of administrative offices and the mayor's office.

And facing this plaza stands the tallest structure within the walled city, the "Andian Building." When I say "tall," don't imagine a skyscraper: it has only six floors. It was built in 1928 by the Imperial Oil Company to house its Colombian operations, which has a refinery on the other side of the Bay of Cartagena from which its oil shipments were exported.

One special word about that building: its ground floor was occupied by The Royal Bank of Canada. It did not take me any time at all after I arrived at that branch to notice that after we closed to the public on Saturday noon, the cleaning staff would rush to open a large brass manhole cover in the center of the public area then lower a bucket on a rope into its depths. It was hauled up full of water which was then used to swab the floor. Mystified by this performance, I asked the bank manager the meaning of it and I could have died laughing at his explanation.

It seems that before the construction of the building got under way, Imperial Oil Co. asked the bank to submit plans for the layout they required. And our Montreal architects came back with the design for an underground well to encase the vault area just so that if any would-be thieves planning to rent the building opposite and tunnel under the street to come up and break into our vault they would be drowned like rats in a trap. This well was fed by an underground stream so our cleaning staff had an unending supply of fresh water to clean our floors. But, no one ever tried to rob the bank in that fashion. I still think this story is one worthy of Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" column.

On the eve of my departure from Cartagena to take up my new assignment in Cali, Imperial Oil Co., then known as the Andean Corporation, sold the building which was bought by another financial institution in order to obtain the ground floor premises of The Royal Bank of Canada. The latter then purchased an old property on the borders of the Plaza de los Coches and built its own modern, air-conditioned premises. The City of Cartagena later presented the Bank with a Gold Medal for its contribution towards the beautification of this Ancient and Noble City.

The only Canadian bank to have ever operated in Colombia, it had an enviable reputation in this ancient city of Cartagena. I feel privileged to have had the opportunity of serving there during its existence.

Now we shall take in some views outside the walled city. Leaving from the Puerta del Reloj, across the street to our right is the Bahía de Ánimas, which is used by local fishermen to land their catch and also by the ferry boats to ply to and from the offshore island of Tierrabomba, which is also a very popular picnic spot with lovely clean beaches.

And on this island of Tierrabomba you can visit the Fortress of San Fernando, which was part of the overall fortified network designed to protect the city from pirate attack. Like virtually all of the networks, it is in a remarkable state of preservation.

Incidentally, did you ever see the film "Romancing the Stone", a thriller about an enormous emerald? In it there is a scene filmed in this historic fortress, where the bad guy is attacked by an alligator from the moat surrounding the fortress, which in later times was used as a prison. Part of the alligators dietary fare were the prisoners who tried to escape, but failed. If you visit it, watch out as some alligators are still there.

Opposite Tierrabomba is the Island of Barú. Actually, Barú is not really an island per se. It is separated from the mainland by a canal built to facilitate coastal shipping to connect to the mighty Magdalena River. In early colonial days, the two islands were linked by a chain fence underwater to prevent pirate vessels from entering the Bay of Cartagena. Unfortunately, no stamps portraying such a scene exist. And so, we press on back to the Bahía de Ánimas.

Another "must visit" are the "Bóvedas" (old dungeons), lining the inside ramparts of the city. Built towards the end of the 18th century, these were the last major structures to be erected in the colonial era. These 23 dungeons served originally as military barracks and then as a munitions depot. After independence, they were used as jails. But, in this modern era they have all been converted to tourist shops where all manner of mementos of one's visit can be acquired.

Macramé shawls & fine fabrics

Dazzling Emeralds

I recall that one day we received a letter from the manager of our Ottawa branch to say that two young female members of his staff were taking a Caribbean cruise and would be calling at Cartagena so would we please look after them. I was assigned the job. After I had escorted them around the sights, they asked me what kind of souvenir they should buy. Without hesitation, I replied, "an emerald." Back came the rejoinder that I expected: "No." I then said, "you can keep your arm and your leg. An emerald doesn't cost that much." I took them to see this jeweler - a valued bank client - and explained to him, in Spanish, which neither girl understood, their circumstances and demanded that he give them a real "fair deal." They didn't fancy an emerald ring set in gold, so I suggested they get a stone and have it set to their liking back home in Ottawa. The jeweler brought out a tray of stones that knocked them off their feet. I told them to go ahead and select one they liked. One of the girls backed off then and there: "No way I can afford that kind of thing," she said, but the other selected one and I asked the jeweler the price - rock bottom for a Royal bank employee. When he replied $38, she just about fell through the floor and reckoned it was a piece of beer bottle glass. I told her that if she bought it and the jeweler in Ottawa where she would take it for the setting reckoned that it wasn't real, or worth the price she paid for it, she could flush it down the toilet and I'd refund her the $38.

So she bought the stone: and in due course I received her tear stained letter telling me that Mappin & Webb had valued it at $300. Her fellow worker was still crying for having doubted me. Mind you, this took place in the early 1960s and I very much doubt that $38 emeralds are still obtainable.

Right, we've done our shopping, so let's move on outside the city walls, this time to the tiny enclave known as El Cabrero. It is in this neighbourhood that we can visit a small museum housed in a beautiful colonial mansion that was the home of the renowned Colombian president, Don Rafael Núñez. Born in 1825, he became a poet and philosopher. He also wrote the words to his country's national anthem, as well as drafted Colombia's New Constitution in 1886. There have been a few changes in it since then, but essentially it still forms the basis of the country's legislation.

During his lifetime he was elected President of the Republic on four occasions. And while in office, he mainly ran the government from this house in Cartagena where he lived for a total of eight years. The house/museum contains many of his and his family's personal belongings. Directly opposite the house is the little church known as La Ermita del Cabrero, where both Núñez and his wife are buried.

Shall we move on?

Leaving the Cabrero district, we head back towards the Centro district, and then strike out along the main avenue traversing La Matuna district.

At this point a little history is in order: did you know that Cartagena was the first city in South America to declare its independence from Spain? That was on November 11, 1811, a date religiously observed with great reverence by the people of Cartagena every year. That was the year when the city obtained its Coat of Arms and set up business as an independent entity within the Spanish-held enclave of Colombia. Alas, their freedom was rather short-lived.

The city came back under the Spanish yoke in 1815, when forces under the command of General Pablo Morillo laid siege to it and starved the inhabitants into surrender. All domestic pets had been eaten and even the rats were food for the poor wretches defending their beloved city. Between warfare and hunger about one-third of the population, roughly 8,000 perished.

But there was still a price to be paid for the insurrection. Once the city was firmly back in Spanish hands, nine of the independence movement leaders were trotted out on the Plaza de los Mártires, and publicly executed by firing squad on February 24, 1816. This scene was the subject of a registration stamp issued in 1910, but the uproar raised by the Spanish Ambassador was such that the stamp was withdrawn very shortly after its issue. Needless to say, it is a scarce item to acquire.

After reflecting upon the history of the thoroughfare on which we are treading, we continue straight ahead towards our next objective, the most famous landmark of the city: the impressive Fortress of San Felipe de Barajas.

This fortress has a fabulous history, which I'll relate in just a moment. But first, just before we reach the fortress, we shall pass by a couple of statues that are worthy of mention.

The first is of a shapely maiden known as La India Catalina. She was an Amerindian woman abducted by the first conquistadores and taken to what is now the Dominican Republic. There she learned Spanish and when Pedro de Heredia passed through there on his way southwards he took her with him to act as an interpreter. She was also reputed to be no mean warrior.

As an interesting snippet, a miniature copy of her statue is presented as a trophy for the best production screened at Cartagena's annual film festival. A local "Oscar," so to speak.

This stamp portraying La India Catalina was issued to commemorate the sesquicentennial of the Cartagena University. Perhaps I am dense, but I cannot fathom the connection between the two.

The other nearby "statue" is a bronze representation of a pair of battered old shoes.

It was erected in memory of one of Colombia's best known poets: Luis Carlos López. He loved Cartagena, his native city, as much as he loved his "old shoes."

Cartagena is twinned to the city of Coral Gables, a suburb of Miami, Florida, and the former has presented its 'twin' with a copy of this statue, which is prominently on display on one of the latter's arteries.

We have now arrived at the foot of the famous La Popa, the highest hill overlooking the city at an elevation of 325 feet. It was at this point where the Fortress of San Felipe de Barajas was constructed (see stamp). This was the most important military structure built in all of Latin America during the colonial era. The design was mainly the work of a Dutch engineer. Construction began in 1630 and was completed 27 years later.

In 1697 the French pirates Desjeans and Ducasse destroyed part of the fort and the city, making off with booty amounting to 11 million gold pesos. Following this disastrous attack, the fort was restored and underwent significant modifications which stood the defenders in good stead when the next assault came in 1741, this time by the British Admiral Vernon.

The previous year a British and a Spanish ship had locked horns and so Admiral Vernon was ordered to take Cartagena to avenge the affront which the British had suffered. But, through its spies, the Spaniards had learned of the British intentions and placed Don Blas de Lezo in charge of defending the city. This stalwart gentleman, a Basque of noble birth, was a seasoned officer of the Spanish Army and in the course of the many battles in which he had been involved, he had lost his right eye, right arm and left leg. He had acquired a reputation for courage and tenacity.

The first British warships appeared off the coast of Cartagena in March of 1741 and over the following days English forces continued to pour into the area, reaching a fleet of 186. Vernon, with 20,000 troops at his disposal, also had the guarantee of 4,000 men from the colony of Virginia. The Commander of that Virginia Regiment was none other than Captain Lawrence Washington, whose brother George would later become the first president of the United States of America.

This was the largest force ever assembled to capture the city and the Spanish forces, numbering only some 3,000 men, were pathetic. In April of 1741 the battle began. After 16 days of violent attacks Vernon succeeded in entering the Bay (remember the other forts that were defending the entrance to Cartagena Bay). The Spanish defenders took refuge within the city's fortifications. Finding themselves at the gates of the city, the English were so certain that total victory was within their grasp that they even sent word to Jamaica that they had prevailed. This great news was then conveyed to the Mother country where medals were struck to commemorate the great victory. Soon afterwards, the battle resumed and after a week of sustained firing, the British launched their final assault on the fort. But on April 21, to everyone's surprise, the British were defeated. Don Blas de Lezo, in his impregnable fortress, had stood fast, prompting his attackers to retreat. The "Victory Medal" had proved to be premature.

The bravery of the Cartagena defendants is incontestable, but they ultimately had a valuable ally which helped their cause: malaria and yellow fever, which had devastated the ranks of the British. As for Don Blas de Lezo, crowned with glory, he had lost his remaining leg and died soon after the battle. A statue was erected in his honour at the foot of the fort. It can be seen on the stamp to which I refer you again on the previous page.

Following that battle, the fortress was again strengthened by adding a number of imposing lateral batteries which were connected to one another by underground passageways. Underground chambers were added for storing weapons. At that time an underground passage was built to connect the fortress to the old city. However, the fortress did not have to withstand any further assaults of the Vernon magnitude.

Other views of these fortifications have appeared on stamps of Colombia.

Let us now ascend this hill to its summit where stands the Convent of La Popa. This other prominent landmark of the city has also appeared on a stamp: but it did not reflect a really clear image of the structure, as you can see for yourself. Back in 1902, when this stamp was issued, clarity of design was not a paramount concern.

However, to relate the origins of this landmark, I have to go back in time for four centuries. A large colonial upper-class residence in the centre of the city, which still stands, was inhabited at that time by a priest named Fray Alonso Garcia de la Cruz when, according to legend, the Virgin Mary miraculously appeared before him and ordered him to dedicate a sanctuary to her at the top of this hill.

At the urging of that priest in the year 1606, the monks of the Augustinian Recollect order began to build a small chapel. It was named Nuestra Señora de la Candelaria (Our Lady of Candelaria). The project continued throughout the 17th century and eventually the chapel became a real monastery. But, shortly after independence it was confiscated by the military and converted into a fort to defend the city against a possible Spanish attack. Once the country's independence was no longer threatened, the buildings were abandoned for more than a century. In 1961, the year when I arrived in Cartagena, the same ecclesiastic order took over the premises again and major restoration work began three years later.

Although it is still inhabited by a few monks, the monastery now serves mainly as a museum where visitors can see old maps and a variety of religious objects. By the side of the entrance, there is a small chapel which houses the famous wooden statue of Nuestra Señora de la Candelaria, which, incidentally, is the patron Saint of Cartagena. Every year, on February 2, hundreds of believers make a pilgrimage up the hill, some on their hands and knees. There is a procession in honour of the Virgin at which time a golden crown encrusted with 400 emeralds is placed on her head. A panoramic view of the city from this vantage point is wonderful and provides the camera-toting tourist a golden opportunity to capture on film the overall essence of this delightful old city.

Having descended La Popa, we are back in the district of Getsemení. Another old fortress, the Pastelillo, is today a fishing club and, oddly enough, one of the city's better dining spots.

Conditions have undergone radical changes since my days there and I don't imagine that al-fresco dining at this restaurant today will include the accompaniment of wee four-legged rodents scurrying around one's feet, hoping that someone will drop them a morsel of bread, or whatever, to join you in your repast, as I recall from my time there. O tempora, o mores!

By now, we have just about covered all the scenic spots of Cartagena, but to put some 'icing' on this account I have one or two additional comments to make.

In its rejuvenated condition since my days there, the city has become a tourist jewel and has attracted many international conferences such as the "Heads of States of Latin American Nations" and the "Non-aligned Nations." These occasions have been commemorated by special stamp issues, thus giving worldwide prominence to the city's image. The inscriptions on these stamps allude to the purpose of their issue.

Also worthy of mention is that Cartagena today is the host city for Colombia's National Beauty Queen annual pageant.

In 1953 Cartagena marked the 450th anniversary of its founding with the issue of these two stamps.

Having liberated part of Venezuela, Simón Bolívar launched an assault in 1819 on New Granada, as Colombia was known in those days, which triumphed three years later in both Bogotá and Cartagena.

Bolívar's praise for the city of CARTAGENA DE INDIAS:

"If Caracas gave me life, you have given me glory!"

And it was Bolívar who gave Cartagena its title of THE HEROIC CITY. ☒

Collecting a Single Stamp Can be Fun

By Kimber Wald

There are many types of philatelists. Some collect the stamps of the world; others collect only one or a few countries, postal history, topicals, or revenues. Folks with a highly specialized orientation may form collections of a specific issue. During my philatelic decades I have collected the United States, Canada, Germany, Great Britain pre-1840 postal History, Canadian postal history, Canadian revenues, American revenue stamped paper, and formed a specialized collection of the Canadian Historical and Confederation issues.

Several years ago I started to form a specialized collection of only one stamp: the 1933 Canadian UPU stamp (Fig. 1).

The World's Executive Committee of the International Postal Union met in Ottawa from May 18 to June 28, 1933, at the Chateau Laurier Hotel (Fig. 2) next to the Parliament buildings. It was formed after World War I to deal with the many problems of the international postal services arising after the upheaval. The Chateau Laurier Hotel was built in 1912 in the style of a 16th-century French Chateau.

The stamp was designed by H. H. Schwartz, engraved by the British American Bank Note Company, Ltd. and is perforated 11. The quantity issued was 5,100,000. It is not watermarked and was printed in sheets of 100 with plate numbers 1 and 2 at the upper left and upper right corners. Lower corners are blank. First day of issue was May 18, 1933.

The Parliament Buildings were constructed 1860-1867. Fig. 3 shows a photo of construction as it was in 1863.

In order to assemble a specialized collection of a single stamp you need to acquire any essays or proofs, if they are available. Known is one essay (Fig. 4), and two proofs. The large, rejected die essay measures 132 x 92 mm. in size and is printed in black on white paper. It is signed by Bruce Hay, the engraver. One large die proof is 86 x 86 mm. in size and printed on gummed wove paper. A pencil note is at the lower right. The second large trial colour die proof measures 107 x 76 mm. in black-on-white glazed paper. It has guidelines and shows the die number 488 below.

Figure 5.

Seventy-five imperforate pairs are available (Fig 5).

A few interesting varieties also exist. One shows a line on the right "5" (Fig. 6).

One should also acquire an example cancelled in each province.

First day covers should be included in such a collection as should covers illustrating domestic usage.

NO OTHER DELIVERS SO MUCH!

Figure 7.

Next, we turn to covers sent to foreign destinations. Figure 7 illustrates a cover to Vienna, Austria. Covers to foreign destinations are difficult to acquire. In 1933, the surface letter rate (1 oz.) to a foreign country was 5 cents. The rate to British Empire countries for the first ounce was 3 cents.

Since 5,100,000 of these stamps were issued and Canadians apparently did not correspond much with foreigners, dealers' stocks seem rather limited. Sometimes they go to interesting remote locations (Fig. 8), such as Luxemburg.

Besides standard surface letter-rate envelopes, the stamps were also used in combination with others to accommodate different postal rates. Fig. 9 illustrates a special delivery, surface mail cover to Germany charged an additional 5 cents for an additional ounce. Total paid was 30 cents.

Occasionally, covers will show an interesting philatelic variety. Fig. 10 presents a cover to Switzerland which had the proper 5-cent surface rate paid. At the lower right is a 40 centimes postage due stamp which was not necessary. Fig. 11 is an airmail cover sent from Montreal to Switzerland. The cover has a 20-cent United States airmail stamp attached, which was the airmail rate from the United States to Europe. Presumably the letter went to Switzerland via the United States and the sender was concerned it might not go if an American stamp was not affixed.

Fig. 12 is a cover sent from Italy with the Canadian UPU stamp in addition to the Italian postage. Likely the cover was sent as a joke. Perhaps the sender was a Canadian writing to an American friend.

Finally, Canadian UPU stamps have many perfin varieties. Commonwealth examples are perforated OHMS (Fig.13). Fig. 14 shows four examples of different patterns. Non-Commonwealth perfins also exist. Notice the Province of Saskatchewan example (Fig. 15) which has missing holes in the letters. Another example of a variety is JMT with the top of the “T” not punched out. ☒

A wide-angle photograph of the ruins of Glastonbury Abbey in Somerset, England. The stone walls and arches of the abbey are visible against a clear blue sky. In the foreground, there is a green lawn.

The Glastonbury THORN

By Bill Pekonen

An ancient Abbey is located on top of a conical hill, visible from miles away, in Glastonbury, Somerset, England. The Abbey's rocky ruins are named the Tor and an ancient hawthorn tree is located on the Abbey grounds.

The significance of the Glastonbury Thorn is related to Christ at Christmas; King Arthur; the Holy Grail; the romantic myths of Camelot; the magical Isle of Avalon and the fairies inhabiting the Glastonbury Tor.

On Christmas Day, a blossoming sprig of the Glastonbury Thorn is presented to the reigning monarch under a centuries-old royal tradition dating back to the reign of James I. The Glastonbury Thorn growing at the Glastonbury Abbey is the only similar thorn bush that blossoms twice each year – once at springtime and again at Christmas.

No other non-royal private person receives a sprig at Christmas from this tree. The only modern day exception was Emily Sartain.

The 1986 Great Britain Christmas Stamp series included the Glastonbury Thorn as part of the 12p and 13p design. (13a is a 32 stamp booklet format.) The flowering thorn plant is located on the grounds of the Glastonbury Abbey Church. The formal title is The Benedictine Abbey Church of the Blessed Virgin Mary and Saints Peter and Paul. It was rebuilt after a fire in 1184.

Although much of the Abbey is in ruins today, parts are still standing. The Abbey in its day was the greatest, the finest, the richest and the most splendid of all the cathedrals and abbeys of the West Country. It was identified as being the oldest foundation in Britain. Arthur E. Henderson published a pamphlet in 1936 about the Abbey. He provides reconstructive details about the design and possible original appearance, based on sketches and construction drawings. The final sentence in his pamphlet states: “Such ruins as remain are in sacred preservation, the holy water of the Well of St. Mary still sparkles, and the Holy Thorn brought by St. Joseph of Arimathea still flowers at Christmas.”

Emily Sartain (1903-1990) was an exceptional water colour artist, recognized throughout the western world as a supreme flower painter. Sartain is pronounced “Sir-tin” to rhyme with “certain”. She lived most of her life in Victoria, B.C. Emily also possessed a sense of history, imagery and magical mythology that is expressed in her art. Her art is similar to that produced by French and Flemish artists during the Golden Period of Art. Those attributes were either not understood or simply ignored by her Impressionist-focused critics in Canada. At this point the reader may be asking, what is the significance of the Glastonbury Thorn? A copy of the notes for The Last Abbot of Glastonbury was found in Emily’s file. These notes were written by Rev. A. D. Crake, B.A. about a tale of the days of Henry VIII.

Ancient legend relates that St. Philip, the apostle, anxious both for spreading the knowledge of the Gospel, and to provide for the safety of his friend, Joseph of Arimathea, combined these ends by sending him to Britain with eleven brethren. Some accounts add that Mary Magdalene accompanied him. Ostensibly, they were tossed about by the waves and blown off course and landed on the Isle of Avalon. Arviragus, the King, received them kindly and gave them permission to build a church. After building the church, it was dedicated to the blessed Virgin, a dedication afterwards forgotten, for it was finally dedicated to St. Joseph himself, under the name of Vetusta Ecclesia. St. Joseph was carefully encased with stone and preserved by subsequent architects, until Glastonbury’s great fire in 1184.

It is also recorded that the landing of the Saint and his companions took place at the northern side of Wirral Hill at a place identified in old maps as The Sea Wall. The exact spot was identified in ancient times by a hawthorn tree, which sprang from the staff St. Joseph struck into the ground when he landed. Many trees propagated by grafts from this wonderful tree still exist. The legend adds that St. Joseph brought with him a most arch is presented with a sprig of the Glastonbury Thorn in full bloom at Christmas. The Monarch is the only person to receive that symbol. An exception was made for Emily Sartain with the help of Mr. Bailey's two aunts, who lived in Glastonbury and who were connected to the church. They knew about Emily's reputation in the botanical art world. Emily felt proud of that singular honour.

Emily immediately painted the Glastonbury Thorn while the flower was still in bloom. Later, she met with Ernest Dovey, the director of Fine Arts Publishing Company. This firm specialized in printing high quality greeting cards. After looking at examples of Christmas cards that had been produced by W. E. Coumts Greeting Card Company in Canada, Dovey purchased the right to reproduce a number of her paintings on Christmas cards. Each year, Dovey custom printed special Christmas cards for the wife of Sir Burbridge, the owner of Harrod's Department Store. The exercise of selecting an annual design was a grueling task. But, as soon as Mrs. Dovey saw the design of the Glastonbury Thorn by Emily, she chose it for that year without even bothering to look at any other designs. The card was equally appreciated by her Church of England and Roman Catholic friends.

Local legends claim that King Arthur was also buried at Glastonbury. The first connection to King Arthur was made in the twelfth-century by a Welsh ecclesiastical writer by the name of Giraldus Cambrensis Cambrensis. According Cambrensis, monks claimed to have located King Arthur's grave. Apparently, the monks found a stone cross on which the following words were engraved: Here lies buried the renowned King Arthur in the Isle of Avalon". Sir Thomas Malory, in his book "The Death of King Arthur," quotes a slightly different version of the engraving: "Here lies Arthur, the once and future king."

More recent discoveries have found other evidence at a competing site at South Cadbury Castle. The legend is that this was really the location of Arthur's Camelot. Existence of alleged evidence has been found at both sites. The search for the real truth is still continuing. King Arthur's importance to British tradition and history is related to how he unified the country. Numerous postage stamps have been produced by different countries within the British Empire to commemorate a romantic era. These postal administrations were hoping to cash in on a magical story.

It is very probable that copies of the Fine Arts Christmas Card of the Glastonbury Thorn may be somewhere in a British Christmas Card collection. Anyone possessing one of those cards is requested to correspond with this writer in care of The Canadian Philatelist. ☒

Archeological digs at Glastonbury during the 1960s found shards of a vessel that some believe to be the Holy Grail, adding another level of excitement to the story. The St. Joseph legend is the basis for the symbolic celebration of Christmas by the Church of England. As head of that church, the reigning mon-

V...- Mail

By Richard Logan

During World War II, the United States Armed Forces basically divided its operations into four theatres of war – European Theatre; Mediterranean Theatre; Pacific Theatre; and the China Burma India Theatre.

From December 1, 1941 to December 31, 1946 approximately 16.1 million personnel served an average of thirty-three months of active duty during the conflict; seventy-three percent served abroad for an average of sixteen months. Close to 292,000 never made it back and 671,000 were wounded.

Regardless of where they were posted, there were two things that were very important to them: food - an army marches on its stomach - and mail call.

The call of names of those receiving mail from home was a special time of day. Unfortunately, by the time letters did arrive, during the early days of the war, they were most times months old and had lost a great deal of their interest. In fact, many never arrived at all, having been destroyed in action en route. Getting mail through and on time was a problem.

The question that the military usually asks when faced with such a situation was: “Is there a ready-made solution?” And there was.

The Eastman Kodak Company had developed a microfilm mail system called “Airgraph” that had been in use since the 1930s. Airgraph was a simple way of photographically reducing the tons of personal and official mail moving back and forth between England and the Allies in smaller and lighter parcels. At their destination, the letters and documents were enlarged to readable size for delivery.

Colonel William Rose, the US Army Director of Postal Operations was tasked with developing a microfilm mail system similar to Airgraph.

Poster promoting V...—

The outside of a V...— mail letter.

The inside of a V...-mail letter.

Through a process of consultation, cooperation and negotiation in a spirit of trust, respect and collaboration, Colonel Rose and his staff, working with the Navy and US Post Office Department soon put together a scenario which they believed would get the job done. The Post Office would deliver the mail to and from the Army and Navy overseas post offices in New York City and San Francisco, California. The Army Signal Corps was to be responsible for the microfilming and the developing process and for establishing Photographic Mail Stations. After all the imaginable possibilities – including a commercial operation – had been explored, a compromise was reached. When feasible, Photographic Mail Stations would be operated under contract with the Eastman Kodak Company in the United States or with Kodak Limited in the United Kingdom. The Signal Corps would, of course, supply the service in theatres of war where the employment of civilians was not possible.

Bit by bit, the final arrangements were worked out and the program was ready to get kick-started.

We are all aware the military likes to use acronyms. Colonel Rose and his staff did not like the bulky AMPMS – Army Micro Photographic Mail Service – that had been given to their creation. It needed something with a pithy punch and they came up with “Victory Mail.” This was shortened to V-Mail and one staff member suggested that instead of a hyphen, they use the Morse Code for V. Therefore, the official name of the service became V ... _ Mail.

In advance of the service actually beginning, V ... _ Mail No. 1 was delivered to President Franklin D. Roosevelt from A package of 16 envelopes cost 10 cents.

John Gilbert Winant, American Ambassador to Britain; Major General James Chaney, Commanding Officer of the American Forces serving in the United Kingdom at the time; Secretary of the Navy William Franklin Knox; and Postmaster General Frank Comerford Walker to show the manner in which the new service would be handled by the three departments.

The first Signal Corps Photo Mail Company was spurred into action on June 15, 1942.

V ... _ Mail letters were sent using a special letter format that was available – 10 cents for sixteen letters -at any post office or Five and Dime Store or you could buy a V... _ Mail Sheaffer's Writing Kit – ink, leads and letters – all for $1.00. The form was a 17.8cm by 23.2cm sheet of paper with limiting borders ruled on it – enough space for about 300 words. Folded; sealed with a glue flange on one side so that the letter could be folded in and sealed in such a way as to become its own envelope; stamped with 3 cents US postage; addressed to the recipient by name and Army Post Office number; the letter would go to the V... _ Mail Station in San Francisco or New York. By April 1, 1945, 556,513,795 V... _ Mail letters were sent from the United States and over 510, 000, 000 were received from military personnel abroad. It is interesting to note that in 1944, for instance, Navy personnel received 38,000,000 pieces of V..._ Mail and 272, 000, 000 pieces of regular First Class mail.

Out-going letters were fed into an “opening” machine, then hand-sorted for destination and according to whether the letters were typewritten or handwritten in ink or carbon pencil. Letters were then fed into a “recorder” at the rate of 2,000 per hour. Following the insertion of each 100 letters, a “target” letter was fed into the recorder bearing a number. If the filming of any of the letters was found to be faulty, the originals were located by the numbers on the targets and reinserted. The film was then put into a machine that developed, fixed and washed them in an uninterrupted process. Following inspection, the film was assembled for delivery.

In this way, a 30.48 metre roll of 16mm film containing up to 1700 letters was flown across the world in a small container weighing about 154 grams and displacing less than .000262 cubic metres or to put it another way, a sack of mail holding the same number of letters would have weighed 22.6796 kilograms.

At its terminus, each frame of the film was enlarged to a 10.6 cm by 12.4 cm paper print and placed in a window envelope and delivered to the addressee. It was less than half the size of the original letter, however, it was still perfectly legible.

The service had one major limitation: no enclosures. Since the V..._ Mail letters were opened mechanically and at high speed, contents were scattered to the winds and could not normally be traced back to the original letter. Even glued-on photographs could not be transmitted because the recording machines were made to accommodate only one thickness of paper. If the enclosures could be traced back to the original letter, the letter was resealed and sent by regular mail.

A minor limitation was the practice of loved ones imprinting lipstick kisses on the V..._ Mail letters – the lipstick blurred the writing and made it illegible.

V..._ Mail from the United States was not censored. Incoming V..._ Mail was censored in the country of origin before being filmed. Censors used strips of white paper pasted over any words or phrases that had to be dropped; therefore only a white space could be seen when the letter was printed in the smaller format.

What the recipient received.

It must be said that public acceptance of V..._ Mail was slow to get cranked up. There was an initial worry that filmed letters were then projected on a screen somewhere in the theatre of war for all to read. In addition, there was a belief that in the course of their processing, V..._ Mail letters were scrutinized by curious eyes. Great pains were taken to make sure that neither ever happened.

The biggest brag of the V..._ Mail service was that it never lost a letter. Being advised of a shot-down plane, a sunken ship or any other form of destruction that affected V..._ Mail delivery only meant an insignificant delay. Standing Operating Procedure was to keep original letters until their reproductions reached their destination. Therefore, when the original rolls were lost, every letter in those rolls was on its way again within a short time.

The process used for V..._ Mail was also used for educational purposes. The United States Armed Forces Institute – to provide educational opportunities to members of the Armed Forces – at Madison, Wisconsin, conducted most of its overseas correspondence courses by “Official Photo Mail” – a modified form of V..._ Mail that differed only in that the final prints were enlarged to full size instead of the 10.6 cm by 12.4 cm prints used by V..._ Mail.

The final V..._ Mail letter was sent by Major General Clarence H. Kells, Commanding Officer of the New York Embarkation Port to General Dwight D. Eisenhower. In it he indicated that V..._ Mail had resulted in an estimated saving of 95.5 percent in cubic footage of cargo space.

The success of the V..._ Mail initiative cannot be measured only in terms of cubic feet of cargo space. More correctly speaking, it was V..._ Mail's importance to morale between the home front and the theatres of war that may have done most to help soften the burden of war. ☒

PAST METHODS

Used to Promote Stamp Collecting

By C. R. McGuire, FRPSC, OTB

The feedback I received on my recent seven-part article^[1] exceeded what I have had on anything I had written before. While this surprised me, it also pleased me, as did ‘Letters to the Editor’ from Jim Measures and Keith Spencer with some of their recollections. Several people have asked me to provide more of my recollections. For readers who did not enjoy my series, you will be happy to know this is my last trip ‘down memory lane’.

Up to the 1980s, in addition to those I have already referred to in my previous articles, there were other firms, manufacturers and organizations offering stamp-related premiums. Some operated stamp and first day cover clubs, all of which helped to promote stamp collecting. Their various methods have always been of interest to me as part of the Canadian history of our hobby. Figure 1 is an envelope which contained stamps distributed to members of the ‘CKNC Stamp Club of the Air’, a circa 1920 Toronto radio station. This may be a forerunner of Doug and Mary Patrick’s CBC radio stamp club of the 1940-60s.^[2] Did you know that before Patrick became well known as a newspaper stamp columnist and author, he might have been a stamp dealer? If not, he had a namesake; see Figure 1, as Douglas Patrick’s letter [signed ‘Doug’] and envelope, both with his business address label.

During the 1930s NBC radio in the United States carried the Proctor and Gambles “Captain Tim’s Ivory Stamp Club”. Ivory was the name of their popular soap product, which I can remember my mother using. Tim Healey was a world traveller and explorer and an appropriate host for the programme, which I am sure, captivated the attention of young listeners.^[3]

Figures 2 to 3 show parts of the largest and certainly one of the most educational and complex “promotionals.” It is a 24” x 36” Rand McNally map of the world, circa 1950. It was available from Lipton Tea, probably like most premiums, by sending in coupons or labels and a nominal amount of money. Figure 2 is the map masthead. Around its four sides are thirty illustrations with descriptive text of ‘the most valuable stamps in the world’. Figure 3 depicts the portions with British North America [BNA] stamps: the Province of Canada 12-pence black and Canada’s 2-cent Large Queen on laid paper. Only two of the latter were known at the time. Today there are three, a third having been discovered in 2012 in a stamp sales circuit book. This confirms what I have contended for decades: new finds will continue to be made and, we hope, to be the discoverer.

In Part 4 of my previous series, I referred to other items from Liptons and their competing tea companies. They were some of the most prolific promoters of stamp collecting and its benefits. Unfortunately, they decided to cease doing so and switched to enclosing cards, on average 1 1/2 x 2 3/4 inches in size, depicting many different subjects in colour with appropriate text on the back. Later, china figurines of birds, animals, characters from well-known fairy tales and even figures of people from around the world were enclosed in product packages. They appealed to adults as well as children and to complete the various sets required that people continue buying their products. I can understand this type of premium would sell much more tea than when postage stamps were used.

The once common department store was another major group to bring stamp and coin collecting to the average person. Many had stamp and coin departments, counters, or corners in their main store and in branches across Canada and the United States. Some had priced stamp catalogues. Figure 4 depicts two of the annals available from Robert Simpson Company Limited. Note the 1936 edition confirms that as the year that they became known as simply Simpsons. In 1952 they joined the American department store Sears Roebuck Company, becoming Simpsons-Sears and eventually Sears. Whenever I was in a city with department stores that had a stamp counter, I would make a point to visit them and check their stamp stock and cover boxes. Occasionally, I would find a gem in the latter buried among the majority of the first day and first flight covers. Many fine, well-centered and used stamps with clear in-period CDSs could be found among the many heavy and machine-cancelled copies, all at the same price, and at half catalogue. I recall doing this in Eaton's, Simpson's and the Hudson's Bay stores in Canada, and Gimbels, Korvettes and Macy's in New York City, Hudson's in Detroit and at other department stores, the names of which escape me, in several more American cities.

Several arranged to have first day covers sent to their stores for resale. See Figure 5. Some had first day cover clubs. Figure 6 depicts Simpson's as an example. Note that they used a meter to frank the 1975 mailing to subscriber number D104-300 and in 1979, postage stamps, which was far more appropriate. Many gave away packages of hinges and tools useful to the collector, like T. Eaton's cardboard perforation gauge.

The stores sold stamps in their distinctive glassine envelopes. Figure 7 depicts the back and front of a very elaborate, circa 1891 once-popular trade card for the Henry Morgan store in Montreal. Figure 8 is a picture postcard used in 1913, which also shows the store along with their glassine envelope and an International Packet of 25 different stamps, which according to the price sticker, sold for five cents. Air and military postal historians will be familiar with Major Ian C. Morgan, a member of the family. He published the first specialized catalogue on Canadian airmail stamps in 1930.¹⁴¹ He also sought information on military post offices for another unpublished book. Illustration 9 confirms he was still pursuing this activity into the 1970s. He is best known for arranging to have covers postmarked at military post offices beginning in the 1930s. There will be few, if any, military collections without examples of Morgan covers. Illustration 10 shows that he was not always successful. The Canadian Postal Corps at MPO 213 forwarded Morgan's request for a cover to be postmarked to CPC HQ in Ottawa. Such requests were contrary to regulations and Morgan was well aware that it was. Nevertheless, he was often able to obtain the covers because of his position as paymaster of the 6th Hussars.

I am not aware of any of the few remaining department stores still operating a stamp and coin counter. The last I know of was managed by Brian Grant Duff in the Vancouver Eaton's. Figure 11 is the front and back of his calling card. I first met Brian in the 1980s when he worked for Fred Jr. and Danny, sons of F. E. Eaton, a major dealer and auctioneer in Vancouver (no connection to the Eaton's department store). The 1980s were the heyday of philately when Toronto was the center of the hobby in Canada. As a result, the Eaton lads decided to open their short-lived branch on Queen Street East in Toronto. At the time, Toronto had dozens of stamp shops, many with street front premises and located all over the city. It took several days to visit them all. Sadly, I understand there are none operating today.

Nestlé was another firm with a stamp club. Figure 11 also shows their envelope mailed as a first day cover for the Arthur Meighen stamp. My next series for The Canadian Philatelist will record other first day covers prepared by firms to promote their products or interest in the stamp concerned. The envelope contained a package of 12 stamps, a catalogue and order form. Receiving this would have thrilled young collectors who would no doubt buy more Nestlé products, enabling them to send in the order form along with one to four chocolate bar wrappers for more packets of stamps.

One of the most innovative uses of stamps to promote a product was done by Canada's Bata Shoe Company. Figure 12 is the cover of their Spring 1993 home-shopping catalogue. There are 32 pages, depicting the stamps of 11 countries: Argentina, Canada, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Spain, Thailand, West Germany and the United States. On the pages where a country's shoes are shown, a stamp of that country is appropriately depicted.

While I am not trying to promote drinking alcohol and certainly not smoking tobacco, having been a founding member of the No Smoking Association of Ottawa, my last two examples concern these products. Figure 13 is a full-page advertisement for a liquor firm that appeared in a 1964 British airline magazine. I think the use of 15 illustrations of some interesting, rare or exotic postage stamps, many with their current evaluations, is quite sophisticated. It states, "anyone can be a collector, but to be a connoisseur you must have knowledge and a deep appreciation of things rare." This last quote aptly applies to being a good philatelist and forming a significant collection. The inference being that the Booth brand was for those with a connoisseur's taste for gin, and using a selection of well chosen stamps to get the point across. Note that the stamps include one from BNA: the 1-shilling Nova Scotia (Unitrade 4/5 and Walsh 3/3a), described as an "unusual shape classic issue." Figure 14 is the cigarette promotion, which appeared in the 5 November 1965 edition of TIME, trying to be cute with the line: "Philatelists stamp their approval". If I had my way, cigarettes would be getting stamped on. Whenever I look at these advertisements, I wonder if they were effective in having non-collectors become philatelists or have collectors switch to the advertised brands because it used postage stamps in their advertising." ✉

PHILATELY IN WESTERN CANADA: THE PRAIRIES

PART 7

By Gray Scrimgeour, FRPSC

The Western Collector commented in December 1923 that:

The Canadian Philatelic Society has been re-organized with headquarters in Toronto. It is hoped that with a new start, under fresh officers, and we understand with a paid secretary, it should go forward with new vigor.

In February 1924, The Western Collector included a report — probably written in Toronto — that, “After almost a year of inactivity, during which time it almost lapsed into rigor mortis, the Canadian Philatelic Society has been reorganized... The organization has been known under its present name since 1921 [sic], during which time it has undergone many vicissitudes and tribulations. It is not the intention of the present Executive to assail the former administration for the complete collapse of the Society; it would not be fair to do so in the absence of definite information. Undoubtedly they had their difficulties and problems, as we all have.”

No matter how and why events occurred, Winnipeg developed a strong local club, the Winnipeg Philatelic Society, and the CPS survived and soon elected a seven-person executive, with six members from Toronto and one from west of Toronto — from Mimico. Comments I have read suggest that Fred Jarrett moved the CPS from Winnipeg to Toronto, but the feelings on this move vary by location. A Winnipeger feels that Jarrett wanted the lucrative circuit book revenues, and an Ontarian that Jarrett saved the Society from an early death.

The first report from the Winnipeg Philatelic Society that I have found is in the January 1923 issue of The Western Collector. The club President was H.L. Pratt, who had been a President of the CPS. At this time, membership in the WPS was limited to residents of Winnipeg “including all points connected by street car such as Selkirk and Headingly.” Annual dues were $1 per year with a 50¢ membership fee. Meetings were weekly: every Wednesday at the clubroom, 404 Notre Dame Investment Building, Notre Dame East.

Reports on the Winnipeg Philatelic Society appear in The Western Collector, starting in Issue No. 1, December 1922. President then was H.L. Pratt, and William Van was Auctioneer; there were 28 members. Dr. W.F. Dey was the President in the fall of 1923.

After the success of the Yorkton exhibition in 1923, the Winnipeg Philatelic Society held the Second Annual Stamp Exhibition and Philatelic Convention, September 17 to 20, 1924. William Van was General Secretary and Dr. W.F.

Dey was President. Most of the 7th floor of the Marlborough Hotel was used. A 44-page prospectus was issued. A post office was open at the Exhibition and the mail posted at the show received a special Exhibition cancellation, which already had been used at the Winnipeg post office for several weeks (Figure 48).

The October 1924 issue of The Western Collector contains a five-page report on the Winnipeg Exhibition — the biggest philatelic show ever held in Canada to that time.^[81] There were 166 exhibits from leading collectors of Canada, the United States, and Great Britain. C.J. Philips of New York delivered a talk on “The Rarity and Catalogue Values of Stamps.” J.B. Parker talked about collecting by Boy Scouts and other youths in Regina.

The Western Collector in 1922 contained advertisements for two Winnipeg dealers: Van’s Variety Store and the Winnipeg Book and Stamp Shop, 278 Smith Street. The exhibition seems to have stimulated stamp dealing in Winnipeg because three new dealers opened businesses. G.G. Charbonneau opened A.B.C. Stamp Co. at Portage and Main. C.W. Brook commenced the Winnipeg Stamp Exchange in C. Rodden’s book store on Portage Avenue, and Mr. Jones started the Western Stamp Co., a mail-order business (was this related to the 1909 company mentioned above?). In 1925, the Western Stamp Co. was located at 683 William Avenue, and was selling stamps and supplies by mail order.

The November 1929 issue of The Western Collector notes that the A.B.C. Stamp Co. had new premises: 267 Notre Dame Avenue W. In September 1930, the company moved to 187 Portage Avenue E. The Mall Book Store, 470

Portage Avenue advertised British Colonial and Foreign postage stamps as their specialty. In May 1931, the proprietor Mr. Hanks moved the Mall Book Store to 569 Portage Avenue and changed the name to the Strand Book Store. In May 1931, C. MacPhail of Mac's Book Store (492 Portage Avenue) branched out into selling stamps. He was selling B.N.A. stamps in singles, pairs, and sets.

The new slate of officers of the Winnipeg Stamp Club in October 1924 had Marcus Hyman (1883-1938; Figure 49) as President. Hyman, son of a rabbi — born in Vilna, Poland and educated at Oxford — came to Winnipeg in 1913.^[82] He was a labour lawyer, taught at the Manitoba Law School, served on the Winnipeg School Board (1924 to 1929), and was an MLA (between 1933 and 1940). He was a defence counsel for the strikers after the 1919 Winnipeg General Strike. His obituary in the Free Press says, “He was a leading figure in Winnipeg Jewry and in Winnipeg.” He was a general collector.

Membership was about 50. H.J. Couch of Pasadena, California (Member #1 of the WPS) is listed in March 1925 as a Life Member. The club held a Junior Stamp Exhibition in 1925, and decided to hold another on March 27, 1929 at the Marlborough Hotel. T.L. Hartley was President for 1929-1930, and meetings were held in the club rooms at 268 Fort Street. However, because of the Depression, the club virtually died

The Winnipeg club was reorganized in 1930, with the name Winnipeg Philatelic Society. The October 1930 issue of The Western Collector reported changes to the club's constitution. An executive committee of nine members (with no President or Manager) replaced the former small committee formed of officers. The membership fee was $3.00, and provision was made for associate members. Meetings were held at the St. Charles Hotel every two weeks. William Van was still club auctioneer.

The December 1931 issue of The Western Collector found the WPS meeting weekly at the offices of the Morgan-Nicholson Co. in the Toronto General Trust Building. No membership fee was charged that year. In 1933, meetings were held irregularly in the St. Charles Hotel. In 1934, the club moved its meetings to the Free Press Building on Carlton Street.

In 1934, the Winnipeg Philatelic Society was re-energized after the depression and a great effort was made for the 1935 Jubilee celebrations. The club held a large stamp exhibition from May 13 to May 18, 1935 in Eaton's annex.^[83] The exhibition included special lectures, movies, and slides. Club President J.C. Cartwright and other officials of the WPS were present all week. I.C. Bricker of Elora, Ontario showed a specialized Jamaica collection. A.F. Brophey had a collection of imperforate stamps of Canada. Col. J.Y. Reid's exhibit included mint blocks of Cape of Good Hope triangles and a Connell stamp of New Brunswick. Collectors from England, the United States, South Africa, Ontario, and Prince Edward Island attended. It was probably the largest show ever held in Winnipeg. There were reported to be 50,000 stamps on display, valued at $150,000, with a reported 35,000 visitors.

The 1935 exhibition had its own post office, which was to operate until 5:30 p.m. May 18. Covers have a large commemorative datestamp reading PHILATELIC EXHIBITION / SILVER JUBILEE / WINNIPEG, MAN. with the date in the centre. The club's triangular crest is at the upper left of many covers (Figure 50).

During World War II and until 1971, club meetings were held in the Board Room of the Free Press Building. In 1971, meetings were moved to the Planetarium on Main Street and in 1980 to the Veteran's Room, in the basement of the Union Station (now the VIA station), at the corner of Broadway and Main. The meeting place was changed in 1994 to Room 306 of the Union Centre, at Broadway and Smith. Later venues were the Deaf Centre, 285 Pembina Highway and the present meeting site, the Scandinavian Centre, 764 Erin Street.

Sturgeon Creek (Winnipeg) had a Junior Stamp Club, formed in 1930. The club had a special meeting on February 20, 1931 to celebrate its first birthday⁸⁴. There was a private exhibition by the boys of the club.

Des Connor has recently found information about another early Winnipeg club. On January 28, 1931, a Miss Parr organized a junior boys club called the Cornish Stamp Club at a meeting at the Cornish Public Library in Winnipeg. Initially, meetings were held each Wednesday at 7 p.m. The time was later changed to the second Friday of each month, at the same time and venue. The initial membership was 47, and the annual membership fee was 25¢. An annual exhibition, open to the public, was held at the library. This club operated from 1931 to 1939. It was fiercely independent — not affiliated with any other group, including the Winnipeg Philatelic Society.

SOME OTHER MANITOBA COLLECTORS AND DEALERS

Col. John Y. Reid of Winnipeg (born in Toronto in 1871) collected British Colonials.^[60] He was a Justice of the Peace for Manitoba, and served in World War I. Reid was Honorary President of the Second Annual Stamp Exhibition, 1924.

Frank Summerhayes Thompson of Winnipeg was born in Montreal. He collected Canadian precancels and slogan cancels. He was a Director of the C.P.S. in 1921-1922.^[60] When Thompson published The Canadian Precancelled Postage Stamp Catalogue in 1923, advertising said that it “Undoubtedly was the Most Advanced Philatelic Work Yet Published in Canada.”^[65] In May 1923, the Philatelic Publishing Company of Winnipeg (i.e., F.S. Thompson) put out a 28-page Check List of Canadian Advertising Cancellations [slogans] compiled by A.H. Pike and Associates. Thompson also sold stamps; in 1931, he advertised that he had the most complete stock of Canada stamps in the west. He published price lists between 1932 and 1938.^[66]

William Van was born in Belgium in 1890. He owned Van's Variety Store, 267 Notre Dame Avenue, which moved in April 1923 and became the Van-Cleland Book and Art Store, 284 Main Street. Jarrett^[67] says that Van's stamp business was done on a balcony overhanging the rear of his Main Street store. Van conducted philatelic auctions under the name Great Western Mail Auction.^[68] His sales specialized in Canada and Provinces. He was Secretary and Librarian of the C.P.S. in 1922-1923. In 1931, he published the first newsletter in the series Van-Cleland's Collectors' News.^[69] These newsletters are not listed by McCready or Birch, so probably were mostly sales lists. Van eventually moved to Vancouver.

After Fred Jarrett met Franklin H. Alexander at his office in Winnipeg and saw his marvelous stock books of stamps, he commented that, “I must have found another Reford or Lichtenstein.”^[90] In 1927, charges related to fraud conspiracy at the Great West Permanent Loan Company and the Imperial Canadian Trust Company were laid against Alexander and his brother, William Thomas Alexander. After a long court case, both were found guilty and spent time in custody.

Fred Peters (Figure 51) was a Winnipeg stamp dealer from the 1940s. His stamp shop was located at 242 Logan Ave West, off Main St. He was at that location until the early sixties, then relocated to 284 Arlington St at Portage Avenue upstairs in The Royal Bank Building. Fred had a Bid Board under glass on the wall, and later when he downsized, he published auction catalogues. ☒

(No medals are awarded for single-frame exhibits at the international level.)

To put the results in perspective, there were only 24 Large Gold Medals awarded in the exhibition. Jean-Jacques Tillard's second exhibit, which received a Gold Medal, is also quite an achievement for a five-frame exhibit at an international show. Fred Fawn's single-frame exhibit received the second-highest score of all the single frame entries.

The Grand Prix International was awarded to Tan Ah Ee of Singapore for his exhibit of Straits Settlement Classic. The Grand Prix d' Honneur was awarded to M. & A. Barreras Ruano for their exhibit of The First Issue of Spain. The Grand Prix National was garnered by Nuntawat Euarchukiati for his exhibit of Siam: King Rama VIII and World War II. The three Grand Prix Awards were presented to the winners at a special ceremony where Her Royal Highness Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn presided.

The Palmares was held in the original building that housed Bangkok's General Post Office. At the end of the Palmares, the FIP flag was passed from Dr. Prakob Chirakiti, (right) Vice President of Organizing Committee, as well as Commissioner General and Jury Secretary for Thailand 2013 and President of the Philatelic Association of Thailand, to Macedo Reinaldo Esteveao (Second from left), Secretary General of Brasiliana 2013. Dr. Peter McCann FRPSC (left), Vice President of FIP, is the FIP consultant to both of these shows and supervised this ceremony together with Tay Pian Hian (Second from right), President of FIP.

It is likely that the only Canadians who attended the show were John McEntyre, the Assistant Commissioner, Alexandra Glashan and yours truly, the Canadian Commissioner. ☒

SOUTH PACIFIC STAMPS

- Second and Third Pictorial Issues

By Joseph Monteiro

INTRODUCTION

Collecting stamps of the South Pacific has been the passion of a number of philatelists. Whether this passion has arisen because these stamps are colourful or because the designs on these stamps are of a people and land practically untouched by modern development, or simply because the stamps remind one of fascinating tales of pirates and explorers is not known. Nevertheless, it provides sufficient scope for serious collectors to study these stamps, if they are prepared to go back into earlier periods.

In the first article on this subject, the first issues of the Pacific islands of Papua and New Guinea, Pitcairn, and Western Samoa around the time of their independence were examined. In this article, the subsequent issues will be examined i.e., the second and third definitive series. Through the design on some of these stamps, philatelists should get a better appreciation of what life was like on these islands more than half a century ago. First, a brief historical background is provided so that philatelists can better appreciate these stamps, especially if one is interested in collecting stamps of these countries from the very first stamps issued. Second, the second pictorial issues will be examined. Third, the next pictorial issues will be examined.

BACKGROUND

The historical background will be briefly mentioned here. It was covered at great length in my previous article which appeared in the Canadian Philatelist of July/August 2013.

Papua and New Guinea as a combined Territory first issued stamps in 1952. The two Territories of Papua and New Guinea have a long, interesting philatelic history dating back to 1888. The south-eastern section (known as Papua) used the stamps of Queensland from 1888-1901. In 1901, stamps bearing the title British New Guinea were used. In 1906, these stamps were overprinted Papua. It was not until 1907 that stamps bearing the name of the Territory PAPUA were first printed and used. The north-eastern section (known as New Guinea) used the stamps of Germany (1888-1891) and then stamps of German New Guinea (1898-1914). From 1915-1925, the stamps of Australia were overprinted N.W. Pacific Islands and used. It was only in 1925 that stamps bearing the title Territory of New Guinea were issued. For the western section, the stamps of Netherlands Nieuw Guinea were used until 1962 and then the stamps of Indonesia.

Pitcairn Islands issued its first stamps bearing the name Pitcairn Islands on October 15, 1940. Though it was discovered in 1767, it became a British territory in 1927 and from 1927 to 1940 a New Zealand Postal Agency operated the postal services using New Zealand stamps.

Samoa has a long history of issuing stamps. From 1877 to 1881, stamps of Samoa Express, a private company, were used. From 1886 to 1900, the stamps of the Davis regime were used (King Malietoa, the Palm Trees and the Flags). From 1900, German stamps were used, overprinted Samoa. Then the Yacht stamps in the name Samoa printed with German currency were used. In August 1914, these stamps were overprinted G.R.I. and surcharged with a British currency. Later in that year, New Zealand stamps and postal stationery were overprinted SAMOA. On December 23, 1921, Samoa's first pictorial series under New Zealand control appeared. In 1962, independent Samoa issued its first stamps with the name Samoa i Sisifo.

SECOND PICTORIAL ISSUE

Papua and New Guinea: Second Definitive Pictorial Issue (1958-60) -- Scott 140-146 - SG 18-24: The second pictorial definitive set continues the interesting designs displayed in the earlier definitive sets.

The second pictorial definitive set issued on June 2, 1958 and on November 10, 1960 consists of seven stamps. The values of the stamps issued on the first date are: 4d, 7d, 1/7s and 5s; and the values of the stamps issued on the second date are: 5d, 8d, and 2/5s. The design on the stamps depict: the cacao bean pods (4d), the cacao bean pods (5d), the Klinki plymill (7d), the Klinki plymill (8d), cattle herding (1/7s), cattle herding (2/5s), and coffee beans on a branch (5s). The colour of the stamps are as follows: 4d - vermilion, 5d - green, 7d - bronze-green, 8d - ultramarine, 1/7s - red-brown, 2/5s - vermilion, and 5s crimson and olive green. The 4d and 5d were perforated with a 14 x 14 perforating gauge, the values 7d, 8d, 1/7s and 2/5s were perforated with a 14.5 x 14 perforating gauge and the value 2/5s was perforated with a 14 x 14.5 perforating gauge. The stamps have been printed using the engraving process in panes by the Authority of the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia. Quantities of the stamps issued are: 4d - 3,807,072; 5d - 5,187,312; 7d - 1,330,318; 8d - 339,156; 1/7s - 121,913; and 2/5s - 162,000.

Pitcairn Islands: Second Definitive Pictorial Issue (1957) -- Scott 20-31 - SG 18/28/23a: In 1957, Pitcairn Islands issued its second definitive set but the first with the portrait of Queen Elizabeth II on the stamp. The first definitive set had the portrait of King George VI. This definitive pictorial set like the first, is very colourful, depicting various scenes of the island and its activities.

The second pictorial definitive set issued on July 2, 1957 consists of twelve stamps. The values of these stamps are: ½d, 1d, 2d, 2 ½d, 3d, 4d, 4d, 6d, 8d, 1s, 2s and 2/6s. The design on the stamps depict: the Ti plant, Map of the island, John Adams and the Bounty Bible, Pitcairn handicrafts, Bounty Bay, Pitcairn school, School teachers house, Map connecting Fiji and Pitcairn, Inland scene, Pitcairn handicrafts, Pitcairn wheelbarrow and the Launch of a whale boat. The colour of the stamps are as follows: ½d – green and lilac, 1d – black and green, 2d – brown and blue, 2 ½d – orange and brown, 3d – green and blue, 4d – red and blue, 4d – red and blue, 6d – buff and indigo, 8d – green and red, 1s – black and brown, 2s – green and orange and 2/6s – blue and red. The stamps have been printed using the recess printing process (often referred to as intaglio, line engraving or steel engraving) on watermarked paper with the multiscrypt CA. The stamps were printed by De La Rue & Co and perforated with a 13 x 12.5 perforating gauge on the horizontal designs and 12.5 x 13 on the vertical designs. The listing of the two 4d stamps indicated above is not a mistake. The first 4d stamp released had the wrong description of the stamp indicating Pitcairn School. It was later corrected with the release of a new 4d stamp with the description school teacher's house. This was released on May 11, 1958.

Western Samoa: First Definitive Independence Issue (1962) -- Scott 223-232 - SG 239-248: On January 1, 1962 Samoa gained its independence from New Zealand and issued its first definitive set of stamps with the name Samoa i Sisifo. The stamps depict various aspects of Samoan life, architecture and state symbols of the country.

This pictorial independence definitive set issued on July 2, 1962 consists of ten stamps. The values of these stamps are:

1d, 2d, 3d, 4d, 6d, 8d, 1s, 1/3s, 2s and 5s. The design on the stamps depict: Samoan fine mat, Samoan college, the Public library, Fono house, Western Samoa island (Upolu and Savai'i), the Airport, Samoan orator, Vailima, Samoan Flag, and the Public seal of the independent state of Western Samoa. Each stamp also has the inscription "Independence 1962" together with the name of the country Samoa i Sisifo in large print and Western Samoa in small print. The colours of the stamps are as follows: 1d – pink and maroon, 2d – yellow, orange, green and dark green, 3d – blue and grey, 4d – blue, green, dark grey and pink, 6d – blue, yellow and dark blue, 8d – green and blue, 1s – green and black, 1/3s – blue and green, 2s – blue, red and dark blue and 5s – light grey, yellow, red and blue. The stamps were printed on watermarked paper using the lithographic printing process and perforated with a 13.5 x 13.5 gauge. The size of the stamps (horizontal x vertical) are 24mm x 40mm for the 1d and 1s and 40mm x 24mm for the rest. On October 4, 1965, the 1d, 4d, 6d, 8d and $1 stamps were re-issued with a different watermark.

THIRD PICTORIAL ISSUE

Papua and New Guinea: Third Definitive Pictorial Issue (1961-64) -- Scott 155-163 - SG 28/48: The third pictorial definitive sets were issued between 1961 and 1964. Seven stamps were issued in 1961 and four stamps were issued in 1964. The stamps depict individuals in their native costumes and scenes of life in Papua and New Guinea. The eye-catching designs made these stamps very popular among collectors.

The values of the seven stamps issued in 1961 are: 1d, 3d, 8d, 1s, 2s, 2/3s and 3s and the values of the four stamps issued in 1964 are: 5d, 6d, 10s and L1. The design on the stamps depict: Goroka Woman (1d), Tari elder (3d), Bird of paradise (5d), Opossum (6d), a Painting of Port Moresby with ships in the bay (8d), a Native female dancer in costume (1s), a Native male dancer playing a drum (2s), a Painting

Pitcairn Islands: Third Definitive Pictorial Issue (1964) -- Scott 39-64 - SG 36-48: The third definitive set, like the second definitive set, is very colourful, depicting various vessels and birds of the islands. Each stamp has a small portrait of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II at the right top corner with the exception of the highest value stamp. Three of the stamps show sailing vessels, eight depict birds and one depicts Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II.

The third pictorial definitive set issued on August 5, 1964 consists of thirteen stamps. The values of these stamps are: ½d, 1d, 2d, 3d, 4d, 6d, 8d, 10d 1s, 1/6s, 2/6s, 4s and 8s. The design on the stamps in the above order depict: an Island longboat, an Armed vessel – H.M. Armed Vessel Bounty, Piloting from Bounty Bay, the Frigate Bird, the Fairy Tern, the Pitcairn sparrow, the Austin Bird, Bosun birds, the Chicken bird, the Red breast parrot, the Ghost bird, the Wood pigeon and a portrait of Queen Elizabeth II against the background of Pitcairn Island. The stamps are multi-colour and the prominent colours in each are as follows: ½d – blue-green and beige, 1d – light blue and black, 2d – purple magenta and white, 10d – blue and white, 1s – yellow and black, 1/6s – olive-green, green and red, 2/6s – orange and black, 4s – light brown and yellow and 8s – blue, cream and black. The stamps were printed using photogravure on watermarked paper with the multiple St. Edwards Crown CA. The stamps were designed by M.C. Farrar-Bell, printed by Harrison and Sons Ltd London and perforated with a 14 x 14.5 perforating gauge.

Western Samoa (Samoa i Sisifo): Definitive Pictorial Issue (1967) -- Scott 265-274B - SG 280-289b: In 1967, the second definitive set of stamps was issued depicting various birds native to Samoa. It is worthwhile noting that this is the first definitive set of stamps issued in the new currency sene and Samoan dollars.

The second pictorial definitive set consists of twelve stamps. 1s (sene) to $1 were issued on July 10, 1967 and the $2 and $4 were issued on July 14, 1969. The values of these stamps are: 1s, 2s, 3s, 5s, 7s, 10s, 20s, 25s, 50s, $1, $2 and $4. The design on the stamps as indicated above depict the Wattled Honey-Eater, the Pacific Pigeon, the Samoan Starling, the Samoan Broadbill, the Red-headed Parrot-Finch, the Purple Swamp-Hen, the Barn Owl, the Tooth-Billed Pigeon, the Island Thrush, the Samoan Fantail, the Mao and the Samoan White Eye. The colours of the stamps are as follows: 1s – olive-green, yellow and brown, 2s – black, pink and blue, 3s – brown and green, 5s – dark blue, red and purple, 7s – blue, red, green and grey, 10s – dark brown, violet and blue, 20s – brown and blue, 25s – red, Prussian blue and pink, 50s – dark brown and olive-green, $1 – dark brown and light-orange, $2 – dark and light brown and blue, and $4 – yellow-green and orange. The of Port Moresby from the air with a plane in the sky (2/3s), Traffic at the intersection of Douglas and Musgrave streets in Port Moresby (3s), a Painting of Rabaul Harbour (10s), and a Portrait of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II (L1). The colour of the stamps are as follows: 1d - lake, 3d - indigo, 5d – brown and , 6d – grey and yellow, 8d - green, 1s - green, 2s - maroon, 2/3s - blue, 3s – green, 10s – multi-colour and £1 – green-blue, black and white. The 1d, 3d and 3s were perforated with a 14.5 x 14 perforating gauge, the 1s, 8d and 2s were perforated with a 14 x 14.5 perforating gauge, the 8d and 2/3s was perforated with a 14 x 13.5 perforating gauge, the 5d, 6d and 10s were perforated with a 11.5 x 11.5 perforating gauge, and the L1 was perforated with a 14 x 14 perforating gauge. The 1d, 3d, 8d, 1s, 2s, 2/3s and 3s stamps were printed using the engraving process. The 5d, 6d, 10s and L1 stamps were printed using photogravure. The first three values were printed by Helio Courvoisier SA, Switzerland and the last value by Harrison and Sons Ltd., London. Quantities of the stamps issued are: 1d – 2,459,248; 3d – 1,972,036; 5d – 4,608,918; 6d – 491,056; 8d – 498,784; 1s – 1,042,740; 2s – 1,042,740; 2/3s – 230,455; 3s – 307,718; 10s – 95,450; and £1 – 96,184.

stamps were printed using the lithographic printing process on watermarked paper. The stamps were printed by Format International Security Printers Ltd. London England and the size of the stamps (horizontal x vertical) are 40mm x 26.5mm for the low values (1s to $1) and 48mm x 32mm for the high values ($2 and $4). The low values were perforated using a 14 x 14.5 perforating gauge and the high values were perforated with a 14 x 14 perforating gauge.

CONCLUSION

The second and third pictorial sets of the few countries of South Pacific examined here are quite revealing. They depict realistic designs of the inhabitants' primitive way of life in these countries more than half a century ago when time appears to stand still. The details of the designs are quite remarkable – they are eye-catching and appealing. The stamps of some of these countries now begin to appear printed on coated paper in lithography with advances in printing technology. The colour combinations are now more dazzling than was permitted under the older technology and to younger collectors they appear more appealing.

Nevertheless, there is something charming about these stamps as the pictures display life far removed from the hustle and bustle of most fast-moving North American cities. It appears that life has not changed on these islands where it existed for several centuries, a place where life blends in with nature unperturbed by developments and industrialization elsewhere. It is therefore not surprising that stamps of these countries continue to be popular with stamp collectors. ✉

BELGIUM PETER BENOIT, DOT BEFORE 7

Belgian composer Peter Benoit was born in 1832. To honor his musical accomplishments, Belgium issued a 75 centimes + 25 centimes semi-postal stamp one hundred years later. The Catalogue Officiel de Timbres-Poste Belgique (COB) prices a mint never hinged copy of the 1932 stamp at 17.50 euros and both mint hinged (MH) and used copies at 6 euros. The 2004 edition of COB lists three varieties, all priced at 105 euros MNH, 45 euros MH, and 30 euros used. One of the adjacent images shows the full stamp, with a white circle marking the location of the variety that has a large colored dot before the "7" of "75" in the lower left corner. The variety also is shown in a detailed image.

While not all collectors have ready access to COB, a reasonable estimate of the catalog price can be developed from the information above. Dividing the variety value by the value of the ordinary stamp will create a multiple the reader can apply to prices from any other catalog. For example, if the ordinary stamp has a used price of 6 euros, and the variety has a used price of 30 euros, multiplying a Scott or Gibbons price for the used stamp by 5 will give an approximate value for the variety. ☒

As usual, colour images are available to those who e-mail me with requests (napoleon3rd@sbcglobal.net).

Good News! We've just had it confirmed that the Middlesex Stamp Club will be hosting Royal 2015, our annual convention, exhibition and bourse, in collaboration with the board of your Society, May 22 to 24th, in London, Ontario. There has traditionally been a long line of committed convention hosts at the ready, but 2015 had been overlooked because other cities wanted to host beyond 2015 for reasons of anniversary celebrations. Thank you, Middlesex S.C.!

The Kitchener-Waterloo Philatelic Society is showing interest in 2016, partly because that year will mark 100 years since the change of Kitchener's city name from Berlin to Kitchener. Information is being gathered now to prepare a bid.

2017 has already eagerly been requested by the Boucherville Stamp and Coin Club - in French, l'Association des numismates et des philatélistes de Boucherville. Boucherville is on the south shore of the St. Lawrence, about a 20-minute drive from downtown Montreal. The city was named after its founder, Pierre Boucher, a most interesting Canadian pioneer, writer and community-builder, for whose death 2017 will be the 300th anniversary. By the way, although the club unites coin collectors with stamp collectors, this event will focus strictly on stamps and philately. There will be a parallel numismatic event in Boucherville at another time of that year.

It's no easy task to line up host towns and cities, nor as host community is it simple to put on a national convention. However, the benefits to both the host chapter and the members who come from out of town are exciting for all collectors. The Royale show is our annual showcase event. Getting together annually to do the business of the Society AND to share in and celebrate the hobby is made that much more important by the great size and limited population of Canada.

It's for these key reasons that we hope, over time, to get to every province, and possibly a territory, for our annual Royal/Royale gathering. It's been a long time since we met in British Columbia, New Brunswick or Saskatchewan. And have we ever met in either of our island provinces? I don't think so. I

Bonnes nouvelles! Nous venons tout juste de recevoir confirmation que le Middlesex Stamp Club sera l'hôte de Royal 2015, notre congrès annuel assorti d'une exposition et d'une bourse aux timbres, organisé en collaboration avec le conseil d'administration de notre société, du 22 au 24 mai à London, Ontario. Traditionnellement, nous avons toujours une longue liste d'hôtes dévoués prêts à tenir le congrès, mais 2015 était passée inaperçu parce que les villes qui envisageaient d'organiser un congrès souhaitaient le faire après 2015 en prévision de célébrations d'anniversaires. Merci au Middlesex Stamp Club!

La société philatélique de Kitchener-Waterloo a manifesté un intérêt pour 2016, en partie parce que cette année marquera les 100 ans du changement du nom de la ville qui s'appelait autrefois Berlin. Des renseignements sont actuellement recueillis en vue d'une soumission.

Quant à l'année 2017, l'Association des numismates et des philatélistes de Boucherville inc. l'a demandée avec insistance. Boucherville est située sur la rive sud du Saint-Laurent, à une distance d'environ vingt minutes en auto du centre-ville de Montréal. La ville tient son nom de son fondateur, Pierre Boucher, l'un des pionniers canadiens les plus intéressants, écrivain et bâtisseur communautaire. L'année 2017 marquera le 300e anniversaire de son décès. Il est à noter que si le club réunit les numismates et les philatélistes, cette manifestation portera uniquement sur les timbres et la philatélie. Une manifestation numismatique aura lieu à Boucherville à un autre moment au cours de la même année.

Établissement d'une liste de villes hôtes n'est pas une tâche facile tout comme l'organisation d'un congrès n'est pas simple pour les villes hôtes. Cependant, les avantages qu'en retirent la section de clubs et les membres qui viennent de l'extérieur suscitent l'enthousiasme de tous les collectionneurs. L'exposition Royale est notre vitrine annuelle. La réunion annuelle aux fins administratives de notre société ET pour échanger des idées sur notre loisir et le célébrer revêt donc beaucoup d'importance en raison de la grande dimension du Canada et de sa population limitée.

Voilà les principales raisons pour lesquelles nous espérons, avec le temps, organiser dans chaque province et, peut-être dans un territoire, notre rassemblement annuel Royal/Royale. Il y a longtemps que nous nous sommes réunis en Colombie-Britannique, au Nouveau-Brunswick et en Saskatchewan. Et, nous sommes-nous déjà réunis dans l'une de nos provinces-îles? Je ne crois encourage collectors and RPSC members in those provinces to think about the potential benefits to the hobby and its supporters of hosting a convention down the road sometime - perhaps as soon as 2018, which is open to any takers at the moment.

It's for these key reasons that we hope, over time, to get to every province, and possibly a territory, for our annual Royal/Royale gathering. It's been a long time since we met in British Columbia, New Brunswick or Saskatchewan. And have we ever met in either of our island provinces?

There may also be a smaller city or town that dreams big of hosting a Royale. Saugeen/Hanover proved it can be done, and done well, back in 2003. They succeeded because neighbours and friends nearby rallied around the project. The guidelines for running a convention are available in email form by request. They're in great shape, thanks to the work of Conventions Liaison Director Ken Magee. He can answer your questions about any aspects of running a Royale. ✉

Il y a longtemps que nous nous sommes réunis en Colombie-Britannique, au Nouveau-Brunswick et en Saskatchewan. Et, nous sommes-nous déjà réunis dans l'une de nos provinces-îles?

pas. J'encourage donc les collectionneurs et les membres de La SRPC de ces provinces à réfléchir aux avantages potentiels que notre passe-temps et ceux qui l'appuient pourraient retirer si, un beau jour, un congrès avait lieu chez eux — peut-être dès 2008, qui, pour l'instant, est ouvert à tous les preneurs.

Peut-être de petites villes osent-elles aussi rêver de tenir un congrès Royal. Saugeen et Hanover ont prouvé qu'il est possible de le faire et de bien le faire, en 2003. Elles ont réussi parce que des voisins et des amis des environs se sont ralliés au projet. Vous pouvez obtenir les directives sur les congrès sur demande, par courriel. Elles sont à jour grâce au travail de notre directeur de liaison pour les congrès, Ken Magee, qui peut répondre à vos questions sur tous les aspects de l'organisation d'un congrès Royal.

Has your chapter submitted the date and details of your annual regional show for publication in the Coming Events column in The Canadian Philatelist? This is a free service and a benefit of your chapter's membership in the Society.

Here are a number of quick suggestions, thoughts and observations made after a series of recent visits to six chapters east and west of me in Quebec and Ontario.

Chapters and their members are appreciative of speakers and visitors at their meetings. I regularly encourage the RPSC directors to visit out-of-town chapters and offer themselves as speakers on philatelic topics, but there is little reason why many more of us couldn't do this. Of course an honorarium makes a good thank you, and should be given to a speaker to offset any travel costs, if the club can afford it.

Following on from that thought, I've noticed that more and more chapters have invested in their own digital projectors to allow for PowerPoint presentations by members and visitors. Projectors seem to go for about $400.00 lately, but no doubt that price will continue to fall with time. If such a cost is too much for a small or new chapter, they might well be able to borrow or rent from a neighbouring chapter or service club. If a number of members hope to make presentations, a scanning and Powerpoint workshop would be very helpful to beginners.

The most lively and entertaining meetings always offer three elements, as we say in one-page exhibit judging:

- ways to acquire more stamps (auctions, sales circuits, trading post, regular guest dealer, etc.);
- ways to socialize and to hear about members who may be absent or unwell (coffee and cookies, newsletter, etc.);
- ways to learn about a new aspect of the hobby (speaker, DVD program, reference books, show-and-tell program, etc.).

Try to meet what I call this trinity of club meetings and your members should be happy.

Votre section a-t-elle donné la date et les détails de son exposition régionale annuelle afin que nous la publions dans la chronique des activités au calendrier du Philatéliste canadien? Ce service est gratuit et l'un des avantages de l'adhésion à la société.

Voici quelques brèves suggestions, pensées et observations à la suite de récentes visites rendue à six sections de clubs à l'est et à l'ouest de mon lieu de résidence, soit au Québec et en Ontario.

Les sections de clubs apprécient la participation de conférenciers et de visiteurs à leurs réunions. J'encourage régulièrement les directeurs de La SRPC à visiter nos sections de clubs qui sont à l'extérieur de la ville et à offrir de donner des conférences sur des sujets philatéliques, mais je vois peu de raisons qui nous empêcheraient d'être beaucoup plus nombreux à le faire. Bien sûr, une rétribution est une façon appropriée de dire merci et les clubs qui peuvent se le permettre devraient en offrir une aux conférenciers pour leurs frais de déplacement.

En droite ligne avec cette pensée, j'ai remarqué que de plus en plus de sections de clubs ont investi dans l'acquisition de leur propre projecteur numérique permettant ainsi aux membres et aux visiteurs de faire des présentations PowerPoint. Un projecteur coûte environ 400,00 $ actuellement, mais les prix continueront sans doute à baisser au fil du temps. Si ce prix est trop élevé pour les sections qui sont petites ou nouvelles, elles pourraient peut-être emprunter ou louer un projecteur d'une section voisine ou d'un club social. Si un certain nombre de membres songent à donner des présentations, un atelier sur la numérisation et Power Point serait très utile aux débutants.

Les réunions les plus vivantes et les plus divertissantes se composent toujours trois éléments (pour employer une expression utilisée à nos évaluations d'une page) :

- des façons d'acquérir davantage de timbres (ventes aux enchères, circuits de ventes, poste d'échanges, négociants invités régulièrement, etc.);
- des façons de socialiser et de prendre des nouvelles des membres qui sont absents ou malades (café et biscuits, bulletins, etc.);
- des façons d'apprendre de nouveaux aspects de notre passetemps (conférenciers, programmes DVD, ouvrages de référence, présentations, etc.);

essayez de réunir ce que j'appelle la trinité des réunions de clubs et vos membres seront heureux.

Has your chapter submitted the date and details of your annual regional show for publication in the Coming Events column in The Canadian Philatelist? This is a free service and a benefit of your chapter's membership in the Society. Please send the information to our National Office. Free publicity is truly priceless.

We are currently working with our publisher on a way to highlight the chapters which have been RPSC members for 50 or more years. It may be as simple as listing them separately, or highlighting the chapter heading in a colour other than the current brown-red. If in doubt about the age of your chapter, please let me know, and we'll send our historian off to do some detective work. More on this topic will be announced in future issues.

Has any of your members tried selling collections or albums in general - i.e., non-philatelic - auctions? At a few general auctions I've attended, I've been surprised at how high the bidding got for what seemed to be ordinary material. One dealer said that the general public tends to overpay for stamps at regular, open auctions. ☒

Votre section a-t-elle donné la date et les détails de son exposition régionale annuelle afin que nous la publions dans la chronique des activités au calendrier du Philatéliste canadien? Ce service est gratuit et l'un des avantages de l'adhésion à la société. Veuillez acheminer vos renseignements au Bureau national. La publicité gratuite a une valeur inestimable.

Nous travaillons actuellement avec notre éditeur afin de trouver une façon de mettre en évidence les sections qui sont membres de La SRPC depuis cinquante ans ou plus. Il suffirait peut-être d'en dresser une liste séparée ou de souligner le nom du chapitre d'une autre couleur que le brun rouge actuel. Si vous n'êtes pas certain de l'âge de votre chapitre, s. v. p. dites-le-moi et nous mettrons notre historien sur le coup. Les prochains numéros vous en apprendront davantage sur ce sujet.

Certains de vos membres ont-ils déjà essayé de vendre des collections ou des albums dans une vente aux enchères générale, soit une vente aux enchères non philatélique? Lors de certaines ventes aux enchères générales auxquelles j'ai assisté, j'ai été surpris de voir à quel point les enchères étaient élevées pour des articles qui semblaient tout à fait ordinaires. Un négociant a déclaré que les membres du public en général ont tendance à payer trop cher les timbres qu'ils achètent dans les ventes aux enchères publiques ordinaires. ☒

YPC Contest #1 / Concours TJ #1
P.O.Box 884/ C.P. 884 Station Desjardins
Montréal, QC, H5B 1B9

RULES OF THE YPC CONTEST

The rules of the YPC Contest will be available, at any time, at the national office of the RPSC: P.O. Box 929, Station Q, Toronto, ON, M4T 2P1.

The contest is open to any Canadian resident except members of the Youth Commission of the RPSC.

The answers to the contest must be received before the date and hour mentioned in the rules, published in The Canadian Philatelist.

A prize worth more than 50$ will be awarded for each contest after a drawing from all the correct answers received before the deadline.

The drawing will be carried out by a person independent of the organization. His or her name will be mentioned in the same issue of TCP as the name of the winner.

The winner will be notified by mail or email and the prize will be sent by mail.

Any disagreement concerning the organization of the contest can be submitted to « Régie des alcools, des courses et des jeux » in Quebec to be settled. Any disagreement concerning the prizes can also be submitted to the Régie. ☒

RÈGLEMENTS DU CONCOURS TJ

Les règlements du Concours TJ sont disponibles, en tout temps, au bureau national de la SPRC: C.P. 929, Succ. Q, Toronto, ON, M4T 2P1.

Le concours est ouvert à tout résidant du Canada à l'exception des membres de la Commission Jeunesse de la SPRC.

Les réponses au concours doivent parvenir à l'adresse indiquée avant l'heure et la date limite mentionnées lors de la publication du concours dans Le Philatéliste Canadien.

Pour chaque concours, un prix d'une valeur de plus de 50$ sera attribué par tirage parmi les bonnes réponses reçues avant la date limite.

Le tirage sera effectué par une tierce personne indépendante de l'organisation du concours. Le nom de cette personne sera mentionné dans le même numéro que le nom du gagnant ou de la gagnante.

Le gagnant ou la gagnante sera avisé par courriel ou courrier et son prix lui sera expédié par la poste.

Un différend quant à l'organisation du concours peut être soumis à la Régie des alcools, des courses et des jeux du Québec afin qu'il soit tranché. Un différend quant à l'attribution d'un prix peut être soumis à la Régie uniquement aux fins d'une intervention pour le régler. ☒

PHILATÉLIQUE

Donations to the RPSC Philatelic Research Foundation

The two objectives of the Foundation are to promote youth philately, and to encourage philatelic research by sponsoring its publication and distribution. These objectives are achieved through donations of cash, or of philatelic material from collectors and philatelists. Donations of collections receive a charitable receipt for income tax purposes equal to the appraised fair market value.

Potential donors should contact the Foundation President, Peter Butler, FRPSC, directly (1-416-921-2073), or via the National Office(1-888-285-4143), or in writing at 10 Summerhill Ave., Toronto, ON M4T 1A8, to discuss the type of material intended for donation and the process for receiving a charitable donation receipt.

Dons à la RPSC Philatelic Research Foundation

Les deux objectifs de la fondation sont de promouvoir la philatélie jeunesse et d'encourager la recherche philatélique en commanditant la publication et la distribution. Ces objectifs sont atteints au moyen de dons d'argent ou de matériel philatélique de la part de collectionneurs et de philatélistes. Les dons de collections philatéliques donnent lieu à un reçu pour don de bienfaisance aux fins d'impôt égal à la valeur de remplacement selon la juste valeur marchande d'expertise.

Les personnes qui souhaitent faire un don peuvent s'adresser au président de la fondation, Peter Butler, directement au -416-921-2073 ou au Bureau national au -888-285-4143, ou par écrit au 10 Summerhill Ave., Toronto, ON, M4T 1A8, afin de discuter des articles à donner et du processus d'émission d'un reçu pour don de charité.

'Tis the Season . . .

With winter
upon us, and a New Year dawning ... it's time to work on stamps.

The Circuit is a great way to sell off good extras and earn a little cash, or find some special pieces that you have been seeking. Quality sells in the Circuit, and we have a great many excellent books for you to see. We are always seeking good Circuit books, from all over the world.

Thanks to Bragg Creek AB graphic artist Doug Sephton for putting together these ads, and to Port Alberni, BC cartoonist Peter Lynde for giving us a chuckle!

I look forward to hearing from you

Bonne année, Fröeliche weinachten, Happy 2014!!
